

SPENCER AGAN DEFENDS NEWBERRY IN SENATE CLASH

Declares Michigan Member Was Not Prosecuted in State Because Action Was Unwarranted.

M'KELLAR STATEMENTS DRAW REPRIMANDS

Heated Debate Arises in Upper House During Discussion of Legislation to Curb Campaign Expenses.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The Newberry election case caused another sharp clash today in the Senate between Republicans and Democrats. Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, attacked Senator Newberry, charging him with purchasing his seat and when Senator Townsend, Republican, Michigan, defended the case the exchanges became so heated that Senator McKellar was reprimanded twice for alleged violation of the rules by Senator Robinson, Democrat, presiding temporarily.

Senator Spencer, Republican, Missouri, who had charge of Senator Newberry's case in the Senate, objected to Senator McKellar's statement that Newberry had bought his seat, and Senator Robinson admonished Senator McKellar, ruling that he had violated the rules against reflecting upon a fellow member.

McKellar ordered to Senator McKellar drew a reprimand from the presiding officer when he declared that Senator Townsend had made statements which he said were "absolutely false." This also Senator Robinson ruled, voluntarily, was out of order, and he directed McKellar to take his seat.

The flurry followed discussion of legislation to curb senatorial campaign expenses during which Senator McKellar and Senator Pomeroy, Democrat, Ohio, urged early action to curb campaign expenses. McKellar said that Senator Townsend had made statements which he said were "absolutely false." This also Senator Robinson ruled, voluntarily, was out of order, and he directed McKellar to take his seat.

Single Moral Standard Demanded by Lady Astor

Women Must Study Vice, Though It Shock Them, and Enforce Their Higher Ideals, She Says

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, May 13.—A demand for elimination of the double standard of morality was coupled with a plain talk on vice by Lady Astor before leaving her Virginia home for Chicago today. The demand and talk was given out here in the inter-departmental social hygiene building.

In her talk Lady Astor incidentally remarked that since entering politics "I have seen more vice than I dreamed could exist. I know that the greater part of vice is a commercialized proposition, not a spontaneous outburst of human nature. I know now that commercialized vice is organized callously and cold-bloodedly for profit, and that many young people are led into it simply that others may make money."

To end this situation she insists women should stop letting themselves be ignorant "under the guise of innocence and assents to the fact of this knowledge be repulsive to women, nevertheless I say it is necessary for them to have it, for when they really know and understand what the situation is, they will no longer tolerate it, and commercialized vice will be driven out."

Women, she continued, "have no right to sit at home and weep in the ignorance they call innocence just because facing actual conditions as they exist outside of their immediate circle may tend to shock them. It is the women who are the moral lives who must look after and work for those who are not so protected."

In her demand for elimination of the double standard, Lady Astor said that "So far the standard of law usage had been set by a male outlook, handed down from old times. Modern women in every race are claiming to be regarded as the guardians of purity and moral ideals and an increasing number of men in English-speaking countries are taking the same attitude."

It is possible, she said, that the future of the laws must be based on the women's standard which eliminates the double standard of morality. There must be no special standard or punishment for either sex. We must work for one standard and only one code of legislative and administrative treatment for both sexes.

AMERICAN WOMAN MISSISSIPPI HURT BY MEXICAN MOB

Miss Elizabeth Streater, Meridian, Miss., Suffers Broken Thigh Bone When Thrown Into Ditch.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
EL PASO, Tex., May 13.—Miss Elizabeth Streater, a Methodist missionary worker at the Torreon District, is at Durango City suffering from a broken thigh bone. She was thrown into an irrigation ditch by a Mexican mob that drove her and five Mexican co-workers from the village of San Juan de Mezquital, May 4, according to reports from the interior today.

Miss Streater is about 40 years old. She formerly taught at the old Meridian Female College, Meridian, Miss. She is a Methodist but is an independent missionary and has no headquarters in the United States, according to friends here. Her only relatives, far as friends know, are Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Brown of Meridian, Miss., her home. Mrs. Brown is her sister.

Pursued by Mob.
Miss Streater has been in Mexico several years and more than once has narrowly missed death during revolutionary days, it is said.

Letters received at the Elffe Edmonson School here from Durango, from her, say that Miss Streater went from Nombre de Dios to San Juan de Mezquital with her Mexican co-workers to perform missionary work. She obtained permission from the Mayor of the town to hold a public meeting, but later she decided that as the town had been before had protesters in its midst, it would not be wise to hold a meeting and prepared to leave immediately. It is reported.

Before they had finished their supper, however, the mob appeared and ordered the women to leave. They refused to leave and a fight ensued. A continually increasing mob drove them from one ranch to another, refusing them rest or shelter, the letter said. The party was pursued until 1 o'clock on the morning of May 5.

At one point, the letter said, the missionary and the workers were compelled to cross an irrigation ditch. Miss Streater jumped, and cleared the ditch only to be knocked backward into the ditch by one of the pursuers. She fell on a big stone and suffered a broken thigh bone.

Carried to Bureau.
Miss Streater then was forced to drag herself on until she fainted, according to the letter. Then one of the workers carried her on a burro.

Miss Streater was brought into Durango City last Tuesday morning. She refused to take an anesthetic or have the bone set until the circumstances of the attack were told, she feared that she might die without the story being related.

On the same afternoon, Dr. McKissack, a Canadian surgeon, set the bone. She is reported to be suffering from exposure.

BOY'S THREATENING LETTER GETS TO WRONG MAN, POLICE FIND Youth Who Wanted Money to Build Auto, Seized When He 'Collected' Deceit Package.

The letter was addressed to "Saloon Man, Broadway and Newbo street," and the postman delivered it to William Lohrm, 4691 South Broadway, and this was what Lohrm read.

"If you don't have $10 on King's highway at the front part between two rocks lying on a piece of newspaper, Saturday, May 13, you will be arrested for selling liquor. There is someone watching you at this moment and if you fail to put the money there you will be arrested and it will mean more money than this to you. This is a fair warning and you will be sorry if you don't put the money there. I am doing this for what you did to me."

Lohrm placed a decoy package between two rocks on the designated highway. Police hid under the bridge. A boy came along and possessed himself of the decoy package and was then arrested. He said he had been a letter because he wanted to buy an engine and build an automobile.

Lohrm was called in and when the boy saw him he said there had been a terrible mistake, because Lohrm wasn't the saloon man that he meant the letter for.

DELEGATES HOPE TO SETTLE ISSUE OF TACNA - ARICA

Representatives of Chile and Peru to Begin Conferences on Monday at Washington.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The preliminary consultations on questions of national policy at the delegates of Chile and Peru joined tonight in a prediction that the conference to begin here Monday will result in a satisfactory solution of the long-debated problem of Tacna-Arica, and bring the two governments to a footing of common understanding and friendship.

Through statements to the Associated Press, statements of both delegations not only forecast success for the negotiations, but praised the spirit of the United States in its efforts to facilitate a fair and impartial settlement. For the Chileans, Carlos Aldunate Solar declared the conference would begin in an atmosphere of "frank cordiality," and the Chilean plenipotentiaries determined to make every reasonable step toward an agreement.

On the part of the Peruvians, Dr. Meliton Porras asserted his full confidence and said his delegation would be ready to accept a sincere desire for positive results.

Officials of the United States Government made no formal statement, but there was reflected among them an increasing gratification at the spirit in which the representatives of Chile and Peru had approached the task. Privately, it was predicted on every hand that, although some serious obstacles must be encountered, the results of the Washington discussion could not fail to be beneficial.

While the two delegations were holding separate meetings to put the final touches on their plans of procedure, the State Department and the Pan-American Union completed physical preparations for Monday's opening session.

Diplomats to Be Guests.
The Hall of the Americas in the Pan-American Building was fitted with a large conference table and chairs were placed for several hundred members of official and diplomatic circles who will be guests on the opening day. The national colors of Chile and Peru had the place of prominence in the elaborate decorations about the hall.

After the public session on Monday, which will be devoted to addresses by Secretary of State Hughes and Meliton Porras, the two delegations plan to begin at once a series of daily executive conferences. It is expected, however, that several days will elapse before the exchanges will develop any concrete basis for discussion of specific issues.

Tuesday's meeting, it is predicted by both sides, will be devoted to the exchange of "informal conversations." These will include an exchange of ideas looking to the adoption of a plan of procedure. The question of publicity also will be taken up and in that connection it is believed the delegations will decide to issue joint statements to the press after each sitting. The Chileans described the meetings as "private and secret."

In his statement to the Associated Press today, Senator Solar expressed particular appreciation for courteous reception of the Chilean delegation since its arrival.

U. S. Efforts Appreciated.
"The American Government," he said, "has wished to show its keen interest in the success of the conference as evidenced by the lunch given the delegates by the President at the White House and the reception at the Pan-American Union given by the Secretary of State who will preside at the opening session."

"In this atmosphere of cordiality and of good will, the actual work of the conference will begin on Tuesday."

Dr. Porras also expressed satisfaction in the way the United States Government had handled the negotiations leading up to the conference.

COMISKEY KEPT FELSCH OFF STAND, ATTORNEY CHARGES

Dispute Between Lawyers Marks Baseball Suit Hearing—Case Continued for Week.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 13.—Contending that the Circuit Court of Milwaukee has not the power to summon Charles Comiskey, Attorney George B. Hudnall today charged that Felsch by his actions has no standing in any court in his claims.

Because of a crowded court, the motion for an order directing Comiskey and his son, Louis, to appear, was continued until next Saturday.

The affidavit by inference sets up that the pennant of 1917 was won by fraud and that the other operations of the defendant club in 1919 and 1920 were fraudulent, said Hudnall, "yet in the same breath with which he makes these charges, Felsch seeks to gain part of the money he says was obtained by fraud. He does not come into court with clean hands and has no standing in court on such an allegation."

The charge offered, he said, "is that Felsch was denied a hearing. He was given the opportunity of a hearing before the grand jury in Chicago."

He didn't occupy the witness stand," said Attorney Richter, one of Felsch's lawyers.

"No, he did not occupy the stand because his attorneys kept him off for fear he would incriminate himself," replied Hudnall.

He didn't take the stand because Comiskey had his attorneys keep Felsch from the stand for fear he would incriminate him," said Felsch's attorney.

"That is not true," shouted Hudnall.

COURT OF INTERNATIONAL JUSTICE OPEN TO THE WORLD

League Council Decides to Make It Available to Russia, Germany, Mexico.

GENOA, May 13.—The Court of International Justice was thrown open to the entire world yesterday when the council of the League of Nations decided that Russia, Germany, Turkey, Hungary and Mexico could bring cases before the court provided they previously had agreed to accept its decisions and not declare war over the disputes in question.

These nations were the only ones to which the court had not previously been available for the settlement of disputes.

The decision by the council gives the court truly world jurisdiction for the first time. It was determined by the council that the countries admitted to part of the expenses of the hearings before the court brought by them.

GERMAN AMBASSADOR ARRIVES AT NEW YORK

Dr. Otto L. Wiedtfeld Greeted by Delegation of 100 Citizens of German Extraction.

NEW YORK, May 13.—Dr. Otto L. Wiedtfeld, newly appointed German Ambassador to the United States, arrived today on the United States liner America.

The diplomat said he had no particular message for Americans at this time except to tell them that he came with the distinct idea of increasing friendly feeling between Germany and America and "covering up the last traces of the buried hatchet."

"I am figuratively shaking hands with America for my country," he said, "and I believe that is a token that our old acquaintance will not be forgotten and that mutual respect, service and friendship will be quickly revived."

Dr. Wiedtfeld was met down the bay by the police boat, John Hyland, on which were 100 prominent New Yorkers of German extraction, including the Mayor, John P. O'Sullivan, and Charles Oberwager. A band aboard the Hyland played American and German airs while the Ambassador came up the bay with the Reception Committee, cheering steadily, even while the Ambassador was inside the dining saloon, declaring his baggage for the customs officers.

At the pier, Magistrate Oberwager made a short speech of welcome to the new Ambassador, who was greeted by the Mayor, the Magistrate said that New York, "as the mouthpiece of welcome, greeted the new diplomat as a friend."

It seems to me," said the new Ambassador, as he stood on the bridge of the America watching the Statue of Liberty, "that my mission is more social and industrial than political. I am here to do what I can to bring about a better understanding between America and the world. Some of our contemporaries say that the standard of living is not high enough for the times in which we live, and if that is so, I hope to see a small measure to change that condition."

Speaks for Co-Operation.
"I do not dare to meddle greatly with many of the problems of the world," he said, "but I shall do what I can."

"I have no message for America at this time," he said, "but I have a message for the world. The world is in a state of economic troubles which almost every country in the world has to face. The natural consequence of the destruction of the world's commerce. Only co-operation can help to establish international business and it is to my best to that end that I am here, hoping to cover up the last traces of the already deeply-buried hatchet."

FOUR PLACES SUSPECTED OF TAKING BETS ON DERBY RAIDED

Several Arrests Made and Form Sheets Confiscated by Police Gambling Squad.

Detective Sergeant Roach, in charge of the police gambling squad, today raided four places where he had information that bets on the Kentucky Derby were being accepted. He selected the time between 2 and 3 p. m. for the raids in an effort to break the gambling on the day's classic at Louisville.

When the squad started into a cigar store at 407 Walnut street, three men ran from the place and one, who was seen to have been locked the door, Roach broke down the door to make the arrests. In the cigar store he arrested Daniel Murphy, 35 years old, residing at the Metropolitan Hotel, who he reported, was seated at a table equipped with telephones and on which racing forms and bet tabs were spread. The three arrested in the building east were held by Murphy. All furnished names.

Joseph J. Foster, proprietor of a book store at 410 Washington avenue, was arrested when Roach reported finding marked racing form sheets in the store. Foster gave bond.

In a poolroom at 1718 Olive street, Albert Teager, 52 years old, the proprietor, and two customers, found about 12 a. m. When Roach and his squad entered, several alleged racing tabs and some racing form sheets were confiscated.

Emmet Stanley of 1125 Lawn avenue, a clerk in a cigar store at 1200 Olive street, was arrested when Roach saw him at a telephone and found a number of racing forms and bet tabs in the place.

Board Members in St. Joseph to Investigate Case of Superintendent Aden C. Vickrey.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
ST. JOSEPH, Mo., May 13.—H. R. Evans, of Bonne Terre, president of the Police Board, was president of the Board of Directors of the St. Joseph State Hospital, May 13, when the board members held a meeting at the hospital with Superintendent Vickrey and conferred with Walter F. Fulkerson, president of the Police Board, who was at the police station when Vickrey was brought in by a squad of patrolmen late Wednesday night. The policemen had been attracted to a hotel where Vickrey and his wife had been calling on friends. Vickrey had been with his motor car, and the policemen said he was abusive.

Vickrey was held in a cell until morning when he was released on cash bond. No defense was made when his case was taken up in police court. Then Gov. Hyde sent the members of the Eleemosynary Board here. The members of the Board and Vickrey refused to discuss the case.

Vickrey was appointed Superintendent of the St. Joseph Hospital last December and assumed charge Jan. 1.

MAN WITH WIFE HELD UP ON WAY TO PICTURE SHOW

George Goodman and his wife, of 2034 Hickory street, were on their way to a moving picture show at 7:30 o'clock when two men stopped them in their automobile on Hickory street, near Mississippi avenue, and held them up, taking $13 from Goodman.

An hour later, two men of similar description held up a branch of the St. Louis Park Packing Co., 3301 McDonald avenue, and took $50 from Albert Cassell, the manager. A Kroger grocery store at Glen avenue, near the intersection of three blocks from the packing company store, was held up 15 minutes later, and $80 was taken from the cash register. Otto Lange, the manager, of 4049 Cherokee street, was in the store.

Steve Minor and Joseph Burgett, partners in a stall at the Southern market, were putting up a horse when two men of similar description, who were holding up a horse at 1111 Kosciusko street at 11 p. m., took two men robbed Minor of $200, the day's receipts. He resisted and was struck on the head with a revolver butt, after which the men fled.

Two negroes obtained $50.40 in the grocery store of Morris Metzman, 4200 Evans avenue, all the money they could find, including 40 cents from Metzman's young brother, Abe.

One man with a revolver obtained $9 in a holdup of the grocery store of Walter York, 1961 Newhouse avenue, at 9 p. m.

Two men took $50 from the cash register in the butcher shop of Joseph Ring, 3417 North Fourteenth street, at 10:30 p. m.

Two men with revolvers entered the Standard Oil filling station at Nineteenth and Chestnut streets at 11 p. m., taking $7 from the manager, Frank Young, and $5 from a safe.

The police found Frank Young, 51, of 4034 Fairfax avenue, suffering from a stab wound in the left side of his face at Fourteenth and Biddle streets at 9 p. m. He said he had been robbed of $150 in a holdup to which two chance negro acquaintances had escorted him to sell him liquor. He was stabbed, he said, when he demanded his money.

Two negroes robbed George Leigh, 142 North Tenth street, of $1, of High street, between Washington and Franklin avenues, at 11 p. m.

Presentation of Letters Declared to Have Been Written by Mrs. Stillman Gives Case New Aspect.

ALL WITNESSES FOR DEFENSE HEARD

Attorney's Statement That Evidence Is Completed Means Long-Fought Case Will Rest.

By Leased Wire From The New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., May 13.—The long-fought Stillman case, from all indications, now will rest, so far as hearings or the taking of testimony are concerned.

Mack of counsel for Mrs. Stillman said this evening it was unlikely he and his associates would call any more witnesses.

They have until Wednesday to decide about this, but their minds are about made up now.

Mack would not admit he was downcast over the blow delivered his client's cause yesterday, when four affectionate letters, said to have been written by Mrs. Stillman to Fred Beauvais, who, Stillman asserts, is the father of her baby son, Guy, were introduced unexpectedly into the case.

"I am very happy over the turn the case has taken," said Mack. Just what that expression meant was not very clear.

Stillman denied flatly, while testifying, that she wrote them. She declared she had never seen the letters before, but in the opinion of those who have followed the case since its beginning, almost two years ago, her denial was not particularly impressive.

Especially as Miss Harriet Hubbard, Stillman's housekeeper, testified that the photographs of the letters, which she had taken, seemed to be the defendant's.

Letters Said to Have Been Bought. The letters, in the opinion of those close to the case, seem to carry additional weight, because they were not accidentally discovered but were put forward as having actually been sold by Beauvais to representatives of Stillman.

Word was received here today that Beauvais, in Canada, had denied selling the letters, but two points came up to offset this denial. First, it was learned that at yesterday's hearing, before Judge Gleason, Edmund Leigh, the Stillman detective who swore to having paid over the $15,000, positively identified two photographs of Beauvais as pictures of the man who sold him the letters.

Then, again, a telegram was received today from James Shean, the reporter for the New York Daily News, who was said to have acted as a go-between, admitting the truth of the story of the transaction as testified to by Leigh.

Shean, apparently, deeply disturbed by the revelation of his share in Beauvais' alleged treachery, wired to his friend in this city that he "did not know what he was doing." Shean is in his early twenties, with little experience as a reporter. He made the deal, he says, while on a leave of absence from his paper, the purpose of which he did not divulge to his editors.

Beauvais' admission, and the revelation that Leigh identified Beauvais' photographs, seem to clinch the testimony offered by the detective as to the transaction. Shean's reward, it was said here by James Shean, was $15,000, and Beauvais became rather friendly on an earlier visit by Shean to Canada.

Appeal of Case Likely. The appeal of the case in the case, which came yesterday, did not mean that the long drawn out affair is over, by any means. No matter how much Judge Gleason decides, the matter will be fought through the Appellate Division and then carried to the Court of Appeals, both sides admit.

It probably will be a long while, however, before any such action is taken. The referee first must go over something like 6000 pages of testimony taken at the various hearings. Then he must write his findings, which is expected to be lengthy, and submit it to Supreme Court Justice McChesney. The decision will be made public by Justice McChesney. That is not expected for a month or more.

The present action deals solely with the legitimacy or illegitimacy of the boy, Guy. It has nothing to do with a divorce.

If the boy is pronounced to be the son of Beauvais, and not of Stillman, he will lose all right to a share in the $150,000 trust fund created by the late James A. Stillman, father of the present plaintiff. It is certain, too, that Mrs. Stillman, in such an event, will lose the temporary alimony of $50,000 a year she is now receiving.

All previous indications, before yesterday, were that Beauvais and Mrs. Stillman were on the friendly terms. Only last month he founded up for her a number of Canadian witnesses. When she made a trip to Canada in January he met her and escorted her about. They had photographs taken together.

The record of the testimony of Detective Leigh, during the course of which he told of obtaining the four letters, became public today. Part of it follows:

Q. Where did you first see copies of the letters? A. In the possession of James Shean, a newspaper man.

Q. What instructions were given you by your employers before you went to Montreal? A. To meet a man named Shean and keep in contact with him.

Q. What were you told about Shean? A. That Shean was friendly with Beauvais, that Shean would bring us the letters together, and that, if he brought us together, Beauvais and Shean might talk about the possibility of giving over some letters written by Mrs. Stillman to Beauvais.

Leigh's testimony went on to describe his interview with Shean and Beauvais in the Ritz Carlton Hotel, Montreal, in which he said a bargain was struck for $15,000, after Beauvais had first demanded $25,000 for the letters.

It developed at this point in Leigh's story that someone, unnamed, had empowered the reporter to offer $15,000 for the missives.

Leigh testified that if we were going to get any letters of value from Beauvais, we would have to pay more money than he (Shean) had been authorized to offer.

"What did Shean say he was empowered to offer?"

A. "Fifteen thousand dollars."

Leigh was not asked who had given Shean this authorization.

Girl Named in Veteran's Charges Sails for Europe

Ex-Soldier Alleges His Attention to Miss Mary Culbertson, Senator's Daughter, Resulted in Plot to Kidnap Him.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—Senator and Mrs. Culbertson of Texas announced in a statement tonight that their daughter, Mary, sailed from New York today for a tour of Europe. The attentions of Alexander E. Robertson, a British war veteran, toward Miss Culbertson, recently attracted attention because of her charges of a plot to kidnap him which were considered by the British embassy.

The statement said: "Miss Mary Culbertson, daughter of Senator and Mrs. Charles A. Culbertson, who has been at home with her parents since her return from Texas, sailed from New York today with a party for a tour of Europe, in pursuance of plans made several months ago."

The romance of Miss Culbertson and Alexander Robertson first came to public attention May 4 when he laid before the British embassy at Washington charges that after the girl's family learned of his courtship he was induced by threats made by three Burns detectives to accompany them to Boston and permit them to arrange for his passage on a boat for South America. A letter said to have been written by Miss Robertson and produced by Robert son at this time expressed fear for the former soldier's safety and declared "The scheming of my family is getting on my nerves. I know that you are under surveillance in New Jersey and that you were under surveillance in Texas. Letters have been sent to my mother stating that you are an adventurer and fortune seeker. You must be very careful and remember your promise not to do anything that might cause trouble to everybody."

Robertson, who was said to have been among the first 100,000 British soldiers on the western front in the world war, lived in Bloomfield, N. J.

The plan differs from the one followed in former years in that the committee will try to induce suitable men to file, instead of waiting until after the filing and then making a selection.

The selections are to be made under the following rules and regulations:

The president of the Bar Association, shall appoint by tomorrow from the members, a committee of five Democrats and a committee of five Republicans, to be known as the judicial candidate committee, and the chairman of each committee shall be designated by the president. Each committee shall be authorized to take such action as it may deem to be advisable, "to the end that desirable candidates of its political party be induced to file for nomination for Judge of the Circuit Court of St. Louis and Judge of the Probate Court and Judge of the Court of Criminal Appeals."

Official Primary election, to be held in August, 1922.

Recommendation of Candidates. The candidates who shall be voted for by a majority of the voters voting the party ticket of candidates in the bar primary shall be recommended to the public in such manner as the executive committee shall determine as the candidates endorsed by the bar of St. Louis.

On or before June 8 the Judicial Candidate Committee shall meet and cause to be sent to every attorney enrolled and practicing in the courts in St. Louis and maintaining a law office in the city, a printed ballot containing the names of all candidates for the nominations enumerated above, properly arranged in tickler form, under their party heading.

The ballot cast by the attorney and a statement signed by him that he intends to vote the Democratic or Republican ticket, shall be returned. No ballot will be counted unless the signed statement accompanies it.

Balancing Closes June 15. On June 15, at noon, the balloting shall be closed and the committee shall meet and canvass the vote and at once return to the Executive Committee the names of the candidates for each office who have been voted for by a majority of the voters voting the party ticket of said candidates; and if, as to any party and as to any class of offices, the required number of each party has been reached, the names of the candidates shall be selected for endorsement have received such office shall be taken from those candidates of said party receiving the next highest number of ballots for their respective offices, so recommended and if not then all remaining; and another ballot on such candidates shall be had as before; and so on until the required number of each party has been reached for each office shall receive a majority vote.

No voter shall be permitted to change his party ticket throughout the balloting.

No ballot shall be counted which does not contain as many names voted for as there are endorsements to be made in each class of Judge.

Will Work for Elections. The judicial candidate committees shall be continued until the primary in August, and meanwhile they shall take such steps as to them (with the approval of the Executive Committee) or the association, or the Executive Committee, may seem proper to secure the election at the official primary of the candidates of their respective parties so recommended and endorsed by the bar; but no expense shall be incurred by said Judicial Committee without the prior approval of the Executive Committee of the Bar Association of St. Louis.

The number of votes received by any candidate in the bar primary shall be secret and on the day after the State primary election all of the ballots shall be burned.

CANDIDATES FOR JUDGESHIP TO BE INDORSED BY BAR

Attorneys' Association Executive Committee Adopts Resolution Favoring the Plan.

CANDIDATES FOR FIVE COURTS TO BE NAMED

Five Democrats and Five Republicans to Make Up Committees in Charge of Work.

The Executive Committee of the St. Louis Bar Association yesterday adopted a resolution for a bar primary election for the selection by the bar of as many candidates of each political party for judgeships of the Supreme Court, the St. Louis Court of Appeals, the St. Louis Court of Criminal Appeals, the St. Louis Probate Court and the St. Louis Court of Criminal Correction as are to be nominated for these offices at the August primaries, the selections to receive the endorsement and recommendation of the bar.

TWO WOMEN ARE OPERATING IN CITY AS 'HOSIERY AGENTS'

If a red-haired woman offers to sell $5 silk hosiery at 50 cents a pair, or anything else, a line of women's apparel, household linen, "lower than cost," she may be a woman whom detectives have been trailing through the office buildings in the residence sections for the last two weeks.

Stenographers in the Merchants' Exchange Building made her acquaintance several days ago and as she resists their pursues are slimmer, but their experience has been enriched. Before that the woman "sold" a number of stenographers in the arletton Building.

This is the way she operates. She is accompanied by a black-haired woman. Both are young and attractive. The red-haired woman introduces herself as "Mary McFee" and shows her samples. She says she represents a Chicago firm dealing in unclaimed freight and is taking orders for the 45 stockings, which she shows in the residence sections for the last two weeks.

Then the red-haired woman produces a tablecloth. "It is real home-made goodness Irish linen," she confides, "and I have only one or two with me, and there are no more to be had. I will let you have one for $7."

The tablecloth looks good. The red-haired woman says it could not be duplicated anywhere for less than $20. The stenographers who bought it discovered that the material instead of being real Irish linen was only a cheap cotton, and that what they had paid $7 for could be purchased in any store for less than $1. The women have been working their way in St. Louis for several weeks.

Far Reaching. The black-haired assistant books the orders.

League Protectorate for Albania Virtually Decided On. This is said to be first time body has assumed obligations so far reaching.

By the Associated Press. GENEVA, May 13.—A League of Nations protectorate for Albania was virtually decided upon by the council of the league this afternoon after Italy's objection had been overcome.

Italy, through her representative on the council, M. de Vissani, Imperiali, told the council several days ago that she could not accept such drastic participation by the league in the government of Albania without assurances that important Italian interests in that country would be safeguarded.

This is the first time, league officials pointed out, that the league has assumed such extensive obligations in the administration of any country's internal affairs. The decision was the result of a request by the Albanian Government for the league's assistance in its endeavors to have Albania made a protectorate of the league.

The council also decided today to appoint some prominent American educators to membership on the international commission which is to make a study of intellectual co-operation among the nations.

Policeman and Girl Hurt When Thrown From Horse. Animal Rans Away After Mounted Officer Gives Young Woman "A Lift"—Investigation Ordered.

Mounted Patrolman John S. Bartles was riding along Florence avenue and Tracy road, last night, when he encountered Miss Lydia Hauser, 19 years old, of 3321 Pine street, who was walking along the road with her husband, Pauline.

"Give me a lift, will you?" asked Miss Hauser.

"Sure," replied Bartles, and he lifted her to the horse's back.

The animal, however, and threw the rider to the ground and threw the girl to the ground with a fractured leg. Miss Hauser, who suffered a fractured shoulder and cuts on the face and head, went home with her sister.

Chief O'Brien ordered an investigation of the incident. On Feb. 21, Bartles 26, was charged by the Police Board of a charge that he had offered Miss Hauser a room with a girl above a saloon on his beat. He said that he had found the girl in company with a police character and had ordered her to go home, and that she "framed" the charge.

SENATE ORDERS INQUIRY INTO NATION-WIDE 'GAS' PRICE RAISE

Investigators Will Seek to Determine Whether There Is Underlying Standing Between Companies.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, May 13.—Investigation of the recent nationwide increase in the price of gasoline was ordered today by the Senate.

Without a roll call, and after only brief discussion the Senate adopted a resolution proposing that the subcommittee on Commerce, Education and Labor, investigate the causes of the recent increase in the price of gasoline, and report whether there had been an understanding between the various companies to raise prices.

Urging his resolution, Senator McKellar said stocks of crude oil in the country were greater than ever before, and that prices were below what they were some time ago, when the price of gasoline was less than at this time.

Man, 80, Found Dead in Chair. Joseph Pennington, 80 years old, who lived with a son, Louis, at 1902 Mallinckrodt street, was found dead, seated in a chair, beside a stove, in which two burners were turned on, but not lighted yesterday. The son told the police he believed the father had been turned on accidentally. Pennington was a widower.

MORVICH IS WINNER IN THE KENTUCKY DERBY

Pillory Equals Record in Taking Preakness Stake

Wilson's Entry Noses Out Hea by Head in Driving Finish in 1:51 3-5 in $50,000 Pimlico Feature.

30,000 PERSONS ARE PRESENT FOR CLASSIC

Winner Pays $24.30 in the Pari-Mutuels—Miss Joy and Hephaistos Disappoint Followers.

By the Associated Press. BALTIMORE, May 13.—R. T. Wilson's Pillory, by Clambala-Hester Pryne, won the Preakness stake with its rich prize of $50,000, at Pimlico, this afternoon, finishing a head in front of Hea and covering the distance of a mile and a furlong in 1:51 3-5, equaling the time of Man o' War, when he won the race two years ago.

Hea, who, by the way, is owned by Rear Admiral Cary T. Grayson, physician and aide to former Presidents Taft and Wilson, was two and a half lengths ahead of June Grass, with Fraze Gold a length back, fourth. Then in the order named came Galantman, Champion, Spanish Maize, Hephaistos, Oil Man, Miss Joy, St. Henry and Rebuke.

All three place horses were long shots, the two dollar mutuels paying as follows: Pillory, $24.30, $13.40, $1.60; Hea, $54.70, $26.70; June Grass, $50.40.

There was very little delay at the post. When the barrier went up Galantman, who broke from the rail position, showed in front and with June Grass went out to set the pace. Miss Joy was third. In this order they went round the first turn and started on the journey down the back stretch. At the half mile pole Galantman was done and June Grass took up the running.

On the turn into the home stretch, Morris moved Pillory up and taking the lead headed for home. Down the stretch the drive was furious, but Pillory held on and passed the finish in front of Hea, who came from the rear with a mighty rush and just failed to get up. The favorites, Miss Joy and Hephaistos, ran disappointing races.

Miss Joy, the queen of last year's two-year-old fillies, went around the lower bend in third position, but withered away after traveling four furlongs. Hephaistos never could keep up.

Nearly 30,000 spectators witnessed the race. The winner also captured the famous Woodlawn vase, contested for in the Preakness annually. It was won by Broomston last year.

JOHNSTON AND GRIFFIN DEFEAT TILDEN AND RICHARDS IN FOUR SETS

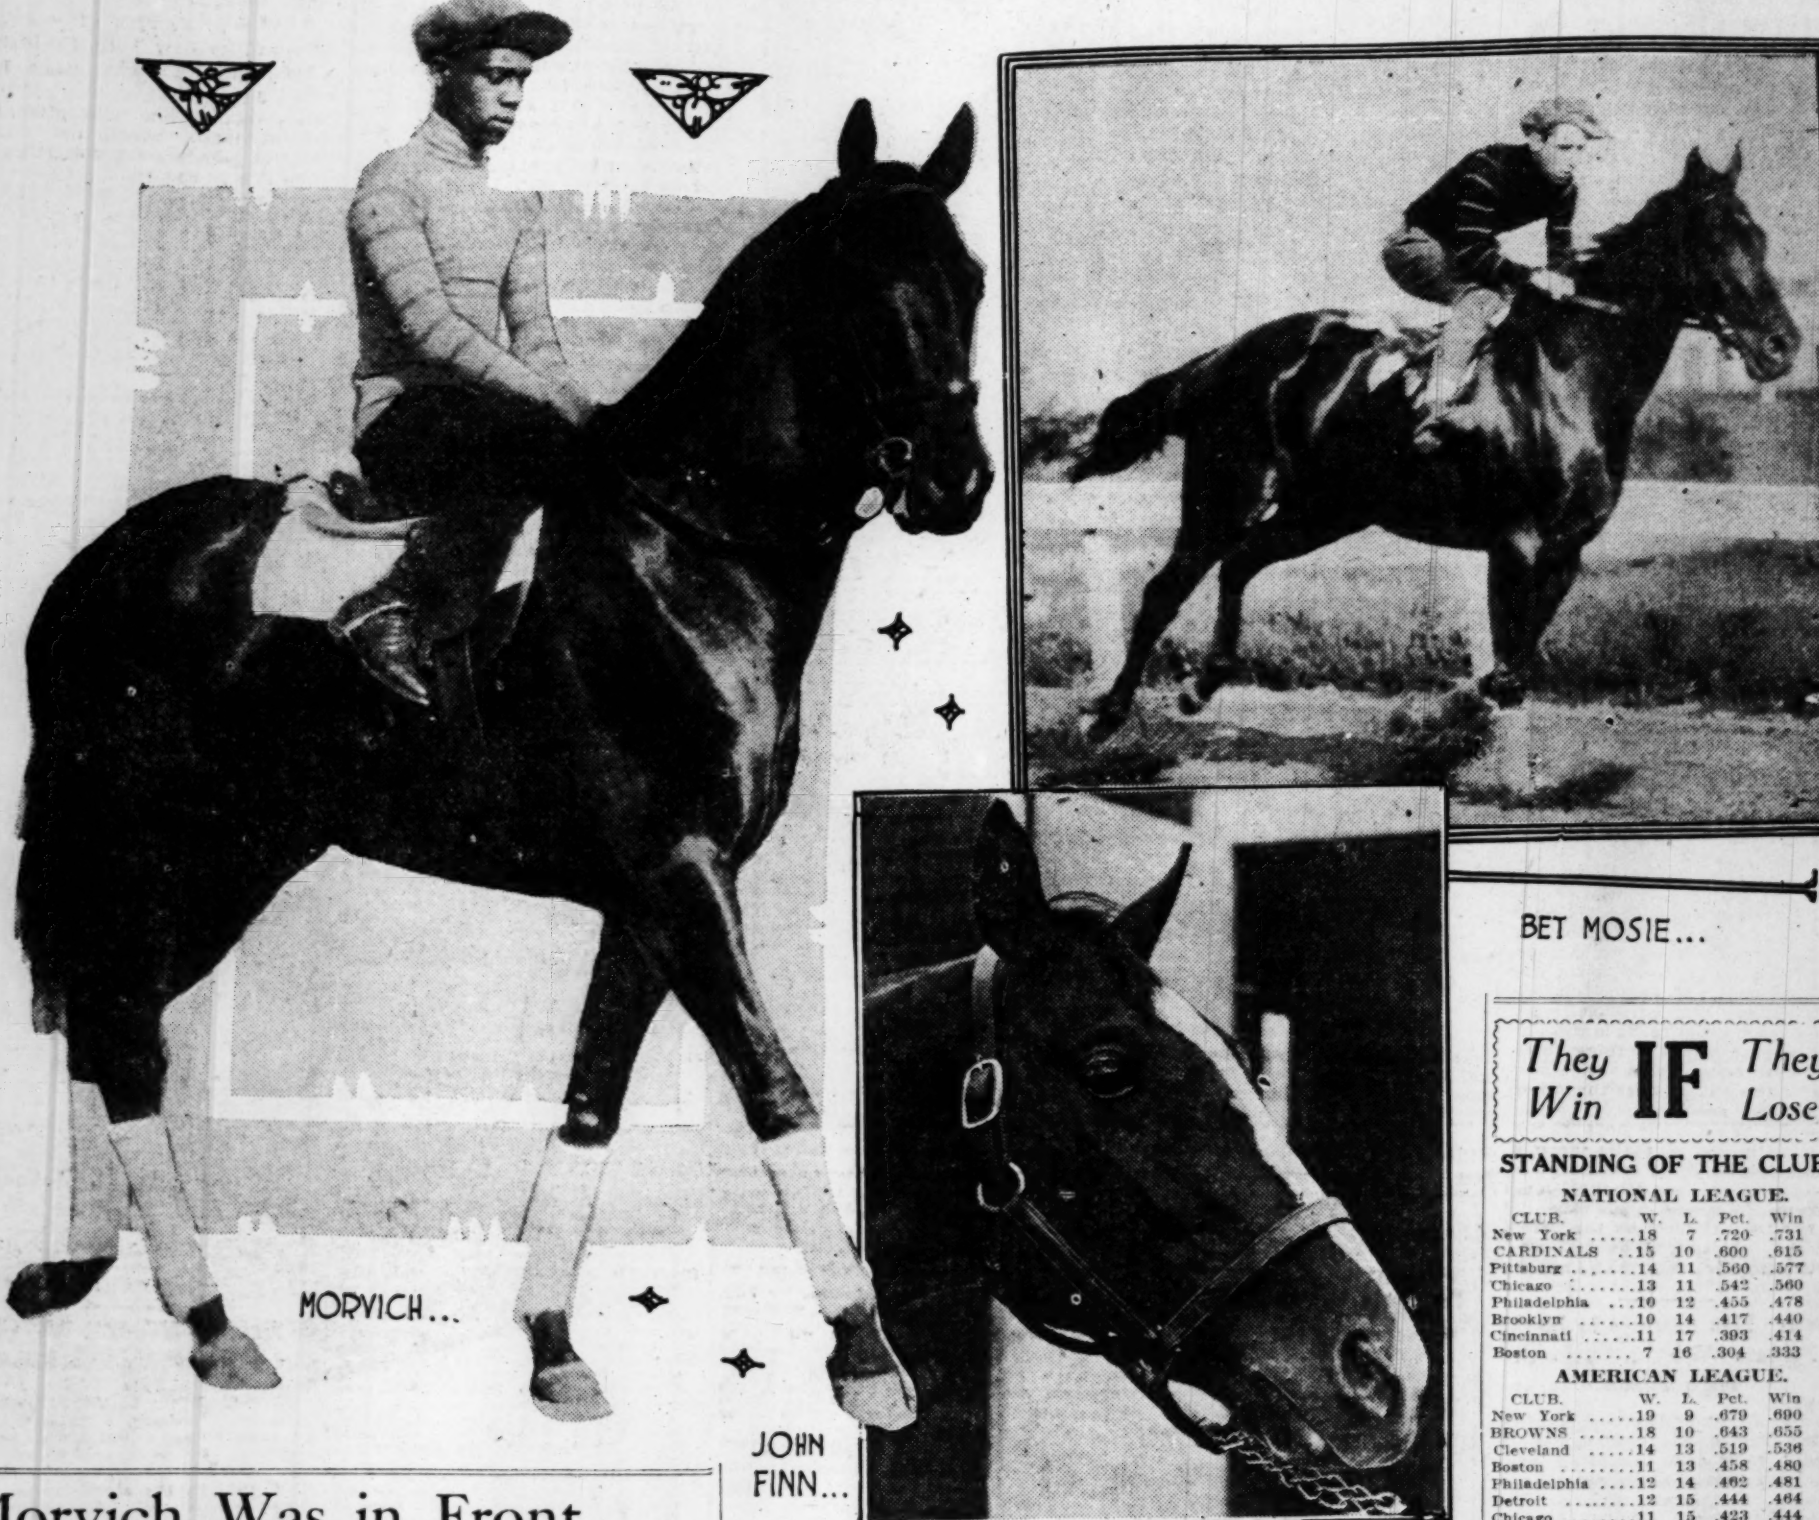

By the Associated Press. BERKELEY, Cal., May 13.—William M. Johnston and Clarence J. (Peck) Griffin, former national doubles champions, today defeated William T. Tilden II and Vincent Richards, National doubles champions, 4-6, 7-6, 6-3, 6-2, in the annual tournament of the California Lawn Tennis Association.

The championship of the Pacific Coast was not involved in the match. Richards, who sprained his right ankle Thursday, tried to save it as much as possible and Tilden did the greater part of the moving about the court.

Hunter Wins Title. Tom Hunter won the tennis championship tournament at Principia yesterday by defeating Jack de Witt in the singles final. The scores were: 6-2, 6-3, 6-2.

Carl Berninger defeated Tom Green in a tryout for fourth place on the academy team.

MORVICH... JOHN FINN...

And it was expected that, in a pinch, Morvich would encounter every form of obstacle possible. Morvich upset the plan, however. Tractable at the post, while Buey American was rearing and cutting up he ruined all plans laid against him by breaking out in front. Crossing in front of My Play and John Finn he took the pole before the first turn was reached.

As the field clattered down the stretch on the first round, nearing the grand stand, Buey American moved up to perform his duty of running Morvich into the ground. Around the club house turn he made a desperate try to take the lead away from the Black Colt. My Play, too, was in a forward position.

Buey American Reared. This horse was sacrificed on the altar of his owner's ambition. Sent in suffering from a bowed tendon, with no chance to win, used only for the purpose of impeding Morvich, he broke down in the back stretch.

In the meantime, all unheeding this tragedy, on rolled the field. The track was dusty around the clubhouse turn and the thousands of eyes straining through binoculars had great difficulty in following the kaleidoscopic shifts in the position of the contenders.

Morvich Always in Lead. At the half, My Play was still making the contention, two lengths back of the evenly-running Morvich. The only filly in the race, Startle, was moving up to challenge. The Bradley entry, which was supposed to be able to furnish contention, was not doing so well. Buey American had limped out of the running; Bet Mosie was trailing in sixth position and By Gosh, the horse that carried more St. Louis money than even Morvich, was a bad last—and he remained so to the end.

The plans to "gang" Morvich by numbers already had been completely broken. Out there in front, where the gap was closing fast as the weight of several tons of silver in the betting, Morvich was plodding his even way along. There was daylight between him and the next two horses, as the field neared the far turn, but the gap was closing fast as Startle and My Play made their bid to take the lead away from the champion.

WINNER—MORVICH. Time—2:04 3-5. Track fast.

Time—23 4-5, 47 3-5, 1:13, 1:30 1-5, 2:04 3-5. Two dollars mutuels paid; Morvich, $4.40 straight, $4.30 place, $3.50 show.

Bet Mosie—$2.90 place, $2.70 show. John Finn—$6.00 show.

Morvich ran as if he outdistanced the field. He took the lead at the end of a furlong and was never in danger. Startle, My Play and Deadlock closed in early pursuit, making the race a close one. Bet Mosie was the strongest of the two and passed them in the close strides. Neither Letterman, Surf Rider or By Gosh showed the quality predicted.

although Bet Mosie, serving under the mounted police. Fully 10,000 persons gathered around the judge's stand while the floral horseshoe was hauled around the neck of the winner. The race meant $5000 to Jockey Johnson, and great fame.

In contrast was the fate of last year's winner, Charlie Thompson, now almost forgotten because he rode Behave Yourself to victory. Instead of letting his stable mate, Black Servant, win, as per instructions, Thompson was given the promised $5000 for winning and was promptly "canned" from the Bradley stable for failure to ride to orders.

Johnson probably will ride to further fame, with Morvich under him, in the many big engagements to which the colt is eligible.

Brief Speech by Owner. Gov. Morrow of Kentucky paid Benjamin Block happy by presenting him the $5000 gold plate that is part of the victor's reward. Owner Block made a brief speech to the crowd. A woman member of the Block party tore apart the floral offering and strewed the roses on the spectators beneath, causing a tremendous scramble for the souvenirs.

One of the amazing features of the race was the quickness of the mutuel betting. Morvich paid within 10 cents as much for place as he did to win, while his show money was

Cardinals Defeat Phils in Contest of Errors and Cut New York's Lead to 3 Games

Rickymen Twice Come From Behind, Aided by Opponents' Errors and Wildness of Jimmy Ring—Pertica and Winters, Relief Pitchers, Twirl Brilliantly in the Stretch

By J. Roy Stockton, Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

That first place margin of the New York Giants was reduced to three games yesterday afternoon by a combination of incidents which included the Chicago Cubs' shutout victory over the world's champions, Boston's defeat of the Pittsburgh Pirates and the Cardinals' hair-line decision over the Phillies, 6 to 5.

Misplays in the field, impotent batting and erratic pitching by Lou North almost gave the contest to the Quakertown team, but it was tired of victory, apparently, after its four straight triumphs over the Chicago Cubs and its defense and its pitching went to the demitition bow wows in the pinch and the Cardinals could do nothing else but win.

Having won such a game, in which they were able to get only five hits, and in which they made two errors in the first frame which contributed two runs to the Phillies, the Cardinals should have no trouble taking the rest of the series, if they can return to their normal hitting stride and if they can approximate the major league skill in their fielding.

Lee Meadows used to be a hard man to beat, but the Cardinals apparently solved him last year and their Sunday winning habit should aid Pfeffer in pitching his way to victory over his bespectacled opponent.

Like a Game of Rounders. Coming after the Giant series in which, with the exception of the last game, the fielding was brilliant to a degree, the contest yesterday was in such striking contrast that it was hard to believe that the teams could be in the same league. The Cardinals had on their holiday uniforms and the only thing they had from their everyday bag of tricks, apparently was their fighting spirit.

In the very first inning, with Phillies on second and third, an error spoiled a certain double play and gave the enemy a chance to push two runs over the plate. Lou North was not effective. Lehouveau, the first batter, "nicked" him for a single to left. Lou knocked down Rapp's hot bouncer and his throw to Toporcer fouled Lehouveau. Rapp stopped at third on Walker's line double against the right field fence and, then Williams lined to short. Toporcer got both hands on the ball, but must have tried to throw it before he had caught it. At any rate it fell from his hands and Rapp scored. Fletcher's single scored Walker with the second unearned run.

Ring Had No Support. But that was only half of the first inning. In the Cardinals' half Smith, first up, was safe on Parkinson's error and when Toporcer singled to right Walker scored and Rapp's head and Smith scored and Toporcer reached third. Stock walked and Hornsby sacrificed, after which Fourner sent a sacrifice fly Stock going to second. McHenry's double to right center scored Stock and put the Cards in front.

Jimmy Ring then settled down, so did his support, and the fifth, when they again came from behind with three runs which Ring and his non-supporting mates donated.

Fletcher's double and Leslie's single tied the score in the fourth and in the fifth the Phils had routed North and taken the lead by scoring two runs. Then came Ring's downfall.

Strategy Means Nothing. Ring could not find the plate and walked Smith and Toporcer to start the inning. Stock's infield out put the runners in scoring position, and Ring, as the Lloyd George of an infield conference, decided to walk Hornsby. It would have worked out fine, but Parkinson fumbled Fourner's grounder and Smith scored and the bases still were all occupied. Again a double play was put before the Phils, but Fletcher could not stop McHenry's hot grounder, and when it rolled past him for a single Toporcer and Hornsby scored. Fourner went to third on the hit and might have scored, but he failed to slide and was out a close play. Jack complained to Umpire Quigley that Rapp had interfered with him in his dash for the plate.

Thereafter both Pertica and Winters, who went to the hill for the Phils to start the sixth, were masters of the situation. Pertica did line a single to right, but no other Cardinal reached first in the sixth, seventh or eighth. Pertica also allowed one hit, only one man reaching first in four innings, starting with the sixth.

They Belong Near the Cellar. Those Phillies won't be far from the cellar when the season ends. They haven't a single star of the first rank, unless it be Meadows, and he can work only once in four days. Fletcher, once a star in the New York Giants' infield, is a veteran on the wrong side of his prime, and he sparkles only occasionally. Chicago must have been in a slump to lose four straight to the Phils.

The team was unusually devoid of brilliant fielding play. The nearest thing to the spectacular was Williams' catch of Anscomb's drive against the right center field fence.

Otherwise it was a drag game, made worth while only by the victory which, with other scores of the day, enabled the Cardinals to climb.

Cub Right-Hander Allows Seven Hits and Is Given Sensational Support.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, May 13.—Chicago broke its losing streak today by shutting out New York, 3 to 0 in the first game of the series here. The game was a pitching duel between Cheeves and Ryan, with the former having the better of the argument despite his wildness. Shinner's muck of O'Farrell's fly, a wild pitch and Cheeves' single gave the locals the first run, and they scored the other two when Jonnard filled the bases by walking two and hitting another, after which Friberg's single sent two runs home. Cheeves pitched wonderful ball in the pinches and was given sensational support, punctuated by three fast double plays.

Athletics Bunch Safeties In Two Innings and Trounce Browns in Second Game, 7-4

By Joseph F. Holland,
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

PHILADELPHIA, May 13.—Philadelphia Athletics defeated the Browns in the second game of the series, 7 to 4. The enemy hits were never without company. They came in bunches or they did not come at all. It was maximum profit at minimum cost.

Vangilder looked like Charlie Robertson for six of the eight innings. But in the third and eighth he acted like Ted "Kid" Lewis. The Athletics associated five hits and an error in the third to score five runs and win the game. In the eighth two more runs trickled over.

The defeat prevented the Browns from sharing first place with the Yankees who lost to Detroit in 13 innings. Home runs played a prominent part in the afternoon's endeavor. Four found their way into the box with two on each side of the ledger. George Sisler and Pinch Hitter Pat Collins of the Browns and Cy Perkins and "Bing" Miller of the Athletics hit the homer. The run raised the home-run count to 16 in two games.

McManus' First Error. The first two innings were fruitless. Galloway opened the third with a hot shot through Ellerbe for a hit. Rommel sacrificed him to second and then Young got a questionable single through McManus. "Doc" Johnston started the parade with a single to center that carried Galloway across. Tillie Walker slashed one to left and Young scored.

It was at this inopportune point that Marty McManus turned his first error of the season and he had handed 147 chances clearly. Cy Perkins rolled to Gerber for a promising double play. Walter tossed to McManus, forcing Walker but Marty threw far over Sisler's head. Johnston scoring and Perkins taking second. "Bing" Miller's second home run of the series followed and five runs went up on the score board.

There was some question as to whether Miller's drive settled in the bleachers. It rolled out into the playing field but Williams, whose back was turned to the plate, failed to see it.

Two More in the Eighth. For the next four innings not a man reached first but Young scored a junior offensive in the eighth by opening with a single to center. Johnston sacrificed and Walker fanned but Perkins' long liner to center bounded into the bleachers for a homer, adding 3 more runs.

Vangilder allowed only seven hits and they were all congregated in two innings. The Athletics did not take their half of the ninth so in six of the eight innings they batted. Vangilder held them hitless. It was a hard game to lose, especially so in view of the fact that Galloway's hit through Ellerbe and Young's ace through McManus were very nearly allied to the error column.

It so happened that the two Browns home runs came with the bases clear. Sisler shelled one over the right field fence to open the sixth for his second homer in two days. Pat Collins, who batted for Vangilder in the ninth, made the longest hit of the game with a terrific drive into the last row of the left field bleacher seats.

Ed Rommel, Mack's ace who has won his only two starts against the Yanks, was thumped soundly but wonderful support saved him in the pinches. Johnny Tobias lost three hits on wonderful fielding plays by Johnston, "Bing" Miller and Galloway. Miller also took a three-base hit away from Ellerbe with a catch at the bleacher wall in the second. Johnston intercepted Williams' throw with two men on base and two out in the seventh.

Davis to Hurl Tomorrow. "Dixie" Davis will pitch the final game of the series Monday with Bob Hasty or Rollie Naylor as an opponent. Tomorrow is an open date.

George Sisler got four out of five for the second successive day and has made ten hits in 14 times at bat in three games. The list includes two home runs, one double and seven singles.

"Chick" Shorten, who is playing for Bill Jacobson, has made three hits including a homer, in seven times at bat. Jacobson's injured hand is coming along nicely, but it is doubtful if he will play before the opening of the series at Boston Tuesday.

MILE LENGLEN WINNER IN FIRST ROUND OF HARD COURT TOURNEY. By the Associated Press. BRUSSELS, May 13.—Mlle. Susanne Lenglen came back in a sensational manner in the opening round of the international hard court tennis championship here today. She overwhelmed her opponent, Mlle. Vandeweyer, of Belgium, in the singles in two sets, occupying exactly 11 minutes, in the first set, and 10 minutes in the second.

The form displayed by Manuel Alonzo, the Spanish champion, who disposed of the Czech-Slovakian champion, Macenauer, without extending himself, was another feature of the opening day.

The numerous defaults and the absence of most of the American and all of the Australian representatives were deeply regretted by the organizers of the tournament as this detracted from the interest.

Dan Savage Will Assist O'Rourke

Coach Has Enjoyed Marked Success With St. Louis U. High Teams.

Dan Savage of the St. Louis University high school athletic world has been promoted to serve as assistant to Head Coach Steve O'Rourke of the Billiken varsity basketball team. Savage has played teams in the field in the various branches of sport which have built up the enviable record of seventy-eight victories out of seventy-eight starts. The basketball team representing the Junior Billikens have been regarded as the preparatory school champions for the last two seasons. It is understood that Savage will coach the line of the football squad in the preparation of the Billikens for next season and allow Joe McGinley, freshman coach, to devote his entire time to the yearling eleven. Savage assisted O'Rourke and McGinley in the preparation of the Billikens immediately prior to the Thanksgiving battle with Washington last season.

COMMITTEE NAMED TO OBTAIN NATIONAL MEET

According to an announcement made last night by Andrew B. Lynn, president of the St. Louis District Tennis Association, the following committee will make an effort to obtain the national clay court event for 1922:

Executive Committee: U. S. T. R. land M. Hoer, secretary Missouri Valley T. A.; Joseph Warner, St. Louis County Club; C. D. Hamilton, Triple A Club; Dempster Godlove, Tennis Empire Association; Davidson Ober, Proctor's Tennis Club; Rodoway Abeken, Park Department.

The purpose of this committee will be to get in touch with the officials of the United States Lawn Tennis Association during the coming season and present the reasons why St. Louis desires the clay court event of next year. A vote will be taken at the annual meeting of the national association next February. The committee will complete its work at that time.

Louisiana Wins Southern Track And Field Meet

Five New Conference Records Established by Dixie's Athletes.

BATON ROUGE, La., May 13.—Louisiana today captured the 1922 track championship of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association at the State Field here with a score of 53 points. Mississippi A. & M. was second with 46 1-3 points. Vanderbilt placed third with 18 points, and the University of South Carolina was fourth with 11 points.

Five new S. I. A. A. records were made this afternoon, in which athletes of Louisiana, South Carolina, Florida and Tennessee shared the honors. Capt. Shirley of Louisiana clipped one-fifth of a second off the 120-yard high hurdles record made by Claire of Kentucky State, making the high sticks in 15.2 seconds.

The pole vault, shotput, broad jump and javelin records went down before the array of Southern field athletes. Young and Ives of Louisiana, and Washington of Tennessee tied with 11 feet 3 1/2 inches in smashing the pole vault record, while Waite of South Carolina, with 176 feet six inches, broke the javelin record made by Butler of Louisiana of 174 feet 5 inches.

The mark of Newton of Florida in the broad jump of 22 feet 9 inches, made Friday, became the record, as no better marks were made in the finals.

Thornton of Louisiana, after breaking the shotput record with 42 feet 4 inches on Friday, came back today and broke his own record by hurling the shot 42 feet 10 1/2 inches, bettering his mark by 6 1/2 inches.

Shirley of Louisiana, with 111-2 points, was the high scorer of the day. Waite of South Carolina being second with 11 points. Helm of Louisiana was third with 10 points. 120-YARD HIGH HURDLES—Louisiana, Shirley, 15.2; South Carolina, Thornton, 15.4; Mississippi A. & M., 15.6; Tennessee, 15.8; Florida, 16.0.

Stymie Restored by Western Golf Body Officials

Association Can Now Work Hand in Hand With U. S. G. A. Committee.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, May 12.—The stymie in golf play was restored today by the Western Golf Association after several years of abolition, in order to have uniformity of golf rules throughout the world, and to lay the basis for an international committee on rules and regulations of the game to be placed the present plan of adhering to or reverting to the laws laid down by the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews.

The revolutionary action of the W. G. A. five years ago in abolishing the stymie has caused considerable turmoil in golfdom ever since. The stymie was ostracized largely at the instigation of Crafts W. Higgins, who was then assistant secretary in charge of tournaments and rules, and the action was taken at the last of many players, who declared the stymie a nuisance.

The tirade against the stymie, arising only when, in match play, a player's ball lies directly in the line of his opponent's putt, and more than six inches from the opponent's ball on the putting green, caused the States Golf Association to modify the plan, and finally to make a game virtually nullified. The Western Golf Association now has a stymie, and the action was taken at the last of many players, who declared the stymie a nuisance.

There was threat of an open breach between the Western and the United States Golf Associations over divergence in rules, but last winter a conference smoothed out the differences, which at one time had caused the Western to announce reorganization as a national body with intention of trying to supplant the U. S. G. A. as the ruling body in the United States.

S. G. A. undertook to allow the making of local rules that would permit the Western wanted as to balls, balls out of bounds and other matters, but the latter association agreed to rescind all its outlaw rules, except the stymie abolition.

President Albert R. Gates of the W. G. A. stood firm on the stymie, but the Western association decided that it was not wanted by majority. A long investigation showed, however, that the stymie was usually disregarded by agreement and in them the shot occurred seldom; and the officers of the W. G. A. decided to restore the stymie, so that friction would not longer exist.

This give and take by the bodies now brings them to a new basis of agreement. They are now for an international committee, composed of leaders in golf from all countries, to govern the rules of the game, and the Western association agreed to rescind all its outlaw rules, except the stymie abolition.

S. G. A. will further satisfy Western demands by making all stymie instead of having made a decision without a vote. It was decided that the Western Golf Association will drop all aspirations to become the game of golf in America.

Former Crown Prince, in His Memoirs, Declares Nobility Was Kaiser's Strongest Trait

Book, Written During His Exile in Holland,
Also Pays Tribute to His Mother and Wife;
Little Said About Americans in War.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

"I WILL write the pages which shall recall and arrange the past and shall bring me out of the turmoil into calmness and serenity. I will touch the half-faded remembrances, will give account of myself, of my own doings, wishes and omissions; will fix the truth concerning many important events whose outlines are seen at present by the world in a distorted and falsified picture. I will depict all events honestly and impartially, just as I see them."

So says William, formerly Crown Prince of Germany, in his memoirs, written in his exile in Holland, and just published by Charles Scribner's Sons. Most affectionately he writes of his mother, whose death afterward he deeply laments:

"I am particularly happy to know that in these painful times she is still, in misfortune, permitted to be the trusty helpmate to my severely tried father, as she was once in prosperity. I am grateful for the dispensation which has rendered it possible. She has been his best friend, self-sacrificing, earnest, pure, great in her goodness, perfect in her fidelity. As her son, I say it with ardent pride: she is the very pattern of a German wife whose best characteristics are seen in the fulfillment of her duties as wife and mother."

The once Crown Prince acknowledges the relations "between us children and our father were totally different. He was always friendly, and in his way, loving towards us; but by the nature of things, he had none too much time to devote to us."

"When I try to distinguish his deepest characteristic, a word forces itself upon my attention which I am almost shy to apply to any man of our day, a word which seems hollow and trite because, like some small coin, it is flung about so continually and thoughtlessly: it is the word 'ideal' (noble). The Kaiser is noble in the best sense of the word: he is full of the most upright desire for goodness and piety, and the purity of his intellectual cosmos is without a blemish and without a stain. Candor that makes no reservations, that is perhaps too unbounded in its nature, ready confidence and belief in the like trustworthiness and frankness on the part of others are the fundamental features of his character. It may be that, with all this unreserved and unrestrained self-expression, the passion for complete frankness which is implanted in every virtuous being, found in the Kaiser's strongest support in his evident overstatement of his momentary personal influence. I have a thousand times observed the effects of his personality to be indeed very great and have seen men of otherwise thoroughly independent habit fall an easy prey to his frequently fascinating, though perhaps only transitory, influence."

Scoffs at All Gossip.

William congratulates himself on having won for his wife Cecile, Duchess of Mecklenburg. He dismisses contemptuously all the gossip about the former Crown Princess and himself, writing:

"Shall I take any notice of all the nonsense that has been talked and written concerning my wedded life? I can say this: Whenever the newspapers printed such things as 'The Divorce of the Crown Prince Imminent,' my wife and I had a good laugh over the matter. What a craving for sensation possesses the public. I can only thank my wife from the bottom of my heart for having been to me the best and most faithful friend and companion, a tender helpmeet and mother, forbearing and forgiving in regard to many a fault, full of comprehension for what I am, holding to me unwaveringly in fortune and in distress. She has presented me with six healthy and dear children, whom I am proud of with all my heart."

The former Crown Prince denies strongly that "Hindenburg played little more than a decorative part beside Gen. Ludendorff," but he says: "I am filled with gratitude by the remembrance of the friendliness and attention with which Gen. Ludendorff listened to the views and wishes of one so much younger than himself, and did all he could to meet the demands which he recognized as justified."

Heavy Firing of Americans.

The Hohenzollern has not much to say about the American soldiers or their part in the war. He writes, however:

"On Sept. 28 (1918) I visited my brother, Fritz, who, with his division, was engaged in severe combat with the Americans at the eastern extremity of the Argonne. He gave me a description of the situation, which filled me with dismay. His entire division consisted of 500 rifles in the fighting zone; the staff with their dispatch carriers were fighting in the front line, rifle in hand. The artillerymen were extremely fatigued, the rations were insufficient and bad, what was to come of it all. The American attacks were in themselves badly planned; they showed ignorance of warfare, the men advanced in columns and were mowed down by our remaining machine guns. No great danger lay there, but their tanks pierced our thin lines—one man every 20 meters—and fired on us from behind. Withal the Americans had at their disposal an incredible quantity of heavy and very heavy artillery. Their preliminary firing greatly exceeded in intensity and heaviness anything we had known at Versailles and on the Somme."

Looked to Wilson for Help.

The former Crown Prince quotes in his memoirs a page from his diary, in which he wrote:

"A military humiliation of Germany is not aimed at by Wilson. Foch, on the other hand, wishes with every means possible to effect a complete military capitulation and humiliation (gratification of French revenge). Which of the two will get the upper hand depends solely and simply upon Germany. If the front holds out and we preserve a dignified and diplomatic attitude, Wilson will win. Yielding to Foch means the destruction of Germany and the miscarriage of every prospect of an enduring peace."

On this he comments: "What was written above about Wilson was, at the moment for which it was intended, perhaps quite correct; but it was soon no longer so. Still, I could believe that even now the self-complacent theorist wanted, at first, to settle matters justly and conscientiously—till a stronger and more cunning man caught him and, with ironic superiority harnessed him to his own chariot."

the day. Half the prison yard is reserved for him when he exercises and his diet is the same to which he is accustomed, consisting of goat's milk, bread, oranges, lemons, sugar, tea and raisins.

Ghandi took his own supply of raisins with him to prison, and when this was exhausted a fresh stock was supplied by the prison authorities. The prisoner has not requested newspapers, but retains some of his private books. It is said that he expressed to the Inspector-General of Prisons his satisfaction of the treatment accorded and said he desired that his prison life be not discussed by the newspapers.

INQUIRY SHOWS CHARGE THAT HOOVER SABOTAGED RUSSIAN RELIEF FALSE

Investigation Following Capt. Hibben's Criticism Reveals That Hundreds of Thousands of Tons of Food Was Unloaded in Russian Ports Twice as Fast as Independent Railroad Service Could Move It to Starving People.

By WALTER LIPPMANN,
Of the Editorial Staff of the New York World.

NEW YORK, May 13. IN the fight against the Russian famine Herbert Hoover has been the trustee of the conscience of the American people. On his leadership, on his judgment, on the efficiency of his organization, called the American Relief Administration, it has depended whether America did its full possible duty in one of the most terrible tragedies of modern history.

For several months Mr. Hoover's work in Russia has been under criticism. The charge has been made, and is today being widely circulated, that Mr. Hoover has been sabotaging the work of feeding the starving people of the Volga famine area.

It has been said in public meeting in New York City by Capt. Paxton Hibben that, "if one wanted to do it, one could deliver 10,000 tons of food a day to the Volga famine region, and 10,000 tons of food a day would mean the saving of the lives of 17,500,000 people instead of 1,250,000 who are all that are being fed by the American Relief today."

"This charge was made on Jan. 21, 1922. No accusation could be more terrible, for Capt. Hibben says that millions of people are not being saved who could be saved, 'if one wanted to do it.'"

Mr. Hoover realized the gravity of the charge, for on Feb. 3 he wrote to Capt. Hibben saying he did not consider it a "compliment for you to express intense fear that I shall commit murder."

I have spent a good many weeks investigating that intense fear. I found pretty quickly that the whole campaign against Mr. Hoover rests squarely upon Capt. Hibben's assertions. The charge that there is sabotage is believed today among the more active friends of the Soviet government in America. But the will to believe existed before Capt. Hibben appeared on the scene. It existed because of Mr. Hoover's well known opposition to the Bolshevik Government and was greatly strengthened by the publication in a magazine of an article by one of Mr. Hoover's former men, Capt. Gregory. Capt. Gregory boasted that he helped overthrow the communist regime in Hungary. It was admittedly disgraceful that he mixed charity and politics, and the incident, though disavowed, has been hard to live down. The memory of it prepared a great many liberals and radicals in this country to believe the worst about Mr. Hoover in Russia.

Other Disagreements Reported

On top of this there came, early in the summer reports of disagreement between the Quakers and Mr. Hoover. The disagreement was not serious, but rumor made it very serious. That controversy, whatever its merits, has long since been settled amicably, and the co-operation in Russia between the Friends and Mr. Hoover's men is very close. But the rumor of that controversy has lived on. Mr. Hoover appears in the rumor as a dictatorial person seeking to concentrate all the power in his own hands. This view of Mr. Hoover amalgamated with the memory of Capt. Gregory's exploits in Hungary and with Mr. Hoover's opposition as a cabinet officer to peace with Russia. The combination was strong enough to create an enormous prejudice in favor of anyone who would bring facts and figures to show that Mr. Hoover was sabotaging the Russian relief.

Capt. Hibben brought facts and figures. He had been actively engaged in the work of the Near Eastern Relief for some time. He went to Russia in the early autumn as secretary of the Russian Commission of the Near Eastern Relief. He had been over the ground, and when he returned to this country he made the speech at a luncheon of the foreign policies association from which I have already quoted. In that speech he named ports and quoted statistics and made a deep impression because of his standing as an expert in relief and his first-hand investigation of conditions.

Founded on Hibben Charges

Ever since, the whole criticism of Mr. Hoover has drawn its authority, its facts, its point, from Capt. Hibben, who is now secretary of the Russian Red Cross Commission in this country. What he says is the whole of the charge of Mr. Hoover's critics. On his facts they stand or fall, because admittedly he alone has any direct knowledge of the Russian famine. In investigating the statements against Mr.

HERBERT HOOVER.

Hoover I went to the offices of the American Relief Administration armed with speeches, letters and articles by Capt. Hibben. This material centered on two matters of policy. Mr. Hoover's program for the raising of funds in the United States and Hoover's program for the transportation of food from the United States into the actual famine districts. Capt. Hibben makes charges on both points. He says Mr. Hoover has discouraged the collection of money and that he has not put as much food into Russia as he might have done.

The staff of the American Relief Administration then drew up a reply on both points, calling broadly for data of all kinds. When this reply was ready we held a meeting in the A. R. A. offices, at which Capt. Hibben was present. We went over the administration facts and the Hibben facts. We argued, on the whole calmly, for three and a half hours. We decided to cable to certain additional facts. I wish now to lay the case before the readers of the Post-Dispatch, asking them to remember the tremendous seriousness of the matter. The controversy is over a question of life and death to thousands and perhaps millions of people, as well as over the honor of Mr. Hoover and of the American nation.

On July 13 Maxim Gorky appealed to the world for aid in fighting the famine. On July 23 Mr. Hoover replied, offering to extend relief provided the Soviet government accepted certain conditions which have always applied to American relief work in the past. On July 28 the Russian government agreed to negotiate, and on Aug. 29 an agreement was signed at Riga between Walter Lyman Brown and Maxim Litvinoff. The first American relief ship sailed from Hamburg for Petrograd on Aug. 25. By Aug. 29 the A. R. A. had opened headquarters in Moscow. By Sept. 21 Col. Haskell had arrived to take charge of relief operations.

Two Policies to Decide

Two major policies had to be decided. Mr. Hoover in America had to decide how he would raise money. The Americans and the Soviet officials in Europe had to decide which ports and railroad lines were available for moving supplies to the famine district.

Mr. Hoover's financial policy was as follows: He had about $10,000,000 unexpended balance available for child feeding. He wanted at least $30,000,000 more. How should he go about raising it? Should he organize a "drive" or appeal to the Government. This was last autumn and the country was in the pit of the business depression with an estimated unemployment of perhaps 5,000,000 people. Mr. Hoover decided that a drive for such a large sum would fail and that he must go to the Government. Here the prospects were more favorable. The farmers had unsold crops on their hands and a congressional appropriation would help them as well as the Russians. President Harding asked for $10,000,000. Congress raised it, on Mr. Hoover's plea, to Hibben, Upon Whose Statement Great Controversy Rested, Estimated 2700 Tons Could Be Transported to Interior Daily; Actual Accomplishment Was Removal of 970 Tons, Showing Fault Was With Soviet Transportation.

$20,000,000. Mr. Hoover also went after the Russian Government and got from it $10,000,000 in gold and $2,000,000 from the Soviet government in the Ukraine. He now had $42,000,000. Congress also appropriated $4,000,000 worth of surplus medical supplies, and the American Red Cross, $3,600,000 of medical supplies. Mr. Hoover now had $49,600,000. From other sources, including the churches, the Y. M. C. A., the Jewish Joint Distribution Committee and individual contributors there came another $12,000,000 or so. Mr. Hoover knew that the Soviet government itself would make purchases abroad and that there were some funds being raised in Europe as well as in the United States by non-co-operating organizations like the Friends of Soviet Russia.

Said He Couldn't Move Goods

Perhaps $60,000,000 in all was in sight by the new year. And then Mr. Hoover took the position that he had as much money as he could use before the harvest this summer (1922). He refused to make further appeals on the ground that it was useless to ask the American people for money to buy goods that could not be moved into Russia.

It was here that the controversy broke out. Capt. Hibben came forward and said he knew of his own personal knowledge that Mr. Hoover could put more food into Russia than he was planning to put, if only Mr. Hoover wished to do so. Mr. Hoover denied it and asserted that the Russian transportation system would be overtaken by the present program. Capt. Hibben said that he knew better. Every thing turns on the question of transportation. Let us look at the facts.

There are two sets of harbors that can be used, those on the Baltic and those on the Black Sea. During 1921 no ships sailed for Black Sea ports and the rumor circulated that Mr. Hoover had deliberately forgotten the Black Sea or had deliberately neglected it. The facts are quite different. As early as Aug. 8 Mr. Hoover called proposing to use Black Sea ports. On Aug. 15 the Soviet authorities replied, saying it was doubtful whether the southern ports could handle shipments. A week later came another cable on the authority of Litvinoff saying that Odessa was impossible because of brigandage and bad communications, that the Asov ports were too shallow, owing to silting. Only the port of Novorossiysk was usable. Two days later Hoover cabled again, urging the use of Black Sea ports, and four days later came another reply from Litvinoff saying that only Novorossiysk was possible.

Just about the same time Capt. Hibben was in Russia investigating the famine. I have his report. He recommends two Black Sea ports, Novorossiysk and Rostov-on-Don. But Rostov, he says, will freeze up by Dec. 15. Thus, while Capt. Hibben was in Russia he took the same view as everyone else on the spot last autumn, that there was one Black Sea port, namely, Novorossiysk.

Hibben Named Nine Ports

But Capt. Hibben, writing for Soviet Russia, took a different view. He named nine Black Sea ports that were possible. He criticized Mr. Hoover heavily for not using all nine. In the meantime the Americans in Russia and the Soviet officials had begun to use three Black Sea ports, Novorossiysk, Odessa and Theodosia. There are two aspects to this thing which we must consider separately. First, there is the question of how many tons each port is capable of handling, and, second, the question of whether more could be handled by using more ports.

Let us confine ourselves for the moment to Novorossiysk, which everyone agreed was available. Capt. Hibben states that 2700 tons daily can be moved from Novorossiysk. What has actually been done? Up to March 16, 79,171 tons had arrived in ships, 69,221 tons had been discharged and 46,599 tons had actually been moved out on railroad trains. Of the food that had arrived, a little less than three fifths had started on its way to the famine area. The daily average is 970 tons. Capt. Hibben's estimate is 2700 tons, almost three times the actual accomplishment. Incidentally, the official Soviet estimate falls about half way between the Hibben estimate and the actual fact. (It is 1639 metric tons).

For all Black Sea ports Capt. Hibben gives an estimate of 19,000 tons daily. The actual accomplishment up to March 26 is 3193 tons daily. Capt. Hibben rates the capacity of Novorossiysk 3 times Ceaseless Wrangling About the Diplomatic Green Table.

GENOA, May 8.

MUCH that has not been accomplished around the green table at Genoa has been accomplished around the white. This is the way one of the German experts, leaving for home expresses it.

"In economic and financial discussions I have always felt it was unreal and academic, but when I sat down to dinner with men from 20 different countries the conference meant something to me."

Genoa has broken in upon German and Russian isolation. They are back in the world morally. Even the Rapallo treaty, which may have given the conference a shove toward a bad end, made the Germans and Russians feel they were free agents once more.

New State of Mind.

Perhaps they both needed to express their independence of action in some such defiant manner, so as to give themselves again the necessary dignity to deal on terms of equality with other nations. The conference has done that, whatever it fails to do.

Premier Benes of Czechoslovakia told me in Prague before the conference that he expected little because he did not wish to be disappointed. But neither he nor anyone else is going to accomplish here what he wanted. Still, something unexpected has been done.

The conference has brought to an end the nasty period which followed the war—the period where every country stuck bayonets in each other's faces. Whether there is a nonaggression pact or not, aggression cannot morally occur on the basis of the old war. There must be a new war to justify it.

So Russia, despite herself, is herself again. The best work here has passed almost unnoticed, such as the agreement of mutual confidence reached by the Transportation Commission. Under this agreement all countries are obliged to let freight cars pass across Europe without holding any hostage cars to insure getting their own back.

Previous conferences at Barcelona and Porto Rosa tried to bring Europe back to this pre-war confidence, but Genoa was needed to register their decisions and make them effective.

This might seem a small detail, but it is symptomatic. Genoa has tried to cure the people of the war state of mind, to end the war psychology. It was done much more to achieve this result than can readily be seen across four weeks of political wrangling.

Shows Independence.

The Financial Commission did a similar piece of moral work. It proved that Europe lives or falls together. It proved that every country is interested in its neighbor's currency. The conference of banks of issue at London, which will be a definite result of this conference, will divide Europe into first, second and third class countries. The New Poland and the Old Austria will be in the same category. Germany and France will be in the same. It looks at Europe along another angle. This makes all the difference in the world to all the peoples living east of the Rhine.

If Genoa breaks tomorrow in anger it has done its principal task; it has changed the atmosphere. Also, any country which keeps its banknote presses going full blast knows it is an economic sinner. The struggle to get back to solvency has been a character builder.

These things may seem vague in America. To those living in Central Europe, where dwell most of the sinners, the reform is real. Many delegates who found themselves kicking their heels against the rocks and looking at the Mediterranean for a month to spend 10 minutes before some economic subcommittee, are going to find, in retrospect, that their words are heeded.

But its good influence will slough off if this conference ends without leaving permanent commissions to make the liaison to another conference. The danger is that political disgust will be so great that the idea of another conference will be dis-

Conference Undercurrents.

It started as a full-fledged conference and is ending as a preconference. Two vital questions needed to be settled first; neither has been settled and their presence at Genoa has made all the trouble.

First, the German reparations had to have a satisfactory settlement, if such was possible. From the day the conference opened the reparations question has been seething under the surface. It led to distrust between the British and French which quickly grew into open suspicion over Russia. Perhaps it was necessarily threshed out here, but once the question came up at Genoa any big political results were hopeless.

Economists and financiers worked feverishly to shove through their plans and get plenary sessions together to ratify them, because they knew the conference was full of political dynamite. Most of these economists and financiers are now gone. They put through what they wanted and got away before the political storm broke.

The Germans, wittingly supported by the neutrals, forced the reparations question to be settled in another way. When the banks of issue met at London they are bound to force Germany not to buy gold values abroad to pay reparations. It is plain as the nose on a man's face to the financiers that nothing can be ameliorated until they stop Germany's disastrous purchases. The neutrals were bent on stopping them. As things stand they, not Germany, have paid the reparations.

The other question which needed settlement at the start was the attitude toward foreign property that has been nationalized in Russia. It is inconceivable here how France, Belgium and England understood one another's attitude towards private property in Russia" so little as to cause the biggest crisis over Belgium's refusal to accept less than full titles to such property. A deadlock was obvious.

Card in British Sleeve.

The truth is that they all knew this, but the British thought they could force France and Belgium into line. Both came unwillingly, skeptically, to deal with the bolsheviks. Both still believe nothing is possible while the Soviets continue in power. Thus it is inevitable that Japsar and Tchitcherine stubbornly stand by their conception of property.

The Belgians and the French must either decide to throw their old stakes into the pot, like the British, and see what they can pull out in the future or the Soviets will sign up with country after country, until France and Belgium stand isolated—robbed, in their view.

The British say they will get their stakes back in another way. A century of empire building has taught them to steal something bigger every time they are robbed. They have got a hold on Russian oil no one can shake. What they have lost is nothing compared with this gain.

The French and Belgians weary them with petty property rights, for they are used to swallowing whole countries. The Soviets have laid themselves out to be looted in a big way. They offer tempting empires which the British intend to get either today, with their narrow-minded friends, or tomorrow, alone.

Watch Lloyd George.

This has been under the surface throughout the conference, but it was only when the news leaked out that it became a fact.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM.

I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight demagogues of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunderers, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news, always be drastically independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory monopoly or predatory poverty.

Stop the Floods.

CUT a canal from the Tennessee River, Florence, Ala., to the Tombigbee River, above Aberdeen, Miss. Send the excess and flood waters through the Tombigbee and Alabama rivers to the Gulf via Mobile, Ala. Seven hundred miles shorter route than via Cairo, Memphis and New Orleans. Save Chattanooga and other cities and towns with thousands of farms on the Tennessee and Mississippi rivers, from inundation. The Tennessee River at Florence is 600 feet above sea level. The Tombigbee River at Aberdeen, Miss., is only 33 feet. There is very little rock en route after leaving Florence. The canal would add volume of water to the Tombigbee, the Alabama and Warrior rivers to help to bring down coal from Birmingham to Mobile, Pensacola, Tampa and New Orleans. It would in time place St. Louis in steamboat connection with Aberdeen, Columbus, Seaside, Denopolis, Mobile (for export) and with Montgomery and Birmingham. The canal would open to St. Louis by water route one of the richest undeveloped sections of the country.

Cut a canal from the Red River below Shreveport, La., to the Sabine River, near Lakeport, La., send the excess and flood waters of the Red River through the Sabine River to the Gulf via Port Arthur, Tex., 247 miles shorter route than via Vicksburg and New Orleans. This canal would relieve the Ouachita (Wash-er-law) and other rivers below Shreveport. Every great flood costs the valley at least $50,000,000. The canal would not cost one-tenth of one great flood and are the only permanent way to prevent floods. St. Louis is a heavy loser by the floods.

Speed the Cause.

I AM glad to see your ideas and recommendations on Federal encroachment on states and state rights, and your advocacy of a return to first principles and the separation of powers, of the functions of the central or Federal Government in its relations to the several states of March 19th, taking on concrete form. I speed the cause and movement. ELMER F. WILLIAMS, Terre Haute, Ind.

Oh, Sugar!

IN 1892 the United States Government paid a bonus of $1 per pound on tin plate manufactured in the United States and also placed a tax of $1 per pound on importations of tin plate into the United States, while it exempted from such tax works of art made in foreign countries. We never had a tin mine in the United States, so for a long period it was quite a puzzle to the national authorities to discover how such a large amount of crude tin "ore" was in the United States to make tin plate from. A public philanthropist, whose statue adorns one of our parks was fined $250,000 by the Government for discovering the formula which was to make works of art from crude tin in foreign countries, export the same into the United States as a non-taxable product, manufacture the same after melting into tin plate and secure the subsidy of $1 per pound from a beneficent Government.

At the present time some of our national statesmen in the United States Senate, notably from Louisiana and Utah, are endeavoring to sneak Cuban sugar with such an onerous tariff as to keep it out of the United States "in order to protect our infant American industries, such as cane sugar in Utah and beet sugar in Louisiana," while, as a matter of record, hard-boiled statistics can be produced to show that no beet sugar is made in Louisiana, and no cane sugar in Utah although $2,500,000 pounds of sugar was shipped from the United States to foreign countries for the year ending June 30, 1921, at a far greater price per pound than we of the canille are paying for it in this country at the present time.

The question naturally arises, if Cuban sugar be taxed to keep it out of the country, where will the millions of pounds that we export in the future come from if Utah manufactures no cane sugar and Louisiana no beet sugar?

Peggy and the Papers.

I READ an article in the paper recently that France had barred Peggy Joyce for 20 years. France cannot be blamed for such action, for this notorious woman is surely an undesirable citizen. But it is the newspapers that are responsible for this woman's power for evil. Why do the papers give so much space to Peggy Joyce—to what she says, to the idiotic things she says, to her amours and intrigues? If the papers dropped Peggy Joyce it would be the end of her. And what a relief it would be to the public.

Public Willing Pays.

IN answer to M. V.'s letter, I doubt very much that there will be a reduction in the movie prices as long as the public is willing to pay present admission to the shows without complaint.

J. G.

THE PUBLIC'S SHORT MEMORY.

Secretary Hoover is losing no opportunity to give public support to the bill introduced by Senator Edge to amend the Clayton antitrust act so as to exempt trade associations and similar combinations from its operation and confide to a board the power to communicate or to grant indulgences to them, according as they are found to be bad or good trusts. Apparently the Secretary of Commerce is the real author of the measure and if he is not making progress he has at least encountered little opposition.

Nothing shows quite so markedly the lethargy and indifference characteristic of the American people toward governmental measures at this time as the almost complete lack of interest manifested toward this measure. We have only to turn back a few years to observe the change with respect to this very subject. In 1907 the Steel Corporation, known as a good trust, planned to absorb one of its rivals, the Tennessee Coal and Iron Co. It was publicly charged that before closing the deal the Steel Corporation officials had procured assurances from President Roosevelt that the absorption did not violate the antitrust laws and that there would be no prosecution. The idea of any executive officer giving an "immunity bath" and attempting thus to suspend the law in favor of a particular combination, aroused general indignation. The case was considered a public scandal.

Yet Mr. Hoover's plan is now to adopt this principle universally, by clothing a group of three or five men with the power of life and death over all of the associations and combinations in the country. Presumably the board will be composed of honest men, but there is no certainty that corrupt men will not sit upon it. What an engine for an unscrupulous executive bent upon perpetuating himself and his party in power! What unlimited opportunity to exact campaign contributions and even personal rewards for privileges bestowed!

The vice of the principle lies in the fact that it would set aside thoroughly litigated and settled rules of law of general application and substitute the self-made and capricious rules of a small body of men as guides of conduct; actually a control of trusts by men rather than by law, that must sooner or later result in corruption and oppression.

Aside from the adoption of that vicious principle such a plan would render the states powerless to protect themselves against any combination that had been given a Federal certificate of character. Today the states can dissolve their domestic pools and trusts and revoke the licenses and oust those coming from without. Adopt the Edge bill and local redress vanishes; the states must then go to Washington to plead with a Federal board for relief against an organization empowered to plunder their people.

There is but one safe way to deal with trusts and conspiracies and that is under the principles of the common law, applicable to all alike, without fear or favor.

ONE REED MISTAKE.

The less Senator Reed says about his opposition to the repeal of the Panama tolls the better. Of course, his flash phrase about never consenting to the planting of "the Union Jack on the Panama Canal" is pure buncombe. It is just a fling at the honorable Americans who believed that the United States should stand by her treaty obligations.

Mr. Wilson urged the repeal of the act because he was convinced that the measure discriminating in favor of American shipping was contrary to our agreement with Great Britain, embodied in the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, not to discriminate. His opinion was shared by the best leaders—statesmen and lawyers—of both parties. He insisted that the United States be faithful to its obligations despite the plank in the Democratic platform favoring free passage for American shipping.

Mr. Wilson saw the path of honor for America and followed it. He did what Senator Reed praises in himself, followed his conviction of right and honor and won the support of his course by a majority of Congress. This is one of the policies of Mr. Wilson that reflect the highest credit upon his courage, character and judgment. It was convincing proof to the world that America held treaty obligations sacred and that a treaty with the United States is not "a scrap of paper."

A SPORTING PROPOSITION.

If Congress has any sporting blood in its veins at all it will appropriate the $500,000 Attorney-General Daugherty wants with which to prosecute the war fraud cases. Uncle Sam stands to recover $12,000,000 in this litigation, Mr. Daugherty says. We have then what might be called a straight tip on a 400-to-1 shot to win.

That betting is a wicked pastime is not debatable. But look at the percentage! Consider, too, how badly Uncle Sam needs the money. And ponder also the political advantage in making those conscienceless scoundrels yield up the ill-gotten gains they accumulated under a Democratic administration. To hold that the end justifies the means is a sinister philosophy, but there are exceptions even to that rule. And the chance to make such a killing with so small a wager is a rare, bewitching, irresistible exception.

Russia is rapidly becoming liberalized. Mercantile business has ceased to be a crime.

"THE MONTEQUIEU DOCTRINE."

Students of American constitutional history have been taught for more than a century that one of the chief glories of our self-governing system was that we had discovered and applied the principle of separation of the legislative, executive and judicial powers, so that never with us could an official be law maker, judge and executioner, as were the rulers of our English ancestors.

We now learn from Attorney-General Daugherty that this is a fallacy, or, at least, that the principle is obsolete. In an opinion to the Senate on whether or not a Senator and a Congressman can accept office as members of the Allied Debt Commission, created during their terms, the Attorney-General not only sweeps aside section 6 of Article I of the Constitution, but adds:

It has long since been found impracticable to apply the Montesquieu doctrine as to the separation of the government into three distinct and independent departments in all its literal force. The Constitution is to function.

This great principle, drawn from the sufferings of our forefathers under centuries of English tyranny, is thus disparagingly referred to as the "Montesquieu doctrine," as though it were something utterly foreign to us. It is true that it made its first written appearance in the Virginia Bill of Rights of 1776, but from much earlier times we had practiced it as a settled principle. In 1780 it became a part of the great Massachusetts Bill of Rights, in these famous words:

In the government of this Commonwealth, the legislative department shall never exercise the executive and judicial powers, or either of them; the executive shall never exercise the legislative and judicial powers, or either of them; the judicial shall never exercise the legislative and executive powers, or either of them; to the end that the separation of these powers be forever preserved.

The last 10 words of this declaration, Daniel Webster declared, were the greatest words contained in any written constitutional document.

The truth of the matter is the same old truth, known to the Stuarts and the Tudors, that this principle stands in the way of consolidating and centralizing all power in a single ruler, which the Attorney-General describes by the euphemism "co-ordination."

WAIST-DEEP IN MAY.

We are now waist-deep in May. Its beauty and promised bounty are entrancing. It has a sacramental splendor. At the shrine of its "greenest growth" one worships instinctively. The passing glance of the motorist, absorbed in his hurried intent, is an unspoken prayer. He cannot miss the glory, the massed rapture. There are countless messages and blithe greetings even for him. The scarlet tanager flashes a gay hello. The oriole, debonairly jacketed in orange and black, waves a salute. The yellow-breasted chat mockingly comments on his foolish haste, and as he speeds along the motorist may catch the fragrance of a honey locust tree in bloom and, perhaps, behold a wistaria vine spreading its affectionate purple over a smiling elm.

To hold true communion with the May though, one must search for its secrets. There are violets, white and yellow as well as purple, to be found for the looking; there are white-flowered dewberry trails, and in cozy, grassy beds the virgin white of the wild strawberry's blossom.

The gold and purple of the spiderwort are lavished almost wantonly in open spaces but far in the seclusion of hallowed slopes, and well worth the pilgrimage, one may even now come upon the pink of the wild rose heralding, as it were, the approach of June. If one is fortunate he may hear in the cloistered silence the silver note of the myrtle warbler who is conducting a swift search and seizure among the tree tops before resuming his northward journey. In the far green spaces, too, the ruby-throated hummingbird contributes an iridescent instant and is gone. And if one dines properly and is a person of good will the brown thrasher, from a commanding height, will melodiously approve the seemly guest's presence. That same fine bird will sometimes come forth at midnight to sing a stave to the bland old moon. A word of acknowledgment, too, to the little energetic indigo bunting, spirit of a warrior under his green coat, whose carol often enlivens the hignoon's burning brilliance.

A matchless earth under the bowl of marvelous turquoise sky. The caressing tenderness of a May dawn or the spell of a Maytime night is as "rare as a day in June."

Three hundred vigilantes will watch for reckless drivers. And they won't need to watch long without getting an eyeful.

SAVE THE BABIES.

The eighteenth season of the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund formally opens today and the work of raising a minimum fund of $10,000 to provide pure milk and free ice for the little ones of the tenement districts begins.

That there is great need for continued concerted efforts in behalf of the poor children is indicated by the fact that while our infant mortality for 1921 was 61 per 1000, the death rate for adults was 12 per 1000. It is terrible to think that for every 12 grown-up persons in St. Louis who die, over five times as many babies must be sacrificed to the Grim Reaper. It is not necessary. And it is in very large measure due to poverty, neglect and ignorance, which result in bad or insufficient food. For babies this means milk. It is imperative that children should be supplied with pure milk, and the small cube of ice necessary daily to keep the milk sweet may spell the difference between sickness and health, death and life, for the infants in our congested districts.

The St. Louis Pure Milk Commission, through which the Post-Dispatch Milk and Ice Fund administers the milk provided by the contributors to the fund for the babies, again faces the summer's work with a deficit of $1500, and friends of the babies have undertaken to meet that obligation in addition to the customary season's work. At least $10,000 will be needed to do this. St. Louis has responded so promptly and cheerfully to similar calls in the past that it surely will not fail to aid once more in the movement which has for its sole object the saving of the children of the poor from sickness and death. The Post-Dispatch pays all administration expenses of the fund and every penny received goes for the relief of the babies. Send your donation to the cashier of the Post-Dispatch. All will be acknowledged in our columns.

It may safely be predicted, too, that as candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania Gifford Pinchot will have the unanimous support of several members of the Committee of Forty-eight.

FRACTIONAL LOVE.

Dr. David Forsythe, psychoanalyst, may have thought he was contributing to the singleness of love and the happiness of homes when he gave it as his scientific conclusion that man is incapable of being "head over heels" in love with more than one woman at a time. But he did not stop there. He declared that a man can be half in love with two women, one-sixth in love with six women, one-twelfth in love with twelve women, and so on, we presume, ad infinitum.

This intelligence of the fractional nature of love, we fear, will be disturbing to jealous wives. From Dr. Forsythe's analysis it is only logical to infer that every man is two-halves, six-sixths or twelve-twelfths in love with some one or several charmers. Many women have to be content with a modest portion of conjugal sentiment. But, having one-sixth of a man's heart, how can she avoid suspecting, under the Forsythe system, that some other one, two or five women are pre-empting the other five-sixths? What a thought for melodrama! And what a vindication for the alleged loveless man who may, after all, be a millionth in love with a million!

If they don't quit accusing Mr. Daugherty of conniving in the protection of malefactors he is going to get awfully mad, and the malefactors will feel the consequences.

IT CAN'T BE DONE.

HOW ODDIOUS, INDEED!

SOME comparisons of American and English literature are manifestly unfair to this country. Whereas we get only Europe's best, our English literature is the worst of the world. No doubt England has novelists as bad as Mrs. Stratton-Porter and rhymesters as impossible as Edgar A. Guest—we simply do not hear of them. Which reminds us to present the following work of art:

A CAN OF STEW.

By the People's Poet.

Gertie made a can of stew.
Through the vapors of the brew,
Peering dumbly at her head—
"Make it hot for me," I said.

Years have passed, but still I see Gertie glaring back at me;
And I've read in Kismet's book
This grim line: "Don't razz the cook!"

Life is like a can of stew,
And whatever had to be—
Gert had made it hot for me.

While the foregoing poem is not copyrighted, we trust others will recognize the fact that we furnish hay and stable room to the People's Poet, and hence are exclusively entitled to his products.

PAUL Y. ANDERSON.

Sir: The Globe-Democrat, in giving the details of a program for a meeting of the Society of St. Louis Authors, gravely announces an address by "William Vincent Byars, 'Shakespeare, the Man of Chicago.'" With all due respect to the literary scholarship of St. Louis authors, believe me even Mr. Byars will have a tough time proving that Shakespeare ever had anything to do with Chicago either as a man or as a self-respecting poet. That's a point the Romans must have overlooked, nor can we let Chicago get away with it, either.

BERNARD GRUENSTEIN.

A New York Judge has decided that interlocking directorates are all right after all. The eagerness to discover the point at which we went astray is so great in most quarters that it amounts to a general amnesty for all things formerly proscribed.

A Southern editor says something finally has been found that takes winestains out of table linen. It is prohibition.

BVD-12: On Wednesday an automobile ran through the front window of a drug store at Grand and Kosuth avenues. Now the drugstore has this sign on what is left of his glass front:

Many new surprises will greet our guests this season.

IN WHICH TIMES SHOW A FLASH OF HIS OLD TIME FORM.

(Moore County, N.C. Appeal.)

Don't tell us that normalcy is not here. A gentlemanly agent presented us with two sample plugs of tobacco last Friday. Just like they used to do in the good old days when a nickel had some value in a village store.

Joannette Rankin says we will have a woman President within 20 years, which will encourage our political prisoners to keep on hoping.

FAITH.

Seest thou a bigot wedded to whatever kind of a faith? There is more hope of a fool than of him. For his mind is impervious to reason; he sees one thing only: it is as though the "blind spot" in his eye had been empowered with a strange new vision while all the rest of the eye became sightless. He says, Credo quia impossibile est—I believe because it is impossible. He says to a mountain, be removed and be cast into the sea! But the mountain remains steadfast. So, after science has tunneled it he goes through the mountain and exultingly exclaims, Behold what I have done!

To him the Record of the Rocks is a closed book. A fossil brachiopod has no significance for him; it is simply a lusus naturae—a sport of nature. Do not hope to suddenly reason him out of his faith, and especially do not try to persuade him by force; his faith is a part of his life; he will lie for it, he will die for it. It inspires the Mohammedan to kill the unbelieving dog of a Christian, and it inspires the Christian to gladly die rather than yield a jot to Antichrist.

The characteristic of faith is fixidity; it shies at change and hence at progress, for progress is impossible without change. It is the most persistent most unchanging, most dangerous, most underhanded thing in the world.

Faith usually rides a hobby and usually rides it to death.

Faith is hardly ever pure; it is usually mingled with ignorance, fear, and in such cases is either passively worthless or, actively, may become very harmful. But when it is allied with hope, truth and love for fellow men, it rises to sublime heights.

There is nothing more touching than the faith of a child. When little Cosette takes the hand of big Jean Valjean (whom she has never before seen) and trustfully walks by his side, you have a good illustration of what our faith in God should be.

An old college song runs: "Thy love, 'tis love, 'tis love that makes the world go round"—but it goes round on the axis of faith. If you are not satisfied with what I have said, try the definition of Paul: "Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen."

And go straightway and commit to memory that superb thirteenth chapter of Paul's first letter to the Corinthians, and incorporate it with your daily living. That chapter closes: "And now abide faith, hope, kindness, these three; but the greatest of these is"—what, faith? No, "kindness."

PLINTHOURGOS.

A Florida paper says: "Tourists are returning home. In the early days of the West Coast, according to Ed Lewis of St. Petersburg, the people used to say in the fall: 'Our dear friends are coming down again,' and in the spring, 'The damned Yanks are going home.'"

STEAMBOATS RAN WHEN THERE WAS MONEY IN IT, CHANNEL OR NO CHANNEL.

(From "Forty Years Ago," in the Kansas City Star.)

The steamer Montana arrived from St. Louis yesterday with several thousand ties for the Union Pacific and a considerable cargo of merchandise for local consignees.

MY MOTHER.

HER sweet face I can see in dreams,
Her smile waits down on memory's beams.
She's here beside me now, it seems,
My lovely lady mother!

Her eyes had such a glowing light,
They seemed to guide me through the night.
And twinkle like the stars, so bright,
My happy little mother!

Her hands had such a gentle way,
Of rubbing out the cares of day.
Now they are folded, soft and true—
My blessed, sainted mother!

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

MISSISSIPPI FLOODS.

From the Springfield (Mass.) Republican.
THE disastrous floods which have overflowed the low banks of the Mississippi and overwhelmed their frail protection as far north as Iowa have merely been doing, or overdoing, the expected. . . . The present floods recall the suggestion made some years ago by a prominent New York engineer for meeting the need. His idea was by constructing subsidiary canals, some 30 miles apart and extending from the gulf as far as necessary northward to make what in flood time would constitute a canal for the containment of the waters and the facilitating of their discharge. Between seasons and to an extent even in the seasons of lesser floods much of the enclosed region could be cultivated; would even be benefited by the thorough irrigation. Another suggestion is the impounding of the surplus water in watershed reservoirs. The suggestion might be developed in connection with the canal plan. The undertaking would mean a great initial expense, but a right beginning would not mean progress on shifting channels, changing banks and destroyed levees result in the undoing of all the makeshift defense that has been put up. Cities threatened by the encroachment of the sea have pretty well learned the value of enduring sea walls. The problem of the Mississippi is more complex, its solution would be a vastly greater undertaking; but as the great river valley grows in population and wealth the neglect of its protection becomes increasingly unreasonable.

AMERICAN BUREAUCRACY.

From the Orange-Judd Farmer.
ONE of the biggest burdens is our constant tendency to increase the scope of governmental activity. In our national government, for example, we are constantly creating new boards, commissions, bureaus and committees to interfere with the business, the morals or the habits of the people, to regulate things that are essentially private affairs. Our national Government is becoming cursed with bureaucracy supported at the expense of the producers of the country to carry out the whims of fantastic agitators. They are getting so numerous that they step on each other's toes. We are not only regulating business and habits and morals and taxing everybody to pay for it, but we are so restricting business that private enterprise can no longer function. It will do us small good to scrap our navy and cut our army to an inefficient police shadow if we are to continue permitting governmental activities to approach upon the vocations of individual citizens restricting their productive activity, regulating their business conduct, supervising their morals and functioning according to the notions of a narrow-visioned and unproductive but voracious minority.

THE REED CAMPAIGN.

From the Southeast Missourian (Cape Girardeau).
THE Missouri is just in receipt of two letters. One is from Reed headquarters saying the Senator will make a speech at Moberly that will be the talk of the campaign and it is offered for publication in plate form, which is considered a favor by those papers not prepared to set type in favor of the Reed campaign. The other letter came from a discredited Republican politician in Kansas City, saying that the people of Missouri should unite in supporting a candidate that will forever discredit Woodrow Wilson, and urging us to give special attention to the Reed argument with the ex-President. So the political lines are being drawn. Anti-Wilson Democrats and discredited Republicans are to unite, if indications mean anything, in a grand effort to repulse the forces of President of the United States. This newspaper never published a word of personal criticism against Woodrow Wilson while he was President and it will not take any part in an effort to discredit or humiliate an ex-President of the United States.

The President and Mrs. Harding seized the opportunity for a few days' vacation by going Friday to Atlantic City to visit Senator Edge. The party was entertained at the famous Seaview Club at Absecon, near Atlantic City. A merry party accompanied them. An interesting ceremony is planned for June 14 when the President will go to Fort McHenry, Baltimore, to attend the memorial exercises in honor of the Francis Scott Key, author of the "Star-Spangled Banner."

attraction to visitors in Washington, will be unveiled on May 30. This memorial is in large part the work of the late Champ Clark, who was a member of the commission which arranged for its erection. President Harding and former President Taft will be among the speakers on this occasion. John Temple Graves, resident commissioner of the memorial, is in charge of the arrangements for the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Davis of St. Louis Mo. entertained at dinner on Thursday before the Polo ball. Mrs. Davis wore a handsome gown of gold cloth, brocaded in gold, and a diamond tiara at the ball. Admiral and Mrs. Coontz also entertained at dinner the same night for their daughter, Miss Bertha Coontz.

On Friday, Representative and Mrs. Cleveland Martin gave a luncheon in the House wing of the capitol.

The Bible classes of Mrs. Selden Spencer, wife of Senator Spencer of Missouri, which have been such a complete success this season, have closed for the present. So popular was this course that Mrs. Spencer was obliged to obtain the ballroom of the New Willard for her classes. Often more than 1000 women attended the class, including many of the social leaders of the capital.

Continues Friday Night Class. Mrs. Spencer is continuing her regular Friday night Bible class held at the Church of the Covenant for the benefit of the members of the Business Women's Council, an organization of Government workers. Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Puller of St. Louis were among the guests at a dinner Wednesday night given by Mrs. Flora Wilson, daughter of the late Secretary of Agriculture Wilson. Other guests included Mrs. James B. Reynolds, Mrs. Walter Wells, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Calhoun, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Walker; Sena-

WASHINGTON SOCIETY
For Samuel D. Nicholson, Representative Bascom Slem and Dr. Sterling Ruffin.
The novel sight of society debutantes posing as angels for the pageant scenes of the "Cross Triumphant" written for the Episcopal Church and produced at the Cathodral close on Wednesday, was affected by the selection of members from the Junior League of Washington for the roles. And the still more novel sight of these angels with gauze-like wings on their shoulders, smoking merrily away outdoors, behind the stage, was witnessed by many who strolled behind.
Missourians in the cast of the pageant, or as sponsors, were: Mrs.
Said Spencer, Princess Ida Cantanzano, Princess Bertha Cantan-zono, the Misses Hawes, Miss Bertha Coutz, Mrs. Russell Talbot, Mrs.
W. E. Fendall, Miss Elizabeth Ken-nedly. The character of Martha Washington was taken by Mrs.

Francis Berger Moran, a descendant of Washington's mother. The pageant was written by Mrs. Min-nerode Andrews, who formerly lived in Missouri. The old barouche of Daniel Webster was used in the play and among the notable actors were Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, wife of the Vice President, Lady Geddes, wife of the British Ambassador;
Mary Roberts Rinehart, the novelist, and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt Jr., wife of the Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

Mrs. R. D. Lewis of 52 Westmoreland place and her daughter, Miss Roberta Lewis, have returned from a fortnight's visit in New York.

Twenty-five matrons will act as patronesses for the annual concert of the St. Louis University Glee Club and Orchestra, which will be given at the St. Louis University auditorium Tuesday evening. Those who will serve are: Mmes. John R.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Pollister were the honor guests at a supper and bridge party given last Sunday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sauntion Stark of 4953 McPherson avenue. Miss Laura Hofer of Jefferson City, who was Mrs. Stark's guest for a few days, shared the honors of the evening with Mr. and Mrs. Pollister. The guests included
Mr. and Mrs. Guy Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. Webe Hawes Naunheim, Dr. and Mrs. Walter B. Yost, Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Hawke, Mr. and Mrs.
Charles E. Blankenship, Mrs. Herbert Newton Walker, Clinton Bop-per, Culver L. Hastedt, and Major Thomas Roger McCarron, U. S. A.

St. Louis will be astir during the days from May 22 to 26 with the elaborate program of entertainment planned by the women's committee for the American Medical Association convention. Mrs. Willard Bartlett, assisted by a committee of 200 doctors' wives, is planning a series of entertainments for the visiting women. The first day of the convention will be devoted to registration and assembling of group sections.

On Tuesday, May 23, a reception will be held at the roof garden of Hotel Statler in honor of the women accompanying officers of the American Medical Association. The special hostesses for this occasion are Mrs. George Dock, assisted by Cyrus E. Burford and Mrs. Arthur
E. Ewing. At 8:30 p. m. on May 23, the opening meeting of the A. M. A. will take place at the Odeon. On May 24 an automobile drive through the city and county has been arranged, the machines starting from Hotel Jefferson at 2 p. m. From 4 to 6 a reception at the Art Museum will take place. A large committee of artists and art connoisseurs will serve as docents, assisting the regular art museum staff of docents in pointing out the treasures of the Art Gallery.

For Thursday, May 25, Director
George T. Moore of the Missouri Botanical Gardens and Mrs. Moore have invited the women to visit the gardens. As a special feature Director Moore has provided an exhibition of a medicinal garden patterned after the famous old medicinal garden known as the "Chelsea Gardens of England" prepared in 1753. Mrs.
Bransford Lewis has charge of a committee who will serve punch and distribute flowers grown in the garden.

GIRLS! LEMONS WHITEN THE SKIN

Recipe for Bleaching Lotion
Which Does Not Irritate

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of harmless and delightful lemon bleach.
Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day, then shortly note the beauty and whiteness of your skin.
Famous stage beauties use this lemon lotion to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, also as a freckle, sunburn, and tan bleach because it doesn't irritate.

The President and board of trustees of the medical faculty. At 8:30 p. m. the President of the American Medical Association will hold a reception at Arcadia Hall, 2517 Olive street. This reception has come to be one of the most important features of each convention and admission will be by badge only. Elaborate plans have been made for decorations and music. Forty girls will serve at punch tables. On Friday, May 26, at 10:30 a. m. the Morning Choral Club will give a musical program at the Vanderport Music Hall. Hostesses for this occasion will be the President of the Board of the Morning Choral Club and a group of women from the general committee of arrangements for the convention. From 2 to 5 p. m. a river excursion on the steamer St. Paul will be given. Dancing and music will be features of the entertainment. For the evening of the 25th a special program of music, ballet and radio at the Municipal Theater in Forest Park has been arranged.

Mrs. John Malone of Normandy was the honor guest at a surprise birthday party last Tuesday afternoon. The guests were: Mmes. John P. Curran, William David, Harry Barre, John Buckley, John Cuddebeck, Misses Nellie Clark, Adelaide Traeger, Mary Malone, Helen Maloney and Loretto Malone.

The Rebekah Assembly, I. O. O. F. will meet here May 15, 16 and 17 at the Planters Hotel. On Monday evening the members will be entertained by the Morse School of Expression, and on Wednesday evening the degree of chivalry will be conferred.

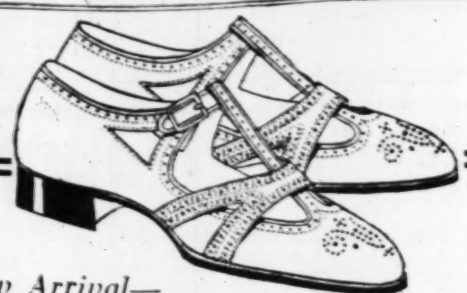

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Payne of 4731 Ashland avenue have as their guests Mr. and Mrs. George Bromwell of Baltimore, Md.

Mrs. John H. Timmerman of Wydown boulevard and Dartford avenue entertained 18 guests at a luncheon Thursday. This was the second of a similar affair. Mrs. Timmerman is giving this spring.

The Women's Missionary Federation of St. Louis will give a silver tea Friday, May 19, at the home of Mrs. Fred Vierling, 6255 Waterman avenue, from 2 to 5 o'clock. The Rev. Mr. Baganoff, who conducts the Victor street mission, in which the federation is interested, will give an address.

The members of the Woman's Association of the Fountain Park Congregational Church were hosted by Mrs. J. H. Timmerman at a luncheon at the Planters Hotel.

These Dresses were literally selected one by one from the stocks of New York's leading Dress houses. The concessions they made us averaged fully HALF—the concessions we offer are precisely the same. The majority of these Dresses represent "advance" styles for Summer wear. The selection is infinitely varied, with "individuality" the key note. When you see these captivating Dresses—when you note their beauty—their workmanship and quality of materials—the wonderful value-giving nature of this event will seem even more so.

These Dresses are charmingly fashioned of summertime's coolest silk fabrics, including printed crepe de chine, Roshanara crepe, spiral crepe, Canton crepe, Georgette, lace and lace combinations and Shantung.

Scores of effective styles for afternoon, street, party, dance, country club, sport and general wear in stunning combinations of the new high shades, as well as solid colors of navy, tan, black, jade green, orchid, white, French blue, etc.

We advise buying two, three and even four of these Dresses, but urge caution in selection as no returns or exchanges will be allowed.

Models.

The Palmer Shop has for several seasons been the rendezvous of some of St. Louis' smartest followers of fashion, as the modiste in charge was exceptionally gifted in the selection of exclusive millinery. Here one could always find Hats from internationally-known designers in styles that appear simultaneously with those shown in exclusive Fifth Avenue and Paris shops. Hence we quickly accepted the opportunity to purchase the entire stock at a price concession that makes Monday's sale possible.

Stunning models for misses and matrons, including Hats of taffeta, Canton crepe, hairbraid, timbo, in sport and tailored effects; flower-trimmed Garden Hats, Felt Hats, richly embroidered Hats of leghorn, fancy straws, satin and moire.

These Hats bear the labels of some of the most celebrated New York and Paris designers. There are models by Kurzman, Goldfarb, Waters, Mme. Bower, Juliette Nicole, Rose Ella, Ferle Heller, etc. In distinctive charm and smartness of design, these Hats are unequaled at any price.

YOUR HEADACHES—What Causes Them?

The majority of those who suffer from headaches have no positive knowledge as to what causes their particular trouble.

Some "think" it is their stomach, others "think" it is their nerves—very few suspect their eyes, yet hundreds of thousands of cases of sick and nervous headaches are caused by defective vision and no other reason.

Unusual success has attended my efforts in the relief and prevention of eyestrain headaches by means of properly prescribed glasses.

During 17 years specialization I have perfected a system of eye examination so perfect and efficient that results that there is no room for guesswork.

After having your eyes tested at my office you know positively your exact degree of deflection from normal vision. And you receive the exact glasses required, to correct such defect. One moderate single charge covers examination, lenses, frames and fitting.

"They fit
where others fail"

WOULD you like shoes that really fit, and hold their shape, and give you a new sense of comfort from the moment you put them on?

And would you like style—whether for little girlhood, youth or age—style that makes any foot more shapely? And design that pleases every eye? And value that is seen in shoes still dainty after months of wear?

QUEEN QUALITY shoes will give you, at moderate cost, more real style, more solid value and more satisfying service than anything else you wear—and the name is always there for your guidance and protection.

of cleverly designed pump for street and general wear, showing the always popular instep strap.

La Creole
Don't let gray hair end your youth

Gray hairs foretell the end of youth and charm, but the refinement of La Creole preparations makes it possible for every one to restore and preserve the hair's beauty and color.

La Creole Hair Dressing restores gray, streaked or faded hair to its original color and luster by a gradual treatment which is safe and sure.

La Creole Hair Color Restorer is for those who wish to restore the color quickly. It comes in three shades of hair from lightest brown to deepest black. Both of these delightful preparations make the hair soft and beautiful.

La Creole Toiletries
Are as superior as French preparations because they embody the "secrets de toilette" of the beautiful Creoles. Their toiletries are so French because the Creoles are of pure French-Spanish descent. Select for your every need from La Creole toilet delights:

ST. LOUIS WOMEN WIN FIRST PLACE

Women of Other Cities Find Popular Judgment Against Them

General Agreement Reached That in No City on Earth are There So Many Attractive Women With Hair That is Really Wonderful for Its Beauty and Lustre

THE SECRET OF HOW THIS HAS BEEN ACCOMPLISHED IS NOW REVEALED

SPECIAL: For many years this city has been justly famous for the beauty of its women. It is not only a matter of local pride, but of common knowledge the country over. When anyone speaks of having met a girl of this city, it nearly always follows that, "She was a raving beauty, too." Of course.

But beauty of face and form are not all that make a woman truly beautiful. It is well known that "A woman's crowning glory is her hair," and if she is lacking in that crowning glory, if her hair is scant, untidy, matted and stringy, no amount of facial beauty or trimness of figure can make the picture perfect.

So, when the beauty of the women and girls of this city is spoken of, as it so often is, that beauty includes their hair, for it is said by those who have traveled far, that in no place in this country, does one see the vast number of beautiful "crowns of glory" that one sees on the streets of this city.

Some have even gone so far as to suggest that there is some secret about it, as if our mothers, sisters, wives and daughters were jointly in possession of some method of wizardry that made their hair more lustrous and beautiful than that of women elsewhere. But instead of being a great secret it turns out to be only good sense. For, the beauty of our women's hair is not due to any 'secret, magic art, but to simple natural cleanliness—and economical cleanliness at that.

It is quite apparent that the average bald headed man cannot comprehend the aversion a woman has to shampooing her own hair, because to him a shampoo is no more trouble than washing his hands. But with the amount of hair the average woman—of this city at any rate—carries, it is no joke to shampoo one's hair with the soaps or shampoo preparations one ordinarily finds. It's a back-breaking, arm tiring disposition spoiling job, and when it's all finished, the hair is still sticky and stringy from the undissolved soap, or the scalp raw from the too caustic shampoo preparation. That's why in so many communities the women do not wash their hair as often as they should, and when they do, have such unsatisfactory results, or else—the few wealthier ones who can afford it—go to some hair dresser's and pay as much for one shampoo as it would cost them to shampoo their own hair one hundred times.

But a few years ago the women of this city discovered an easy, quick and complete way to a refreshing self shampoo that didn't cost more than a cent for each time. And mothers told daughters, and sisters told sisters, till now the underlying reason for the beautiful hair one sees on the girls and women of this city, is the fact that they shampoo their own hair with this pure and extraordinary soap, that is wholly unlike any other soap or shampoo preparation you ever heard of before.

It is a clear, golden, transparent cake, beautiful to look upon, and the merest touch to water of any kind, and a rub or two, brings into being thousands upon thousands of the clearest, most fascinating and elfish bubbles you ever saw. No thick, greasy lather this, indicative of undissolved impurities, but clean, pure, harmless, dirt destroying bubbles.

Naturally, there is no need of tedious and tiresome rubbing and scrubbing. The task is accomplished soon after it is begun. And then the rinsing. How different that is too. No need of basin after basin of water, or tedious spraying and constant rubbing, with back bent over, in trying to get the sticky, undissolved particles out of the fine hair strands. With this soap, a few splashes of water from one's cupped hands, or a swish or two of a spray and every bubble and dirt particle has vanished, leaving the hair and scalp absolutely clean. And when dried the scalp glows from real, natural cleanliness, and the hair itself assumes the attractive fluffiness and glorious lustre that nature intended it should have, when it is clean and healthy.

That's the secret—if it can be called a secret—that most of the women and girls of this city know, and the use of which has brought them such fame for the beauty and glorious lustre of their hair. And in case you, who read this, have not as yet been let into the secret, we'll disclose it now. The soap referred to—the only soap that will perform such wonders on your hair—is Jap Rose. It can be had at any department, drug or grocery store for 10 cents.

Nature's Way to Prettier Hair

There never has been any 'secret' to healthier, prettier hair. Real cleanliness of the hair and scalp—clean as nature meant them to be—that's the answer. For, when the scalp and hair are clean, nature takes care of the health of the hair, making it fluffy, glossy and beautiful, giving a woman a charm that cannot be denied.

But real cleanliness cannot be obtained by ordinary methods, or by ordinary soaps or shampoo preparations. Sticky, stringy hair and clogged pores of the scalp are too often the case, eventually resulting in unhealthy, untidy and altogether unattractive hair, that is a liability rather than an asset to a woman's appearance and comfort.

Burton, vice president; Mrs. F. Meek, secretary; Mrs. James P. Maginn, treasurer; Mrs. E. R. Bailey, auditor; Mrs. Charles T. Richardson, chronicler. Mrs. Elsie Blatner, a lecturer on Dante, gave an informal talk on her recent visit to Florence, Italy. She was elected to honorary membership in the club. A social hour followed the meeting.

The Alpha Delphian Chapter of the Delphian Society met Friday afternoon at the Cabanne Branch Library. The subject for discussion, "Early Egyptian Kings," was the third program from the 29 outlined by the national headquarters for the year's study. The following members participated: Misses August C. Hilmer, W. H. Hudson, E. R. Bailey, W. R. Woodward, S. W. Morrill, Howard C. Cook, Ida E. Graef. The president, Mrs. G. R. Lindner, appointed Mrs. August C. Hilmer to give correct pronunciation of Egyptian names. The next meeting will be held May 24, at Cabanne Branch Library, at 2:30 o'clock. Meetings always open to out-of-town Delphians. A second St. Louis unit of the society for members desiring attendance in the evening will be organized May 22 at Cabanne Branch Library at 8 o'clock.

Honoring Our Ninety Third Anniversary

We Have Arranged a Special Exhibition of Diamonds, Exquisite Jewels, Silverware, Watches and Clocks

Perhaps even Louis Jaccard, with all his vision, were he alive today, would marvel at the progressive spirit that has developed our present institution from the small watchmaker's shop which he established in 1829.

Each milestone passed has been an epoch marked with new friends, increased prestige, and has the more firmly cemented the bonds of friendship, which result in a confidence supreme to each succeeding generation. On this—our ninety-third birthday—we thank you.

Watch the daily papers next week for news of attractive specials—a feature of our birthday celebration, in which we want you to participate.

Dependable Watches for Men

Perhaps your grandfather's cherished gold Watch came from Jaccard's and its years of satisfactory timekeeping is your guarantee of satisfaction. We offer a very complete selection of men's Watches in nickel, silver, gold-filled or in solid gold.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION TO OPEN TOMORROW

Secretary of State's Plan to Call Body to Order on 1875 Precedent Upset by Legal Advisers.

IN QUANDARY AS TO HOW TO BEGIN

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 13.—Missouri's sixth constitutional convention will open here Monday, its sessions to be held in the Chamber of the House of Representatives. As to just how it will open, who will call it to order, who will be its president, what it will do and how long it will be in session, there is only conjecture.

Secretary of State Charles U. Becker thought he had it all settled as to the opening preliminaries; for Michael K. McGrath, then Secretary of State, called the 1875 convention to order at 12 o'clock noon of Wednesday, May 5, certified returns of the election of delegates to the convention and presided during the election of a temporary secretary and a permanent president, the late Waldo P. Johnson of Kansas City, being chosen on the sixth ballot, late during the afternoon session of the first day.

Becker had determined on this precedent to call the convention to order at noon and arranged with Superior Judge Conway Elder to administer the oath to the delegates, who are required to swear or affirm allegiance to the Constitutions of the United States and of Missouri and faithfully to discharge their duties. He had gone farther and invited Dr. William H. Black of Marshall, president of Missouri Valley College, president of the New Constitution Association of Missouri, a Presbyterian minister and a Republican, to deliver the invocation. Gov. Hyde then appointed Dr. Black a delegate at large to fill the vacancy created by death recently of Norman A. Moseley of Bloomfield. Becker also had prepared a brief address.

Constitution Noncommittal.
Today, however, some of Becker's attorney friends advised the Secretary of State that the Constitution does not provide for him or any one else to call the convention to order, that it provides simply that "upon the convening of the convention" all delegates shall take the oath above referred to, but lays out no order of business. So Becker is at a loss whether to go ahead on the precedent set by McGrath, or to let the delegates come together and sit around until one of their number takes charge.

Not more than a fifth of the delegates had arrived today. Those who are here apparently have no well-defined idea as to who will be the choice of the convention for its president. Five or six names are being discussed, but so far as is known none of them has any definite support which would assure election.

At its opening the convention will be composed of 41 Democrats and a like number of Republicans if all the delegates are present.

Republicans May Lead by One.
Later if it is decided to seat P. C. Sasse of Brunswick as Republican delegate from the Sixth Senatorial District, Republicans will have a margin of one. As will be recalled, Republicans failed to make a nomination in that district in 1910. Sasse, five or six names are being discussed, but so far as is known none of them has any definite support which would assure election.

At its opening the convention will be composed of 41 Democrats and a like number of Republicans if all the delegates are present.

Some Delegates Rent Houses.
Expressions as to the probable duration of the convention are varied. A few delegates express the hope that the first motion will be to adjourn sine die, while others have rented homes here for the summer and have brought their families and automobiles, prepared for long stays.

The last convention performed its work in much the same manner that legislatures do, standing committees being established and all proposals for changes in the Constitution being referred to these committees for hearings and deliberation. These committees then submitted drafts as determined upon by them to the floor of the convention for debate and final action. It is considered probable that this body will work on the same general plan, in which event the early weeks of its session will consist largely of committee hearings.

Boy Drowned in Creek.
Simon Kellerman, Deputy Circuit Clerk of Madison County, received a telegram yesterday announcing that his nephew, George Sexton, 14 years old, an orphan, was drowned Friday night at Girard, Ill., while fishing in a creek. The body was taken to Mendon, Ill., where the funeral will be held today.

When Electric Cleaning Enters Your Home

Of all housekeeping drudgery and monotony that of cleaning is the worst. You can, in a pinch, farm out your washing and ironing and you can dine out. But dusty, dirty floor coverings, hangings and furnishings cannot be sent out without great inconvenience and discomfort. They must be cleaned at home either by the tired housewife or by engaging expensive outside help.

Broom-and-duster cleaning never cleans clean. It is but a "lick-and-a-promise," driving the dirt from room to room, into hidden, inaccessible places where it collects disease germs and is an ever present menace to health and happiness.

The home must be cleaned and kept clean for hygienic if not for other reasons. The problem is how to do it thoroughly, completely and cheaply.

Several million housewives have found the answer in the electric vacuum cleaner.

The difference between cleaning the old way and electric cleaning is like the difference between washing with plain water and washing with soap. You cannot wash clean without soap nor clean clean without the electric vacuum cleaner.

The electric vacuum cleaner soon pays for itself by saving costly cleaning labor, time, and by preserving cherished household furnishings.

Furthermore, the housewife will pay less for the electricity to run her machine than she now spends for soap!

Your dealer or lighting company will gladly prove these things to you. Telephone for a demonstration of electric vacuum cleaning.

Communities having that grade of electric light and power service which it is possible to give only when the company receives fair treatment invariably are the leading communities, industrially, commercially and socially.

These progressive communities are the chief advocates of electric labor savers such as the electric vacuum cleaner.

Banish Dirt and Dust the Electric Cleaner Way

The Electric Cleaner brightens, freshens and prolongs the life of carpets, rugs, floor coverings, hangings and draperies, as well as removing all dirt and dust from the hidden cracks, crevices and corners.

ETHICAL SOCIETY EXERCISES

Organization to Close Season Today With Special Program.

The Ethical Society will bring its season to a close today. The last meeting will be devoted to the recognition day exercises for the graduation of the senior group of the children's Sunday assembly. There will be a rally of the parents, alumni and new members. The ceremonies include one of the handing on of the torch to the incoming group. The address by the leader of the society, Percival Chubb, will be on "What the Old Should Expect From the Young, and Vice Versa." The music will include May songs and numbers for the violin and organ by Mrs. Eusebia Berry Mayes and Mrs. Frank Jewett.

Before the society actually disbanded it will hold a spring sale and fête in the garden in the rear of the Sheldon Memorial. Saturday, when there will be dances, plays and a sale of dolls' hats for the children. The wind-up for the season for the young people will be the annual three-day picnic at the Cedars on June 2 to 4.

HORSES AND MULES IN CITIES
DECREASED IN PAST DECADE

Increase in Rural Districts, but Marked Scarcity of Good Young Stock is Reported.

CHICAGO, May 13.—Although the number of horses and mules in cities and towns decreased approximately 25 per cent between 1910 and 1920, the total number in the United States increased 1.9 per cent in that period, with an increase of 21.8 per cent in horses and 32.4 per cent in mules on farms, according to bulletin of the Horse Association of America.

"The practical elimination of the driving horse for business use and the advent of motor trucks, has caused the decline in the cities," the bulletin stated. "It does not indicate, however, that horses and mules in towns and cities will decrease indefinitely, for there are certain kinds of city work, such as short hauls, slow hauling through crowded districts, and delivery routes which involve many stops, which are most efficiently and cheaply done by horses, and to which horses are being restored as the facts and cost figures become generally known."

The bulletin said there was a marked scarcity of good young horses and mules, that the birth rate has not kept pace with the death rate, and that a 25 per cent increase in breeding will just hold up present strength, but will not allow for normal expansion in horse and mule use.

MATZENAUER AMONG SOLOISTS WITH SYMPHONY NEXT SEASON

Olga Samaroff, Native St. Louisan, a Pianist, and Mme. Namara Also Engaged.

Mme. Margarete Matzenauer is one of three new additions to the list of soloists engaged by the Symphony Orchestra for next season, according to an announcement yesterday. The famous mezzo-soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Co. will appear at the concert of March 2 and 3.

The two others are Olga Samaroff, native St. Louisan, pianist, and wife of Leopold Stokowski, who will appear with the orchestra on Dec. 24 and 25; and Mme. Margarete Namara, soprano, who was soloist with the orchestra on its Southwestern tour, and who will sing at the concert of Jan. 19 and 20.

Other soloists previously announced are Alfred Cortot, pianist; Albert Spaulding, violinist; Maria Ivogun, coloratura, soprano, and Sergei Rachmaninoff, pianist. They will appear, respectively, on Dec. 22 and 23, Jan. 12 and 13, Feb. 16 and 17, and March 16 and 17.

The Symphony Association's annual meeting will be held within the next two weeks. Edward W. Bok, principal guarantor of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, has been invited to attend, and to discuss the means employed in raising the $2,000,000 endowment fund enjoyed by that organization.

MORE THAN 600 WISH TO TAKE MILITARY TRAINING IN AUGUST

Three Courses Are to Be Given Citizens at Summer School at Jefferson Barracks.

During the last week an increasing number of applications for the Citizens' Military Training Camp to be held at Jefferson Barracks during August have been received. More than 600 are on file at the office of Colonel Jno. N. Straat, chief of the 102d Division of the Organized Reserves, at the old customs house. On Friday 10,000 application blanks were received from Washington.

This summer three courses will be given: the Red course for beginners, the White course for more advanced, and the Blue course for the still more advanced. The ages for these courses are: Red, 17 to 25; White, 18 to 26; and Blue, 19 to 27.

While the work of selecting candidates is being handled at Col. Straat's office, the obtaining of tentage, uniforms, arms, and equipment, arranging for feeding and everything necessary for amusement, instruction and comfort is being handled by a board of experienced officers at Jefferson Barracks under the immediate supervision of Col. Yates, the Commandant. An excellent location for a tent camp has been located on the northern part of the reservation.

Charges Hoover Sabotaged Russian Relief Are Refuted

too high, and is three times to high for the Black Sea ports together. But would he be so far out if Mr. Hoover were using nine ports instead of three? What about Rostov, Nikolayev, Berdyansk, Mariupol, Sebastopol, Kerch and Batum?

Well, Nikolayev has been frozen all winter. Moreover, the railway from this port joins the Odessa main line close to Odessa. Any railroad cars available for Nikolayev can be handled more quickly at Odessa, where port facilities are so much better.

Sebastopol is in the same railroad position as regards Theodosia, which is being used, as Nikolayev is, to Odessa. The soviet advised its rejection, and an independent examination by an American destroyer confirmed the decision.

Batum was considered and rejected by the soviet and the armistice because there is a shorter haul to Tzaritsin, on the Volga River, and also because the Batum railway traverses country not definitely under soviet control. As for Rostov, Berdyansk, Taganrog, Kerch and Mariupol, they are in the Sea of Azov, which is silted, mined and frozen. Small cargoes might be transhipped to Azov ports, but these ports would discharge on the same railroad systems which are already congested, especially at the junction points, by the supplies moving from Theodosia and Novorossisk.

Capt. Hibben's estimate nevertheless remains 10,000 tons daily from the Black Sea ports alone. It is interesting to compare these figures.

secured, he tells us, from men "actually operating the railroads," with the official published estimates of the soviet government itself. In a letter of Sept. 17 the Commissariat of Foreign Trade stated that the Russian railroads could handle from all ports, Black Sea, Baltic and Arctic Ocean 9259 tons daily. In other words, the soviet government's promise for all Russia is 700 tons a day less than Capt. Hibben's estimate for the Black Sea alone.

Let us look more closely now at the soviet government estimate. Nine thousand two hundred and eighty-nine tons a day is at the rate of about 279,000 tons a month. How does this compare with the accomplishment up to date? Up to March 24, the latest figures available, the total arrivals in all Russian ports of American supplies was 252,651 tons. Arrivals in port, mind you. Of these arrivals, 169,371 tons had been moved by the railroads. But these figures cover not one month, but 47 days.

The actual accomplishment is not 279,000 tons a month, but about 150,000. In 47 days the Americans piled up in the Russian ports 112,250 tons of supplies. They had in Russia waiting for transportation two-thirds again as much as had started on its way to the famine areas.

Charges Are Shown Nonsense.

The charge in the face of these facts that Mr. Hoover is withholding food from the starving becomes a cruel absurdity. Mr. Hoover has been getting food from America to Russian ports faster than Russia railroads can get it to the hungry.

The relative pace is as 10 is to 6. If Mr. Hoover were sabotaging relief the Russians would be waiting for his supplies. The exact contrary is the truth. Mr. Hoover's supplies are in Russia waiting for Russian railroads to carry them away. But, asserts Capt. Hibben, Mr. Hoover were using nine Black Sea ports instead of three he would not be held up. Now, I have already stated the reasons why Capt. Hibben's list of ports is inflated. I wish now to add that any insinuation of bad faith against Mr. Hoover becomes sheer nonsense the moment you understand the machinery of the thing. Take a concrete case. The steamer Winnebago takes on a cargo at Baltimore of 5555 tons of corn. She sails for the Black Sea. When she arrives at Constantinople she receives orders by wireless telling her to go to Novorossisk or Odessa or Theodosia. These orders by wireless are given by the American officials in Russia in agreement with the soviet officials. Does Capt. Hibben or any one else believe these men could refuse to order the steamer Winnebago to any one of the other Black Sea ports if the cargo of corn could get to the famine stricken people quicker by doing so. Is it not obvious that if there is sabotage the soviet officials must either be a party to it or aware of it? Since no criticism has ever come out of Russia, since all the criticism is confined to people 1000 miles from the scene, the chances that Capt. Hibben is talking without sufficient knowledge are so enormous as to be a certainty.

The factor which is determining the number of Russian lives that can be saved is not the money available. It is not shipping supplies to Russia. It is not the number of ports. It is the number of freight cars, the condition of the Russian railroad system, the condition of the engines, the supply of fuel, and the efficiency of the Russian railway administration in using its battered equipment as economically as possible.

The reason why the food piles up in the ports, and again at the junction points, is that there is a shortage of rolling stock, which is made more acute because what cars there are cannot be handled efficiently. In a cable on April 19 Russia stated officially that 75 per cent of all available cars were loaded. What Capt. Hibben was told by optimists last September cannot weigh in the balance against the actual performance of several months.

What are the prospects? All the figures I have quoted are favorable because they represent the first mobilization of cars at the ports. The turn over cannot, probably be so rapid. On the other hand, with the coming of spring the water systems will become available by using the Volga River both from the south through Novorossisk to Tzaritsin and in the north from the Baltic through Rybinsk. With fair luck the Americans will have moved into Russia 550,000 tons by the middle of June. It will take the last of these supplies till mid-August to reach the hungry. During the same period the soviet government has 150,000 to 180,000 tons moving, so that between 700,000 and 800,000 tons is promised before the harvest. The seed grain is assured. The child feeding is probably just barely adequate, and about 5,000,000 adults out of 15,000,000 in danger may be reached. This means that the local stocks are available for the remaining 10,000,000. The relaxing of the pressure is also bringing hoarded food into the open. It is believed that the death rate of children is now down to Russian normal in the Volga Valley and that adult deaths from actual starvation, except in remote districts will have ceased early in May.

No Basis for Criticism.

The facts laid down here will, I think, convince any one that the campaign of criticism against Mr. Hoover has no foundation in fact. In the face of an enormous prejudice against all things Russian he mobilized a sum of money large enough to buy supplies which more than overtax the capacities of Russian transport up to the harvest. He should have done no less, but he could not have done more, and probably no other living man could have done nearly so much.

What one might hope is that the campaign of criticism would stop. One might hope that not only in justice to Mr. Hoover and to the devoted staff of the A. R. A., but in the belief that the task of aiding Russia is not over. Our whole program runs to the harvest this summer. But what will that harvest be? Even barring another drought it seems unlikely that the Volga farmers can in their weakened condition raise enough food to carry Russia through to 1922. Next winter, or even earlier they may need help again. By August or September we shall know when the crop reports come in. If another effort has to be made we must ask Mr. Hoover to lead it and the A. R. A. to carry it out. They have given eight years of such work and by the usual standards are entirely justified in returning to their own affairs. We may have to ask them to stick it out longer. Are they not entitled to an overwhelming vote of confidence regardless of anyone's views on Russian politics? Personally, I should give that vote ungrudgingly, even though I firmly believe that Mr. Hoover, the Cabinet officer, as distinct from Mr. Hoover the director of relief has given the Government wrong advice on American policy toward Russia.

I can't say, however, that I am really hopeful that his political opponents can be persuaded to share the absolute confidence in his good faith and genius which some months of studying the facts has confirmed in me. And the reason they will not be persuaded is that Mr. Hoover has every great gift of the statesman except the politician's art. He has been right. I think, in all the controversies about relief, but his judgment of the psychology of his critics has been lamentable. He has quite underestimated the strength of the passions evoked by the trouble to make it sufficiently plain why he was doing one thing rather than another, which seems more obvious. After January, for example, he did not encourage the immediate raising of more money because he knew it could not be used. But to take a position against raising money when one of the worst famines in history is raging requires a patient explanation, which Mr. Hoover has never given. He must not be surprised if people who are deeply concerned misunderstand.

There is a way out, a very simple way out of all the misunderstanding. It is for Mr. Hoover to announce publicly that, providing the soviet government co-operates satisfactorily to the limits of their powers, he and the A. R. A. will see the Russians through, not only to harvest of 1922 but to the harvest of 1923 in so far as that is necessary. Let him announce that while the program for 1922 has reached its maximum, he will this summer, when the crop figures are in, determine what new program is necessary.

RING 200 BY 300 FEET TO BE USED AT BARRACKS HORSE SHOW

Grand Stand for Exhibition May 26, 27 and 28 Will Have Capacity of 2500 Persons.

The first Military and Civilian Horse Show will be held at Jefferson Barracks, May 26, 27 and 28, under the auspices of the officers of the barracks and the St. Louis Riding Club.

The parade grounds of the barracks will be transformed into an open-air amphitheater in which there will be a ring 200 feet wide and 300 feet long. Surrounding the ring will be a wide greenward promenade separated from the arena by a rail. Portable boxes seating six persons, and covered with green and white canopies, will border the promenade. The grand stand, which has a seating capacity of 2500, seats for 1906 being reserved for the men of the barracks, will be decorated in the national colors and the colors of the St. Louis Riding Club.

At the close of the entries Wednesday, 255 horses were entered.

High mortality of underweight people makes them poor risks, say Life Insurance records.

Are you under weight?

If so, take Yeast Foam Tablets—they will increase your appetite and build you up

If you are under weight, you are under "par," more susceptible to disease and you are destined to be shorter lived.

These facts are proved by the statistics of 43 life insurance companies, compiled on the history of millions of policy holders.

Weight a true index of health

Strength, endurance and vitality are stored in the tissues and muscles of the body—always available to meet the demands of physical activity and to fight off infection.

People who are thin and under weight are unfit because they lack the tissues containing the resources of health.

If your body tears down more in a day than it builds up in a night you are treading on dangerous ground. You must build yourself up by getting more nourishment from the food you eat.

What to do to build up

Science has found that yeast is the richest source of the appetite-stimulating and body-building element called vitamin, which many foods lack, through elimination, by the time they reach our tables.

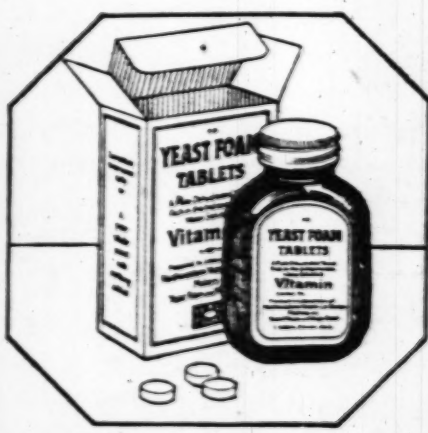

And yeast, in its purest, most potent and easy-to-take form is now available in Yeast Foam Tablets. Take these tablets in connection with your regular food. They are good for young and old.

"I Wouldn't Have Believed It Possible"

So writes Elmer Forst in a letter to the POST-DISPATCH in which he describes the thrills that were his when his "Jewel" brought to him—at his home—the music of the POST-DISPATCH Radio Concert.

"I could hear just as plainly as if I were present at the Concert," is another expression of Elmer's delight—taken from his voluntary endorsement of the FREE Radiophone Receiving Set offer made by the POST-DISPATCH

MURAL DECORATIONS
AT CITY ART MUSEUM

Various Periods Are Represented in Exhibits; Models of Interior Feature Collection

The City Art Museum is exhibiting this month a comprehensive collection of work by American mural painters and decorators. The exhibition contains more than 100 examples of decorative paintings, sketches for decorations and stained glass, models of room interiors and photographs of completed decorations. One of the most popular features of the collection is the group of small models of interiors, many of which are completely fitted with miniature furniture, metal work fixtures, rugs, curtains, pictures and other furnishings, illustrative of a historic period or a scheme of decoration.

One of these models is in the colonial style throughout, after designs by William Laurel Harris. It has miniature colonial furniture consisting of tables, chairs and sideboard of exquisite workmanship, made by the Kensington Manufacturing Co. The old-fashioned open fireplace is equipped with brass andirons and candlesticks made by the Sterling Bronze Co., and the miniature rugs, curtains and tapestry are by the Orinoco Mills. Above the fireplace is a decorative painting of a scene at the time of the Pilgrim colonization, with the Mayflower riding at anchor in the background. It is altogether a very attractive and livable interior, and shows in concrete manner the appearance of the finished work of the designer.

Italian Dining Room.
Another interior model is an "Italian Dining Room," by Thomas Mackay, in collaboration with several well-known makers of interior furnishings. It has a long Italian dining table in walnut, with chairs to match. The walls are finished in rough stucco, with an elaborate painted frieze of fruits and game, separated into panels by gilded acanthus brackets. The wrought iron candlesticks and andirons are little masterpieces in themselves. J. Mortimer Lichtenauer shows also an Italian interior, a complete living room with carefully executed furniture, metal lighting fixtures, "Renaissance" brocade, faience and bas-reliefs. A tiled floor, stucco walls and beamed ceiling are indicated.

A bedroom with decorations by T. Monroes Hewlett and furniture by C. R. Morson, is in a more modern vein. Its most striking features are a high post bed canopied in a blue fabric with black rectangular panels after the manner of Wedgewood ware, and a chair upholstered in material of similar pattern. The background of the room is an elaborate mural painting, open to the criticism that it destroys the flat effect of the wall by its insistence upon distance. Another interesting interior is after an architectural scheme by Ely Jacques Kahn, with mural decorations by Arthur Crisp, rugs, cushions and curtains by Grace Ackerman and metal fixtures by the Sterling Bronze Co. from designs by Arthur Crisp. Its distinctive features are the very long window seat against the central wall and the elaborate tile fireplace with polychrome decorations of dragons below and a fanciful medieval hunting scene above.

Few Admire Modernistic Style.
The modernistic and futuristic decorators have their representation also, though their work seems to find few admirers among the visitors at the Museum. A model of a theater rest room by James Daugherty is a concrete example of the application of modernistic theories to problems of decoration. The walls are covered with a weird assortment of cranes, pelicans and turtles with crazy-quilt shells, disappearing amid fantastic trees and other objects of less certain identity which do duty as landscape. To the average spectator the result is neither restful nor decorative. A music room by Nathaniel Pousette-Dart, has a modernistic wall decoration in a sort of geometria style, less obtrusive than the preceding, but somewhat incongruously contrast with the dark tones of the conventional piano and other woodwork.

Robert N. Chanler, who will be remembered by the collection of decorative screens in fantastic designs which he exhibited at the museum in 1929, is represented by a model of three "Chanler" rooms. These rooms are without furniture, showing merely the distinctive style of mural decoration which Chanler has evolved—a style sufficiently fantastic and exotic to satisfy the most jaded taste. The walls of the first room are covered with deep sea motifs, long strands of seaweed through which disport fish, mermaids and other inhabitants of the sea, both real and fanciful. In the second room is a forest, the trees of which are filled with monkeys in every conceivable attitude. The glass doors are ornamented with painted butterflies. The third and largest room is decorated with an exotic landscape peopled with queer beasts, birds and fishes.

The walls of the galleries in which these models are displayed are hung with numerous examples of mural paintings, sketches and photographs of completed work in public and private buildings. Adequate description of this portion of the exhibition will be reserved for a later date. The museum is also showing a collection of original drawings by Rembrandt, lent by Duveen Brothers of New York.

Elephant Shipped by Express.
Special to the Post-Dispatch.
MONTGOMERY, Ala.—An elephant weighing 3000 pounds has been shipped by express from Montgomery to Mahoney City, Pa. The animal was valued at $4500 and was loaded into a baggage car. This is declared to be one of a very few instances when a shipment of this nature was accepted by the express company.

demanded the company's payroll, a bookkeeper pointed to checks totaling $1800 on a desk before him andsaid: "There it is." The robber left with an oath.
The company, following police advice because of the frequency of payroll holdups, three weeks ago discontinued its practice of paying in cash and began paying weekly with checks.Two men with revolvers entered the company's building in the attempt, and encountered an employe in an anteroom. One remained to guard him while the second entered the office, in which the president of the company, John F. Gerst, was telephoning. Gerst was slow in complying with a command to hold up his hands and the armed man snatched the telephone from him and threatened to kill him. The bookkeeper and chief draftsman complied with the order as soon as it was given.PROVIDENT ASSOCIATION

Westcott Takes Price Lead
Among Quality CarsNow you can buy a car built on a quality basis at a price that has heretofore meant vastly less in motor car value.Reductions effective immediately cut from $200 to $600 from the prices of Westcott cars.There is no need now to consider buying a car of indifferent character and quality whose sole appeal has been price.With these new prices Westcott remains the same car of real merit. There has been no change, no cutting of quality.

1923 Construction Ideas

Westcott offers in the new models, introduced a few months ago, scores of ideas that point the way for 1923 motor car construction.There is a California top without extra cost.
The carburetion is controlled thermostatically, giving greater power, economy and speed.The chassis lubrication is by a 500-pound oil pressure system.
A new braking design gives better brakes and removes all rods and tubes from the rear axle.It is a wonderful car to handle. Despite its size it turns in a circle with an 18 foot radius.The upholstery is beautiful hand-buffed leather.

A Special Model at $1890

The special touring car, carrying much extra equipment, including Tuarc disc wheels or wire wheels, and two extra tires and tubes, is listed at $1890.The body is painted an art Onondaga brown, with water-crushed leather upholstery to match. The extra wheels and tires are mounted alongside, at the cowl. A trunk rack and polished aluminum guard rails in the rear add to the smartness of this car.Bright windshield brackets, scuff plate, and other little touches here and there take this car far from the commonplace.

A Seven-Passenger at $1890

A remarkable new motor features the seven-passenger touring car, which sells for $1890.Whether for a trip down the boulevard or across the continent, here is a car that will meet your every demand. The new motor is designed to give that extra burst of speed or that surplus supply of power which perhaps you won't often use but may sometimes want.Whatever model you choose, you will find Westcott first of all a quality car in performance and appearance.

COMMUNITY CHEST PLAN TO BE CONSIDERED HERE

Benevolent Agencies Would Secure Funds Through Joint Campaign.

The proposed community chest, securing of which through a joint financial campaign for charitable organizations of the city is planned, will be considered at a meeting of representatives from all benevolent agencies of St. Louis at the Chamber of Commerce Friday, under the auspices of the Community Council.

After a five-month survey of the operation of the plan in 45 cities, the Community Chest Committee has recommended that the method be put in operation here as soon as a canvass of charitable organizations and of leading philanthropic contributors has shown a sentiment favorable toward its success.

Under the community chest plan a single campaign is held for all the participating agencies, instead of many individual drives during the year. Givers have the privilege of designating the charity to which they wish their contributions to go. The campaign goal is set only after each agency has submitted its budget to a special Budget Committee, which then determines upon the total amount really needed.

In most of the cities studied, the community chest campaign has included Catholic, Protestant, Jewish and non-sectarian agencies, as well as all types of social service, from relief work to educational and preventive activities. All preserve their own identity in carrying on their work.

Advantages of Plan. Among the advantages the Community Chest committee reported last week were: A greater spirit of unity among all religious, social and economic groups; a larger total subscribed; more contributors obtained; larger gifts from individual subscribers; increased interest in the work of the charitable agencies; prevention of overlapping relief work, and reduced expenses for drives.

Reports from 21 cities show $13,158,453 raised after federated effort, as against $5,300,095 before, or an increase of about 160 per cent. The number of donors, in 28 cities increased from 118,778 to 272,000 after the community chest was put in operation.

Exceeded Goals. Twenty of the community chest campaigns last year exceeded their goals, and only 12 out of 84 fell below 80 per cent. Public drives for charitable purposes in St. Louis in 1933 averaged but 54 per cent of success under the individual campaign system.

The committee's report says that of 92 St. Louis agencies, opinion of the community chest plan was sought, 87 favored it entirely, and three with reservations, while only two were opposed.

The report was signed by Judge Thomas C. Hennings, as chairman, Paul Bakewell Jr., Joseph Bray, James W. Byrnes, J. Lionberger Davis, Bernard Greensfelder, Daniel Catlin, Robert McKittick Jones, Charles Nagel, Sidney I. Rothchild, E. H. Steedman, Sol Swartz, Horace Swope, and Harry Wallace.

from bushes at the roadside not more than 15 feet distant from the doctor.

The letter also states that the funeral sermon for Dr. Shelton was preached by a Tibetan, converted at the mission 15 years ago. Dr. Shelton was buried beside the road to Lhasa, high in the mountains.

Mrs. Shelton, who was in India at the time of Dr. Shelton's death, had arrived in America and has stated that she will devote the remainder of her life to the translation of the Bible into the Tibetan tongue. While at Calcutta, she completed the translation of a hymnal, story book and geography and arranged for their printing.

BANDIT WHO KILLED DR. SHELTON WAS ONLY 15 FEET AWAY Letter Says He Was Not Mistaken for Chinese as Had Been Thought.
Further reports to the United Christian Missionary Society here from its Tibetan mission at Batang have established that the robbers who murdered Dr. A. L. Shelton, noted medical missionary, last February, did not, as believed, mistake him for a Chinese.
A letter from Mrs. W. M. Hardy, wife of Dr. Shelton's medical associate at the mission, declares that investigation has disclosed that the robber who killed Dr. Shelton fired

"Jazz" Becomes Music

RHYTHM and melody combine in happiest accord in the remarkable new dance numbers, recorded by the Original Piano Trio. These three gifted young musicians have taken the popular hits of the day and, re-arranging them for three pianos, have achieved an orchestral effect, a delicacy of tone and smartness of rhythm that is an irresistible invitation to the dance.

The Exclusive Recordings for The AMPICO "Music's Identity" will prove a delightful surprise to all lovers of dancing. They are a distinct novelty—perfect in tempo—rich in orchestral color—absolutely different from any previous dance recording.

Two numbers, just released, Song of India and Gypsy Blues, both Fox Trots, are now ready to entertain you in our Ampico Studios. We are always glad to display the Ampico for your pleasure.

For Summer Showers or Summer Sun, Carry a Smart Umbrella

The Umbrella Shop of St. Louis Features the Largest Assortment of Colored Silk Umbrellas of the Season

At Prices to Suit Every Purse

YOU may carry an Umbrella of beautiful colored silk—perhaps with novelty border—then you will be prepared for either. Besides utility you have style in the Umbrella itself and in the color contrast to your costume as well.

Umbrella making has become an art, for the colored silks are effectively set off with fancy handles, trimmed with bakelite, pearls and sometimes wood, with convenient straps or rings for carrying. Even the stub ends and claw tips carry out the color schemes. All smart shades can be chosen; priced from $5 to $27

Umbrella Shop—First Floor.

You Will Want Lighter Weight Bedding for Summer

SUMMER Blankets of white wool, very light, cut single and bound at each end. Choice of blue or pink borders and single or double bed sizes.

$12.50 and $14.50

Printed seamless Bed Sets can be selected in colors to follow out your color scheme and sizes for twin or double beds. Spreads have cut corners and scalloped edges. Twin bed size $4 to $10. Double bed size $5.00 to $12.50

Scalloped Marseilles Bed-spreads have bolster covers to match. They come with cut corners and a weight that is easily laundered. Size $12.50, $11.50 and $12.50.

No sediment in this HOT WATER

THE clean hot water that flows through Pittsburgh heater contains no rust or sediment to injure baby's sensitive skin. Nor will it discolor or wash. This hot water flows as fresh and clean cold water. And there is as much of it as you can find use for.

Cold water from water main flows through the Pittsburgh heater; there is no storage tank. There it is heated by intense gas flames concentrated on the clean coils through which water passes.

Costs less than burning a coal fire; is clean, and adds hundreds of dollars to the value of your home.

Opening only hot water faucet lights the heating flame. Closing the faucet extinguishes it. That's all you have to do.

WOMAN IS APPOINTED AS COUNTY WELFARE ORGANIZER

Edith B. Stringer of St. Louis Will Take Up State Work July 1. By the Associated Press. JEFFERSON CITY, May 13.—The appointment of Miss Edith B. Stringer of St. Louis as organizer of the County Welfare Departments was announced yesterday by the State Board of Charities and Corrections. She will begin her work July 1.

Stringer of St. Louis as organizer of the County Welfare Departments was announced yesterday by the State Board of Charities and Corrections. She will begin her work July 1. Her work will consist of fostering county welfare organizations in counties under the statute which provide that the County Welfare Superintendent may succeed the County Trust Officer and other minor part-time county officials, the welfare superintendent assuming the combined duties of the other officers.

Adoption of the plan is optional with counties. Twelve already have formed their county welfare organizations and secured superintendents.

BARRETT "DEEPLY TOUCHED" BY CALL FROM THE "HOME FOLKS"

SPECIAL TO THE POST-DISPATCH
JEFFERSON CITY, May 13.—Attorney-General Barrett today was asked by the Republican County Committee of Lewis County to enter the Republican senatorial race as the candidate of Northeast Missouri. Barrett, who was born and reared in Lewis County, later going to St. Louis to practice law, expressed himself as "deeply touched" by this call from the "home folks." He still is considering the political factors involved, however.

The Lewis county's resolution in part follows:
"A generation has passed since this part of the State has been honored with a United States senatorship and then it was Lewis County which gave both the State and nation the illustrious Senator, James S. Green. In those days it was represented too by Missouri's distinguished Chief Justice, David Wagner, both of these men the friends of your grandfather, the Rev. Jesse W. Barrett, who was the founder and first president of the Missouri Press Association. Lewis County was the boyhood home of Vice President Thomas R. Marshall, and the temporary home of Secretary of State John Hay. It has furnished a long list of the prominent leaders of other days and it has kept burning through the years the ideals of public service which have illumined their lives."

"Your life has been thoroughly known to us. We have had faith in you and have believed that you were a son worthy of our traditions. We confidently expected your record in office to illustrate those qualities in such a way that our estimate of you would be shared by the rest of the State."

"As Senator you can and will speak at Washington the voice of Missouri. You understand her people and her aspirations, and you will be heard because you will stand for the things for which 3,000,000 Missourians stand. As a Republican Senator you will help the President of the United States in these difficult days of reconstruction. A loyal Republican you have yet been above blind partisanship and have kept aloof from factional strife."

Monday. This led to sympathetic buying in some of the other rails. Marking was in the lead, with the Transcontinental in the oil group moving out conspicuously.

Foreign exchange rates were firmer. The bond market was generally stronger and somewhat more active.

The Bond Market.

The strength which came into the domestic market of the bond market was reflected in the movement of the Bethlehem Steel-Lakawanna Steel merger. The price of the bond was held steady at 100, and the bond held its ground and was active. The price of the bond was held steady at 100, and the bond held its ground and was active. Atlas Power Dividend.

A dividend of 3 per cent on the common stock of the Atlas Power Co. has been declared payable June 10, 1932. The dividend is payable to the stockholders on Wednesday, May 31, 1932.

FINANCIAL

American Cotton Oil Co. has been ordered by the U.S. Supreme Court to pay $10 million in damages to rubber plantations in Ceylon.

Rubber stocks and Ceylon Cane Sugar rose even more fractionally. Railway mortgages were low-priced issues, some active around their prices of the preceding day. New York City Terminals closed at two points.

Greater New York Fractions remained unchanged, as did the Interborough, which had 4½ certificates which dropped below 15.

Liberty bonds marked time, while foreign exchange rates continued to edge lower. The London Standard 5½% of 1937 and 1937-38 was down ¼¢ from its closing of 162½ and there was a stonier market for the French 5½% of 1935, which was down ¼¢ from 100½ at the close Friday. Anticipated news of the coming boom in the oil market and around 93¢ was well above their recent low figure. Most other foreign bonds showed little change.

The trend in the New York market for Canadian provincial bonds this week was variable.

NEW PLAYS AND FILMS AND NEWS OF STAGE AND SCREEN PLAYERS

Drama Standards Kept High in St. Louis Amateur Theaters

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

HAVING ruminated at odd moments upon the smothering of the soul of drama beneath the trappings and the suits of production, the writer was suddenly illuminated by a possible significance in two of Shakespeare's speeches, during the Junior Players' concluding performance of "A Midsummer Night's Dream." Quince, the carpenter, directs that "one must come in with a bush of thorns and a lantern, and say he comes to disfigure or present the person of moonshine." A moment later Nick Bottom, the weaver, adds: "Some man or other must present wall; and let him have some plaster, or some loam, or some rough-cast about him, to signify wall; or let him hold his fingers thus, and through that cranny shall Pyramus and Thisby whisper."

It is a celebrated fact that properties and settings were not employed on Shakespeare's stage. At the Globe Theater there were merely hangings and curtains, with placards reading "This is a forest," or "This is a prison," or whatever the locale might be. Yet we discover Quince and Bottom in the act of devising, with nincompoopish ingenuity, a property moon and a scenic wall.

A solution of the anomaly, and one not lacking plausibility, might be that some David Belasco of the sixteenth century hit upon the idea of realistic stage settings and appointments, and pestered Shakespeare to adopt them; that the latter, a man of poetry, was alarmed in his deep-seated instincts by the threatened invasion of mechanical aids to the imagination; and that he promptly seized upon his own weapon of satire for the purpose of slaughtering the innovator, after adorning him for posterity with the scene of an ass.

Nick Bottom's Rehearsals. I F so Bottom has been thoroughly avenged, Aristotle ranged the elements of drama in this order of importance: Characterization, plot, literary style and production. Apparently he regarded acting as a minor and external accoutrement, unworthy of mention. The modern manager is inclined to shift the ingredient of production from last place to first, as in the ruinously expensive and monstrous extravaganzas of Morris Gest, or the "Follies" of Signor Ziegfeld. Or else first place is accorded to the personage called a "star," this being an actor or actress so publicized, regardless of merit, as to serve for a magnet at the box office. The order now stands: Production or star, and almost at the vanishing point, plot, characterization and literary style.

As a result, judgment, in matters theatrical, has fled to amateurs. Their performances are often ill-acted, and the stage dress may be cheap and makeshift. But those for whom "the play's the thing" will resort notwithstanding to Thyrsus for "The Devil's Disciple," to the Shakespeare Association of Washington University for "Romeo and Juliet," and to the Artists' Guild and the Players for "Uncle Vanya" and "The Violins of Autumn."

For our part we prefer students even of a school of expression in "When We Dead Awaken" to Ethel Barrymore in "Desiree," or David Warfield in "The Return of Peter Grimm." A similar situation tends to arise even in music, the professional standards of which remain as yet infinitely higher. For instance, we shall be indebted to an organization of amateurs, the St. Louis Musician, for a forthcoming performance of Beethoven's "Choral" Symphony; and it was a band of children, the Junior Players, who revived Delibes' famous ballet, "Sylvia" last night at the Odeon.

A Play for Children, If—A CURIOUS little play called "Ubu Roi" is having a furore in Europe. It is being produced for the second time, and thousands of copies have been sold. It is said to have been written 30 years ago by two school boys, who were moved to imitate a satire upon one of the more unpopular of their teachers. Admirers claim for it "the satiric simplicity of Aristophanes, the good sense and truculence of Rabelais, and the lyric fantasy of Shakespeare"—an estimate against the extravagance of which Ezra Pound has protested.

An English reviewer pronounces it a masterpiece as a play for marionettes or for a children's theater—only the ears of the audience could be properly bandaged, for a recurrent joke of the piece is the use of droll and improper expletives. The scene is laid in Poland, and in a series of grotesque incidents we see shown the spurring on of Pa Ubu by Ma Ubu to conspire against the King and seize the throne. The conspiracy is successful, but the King's son escapes.

Ma Ubu behaves with quite constitutional greed, securing to himself all the titles, treasures and revenues of the various distinguished victims of the revolution; and when the nobility of Poland come to him to complain, he commands that they shall all be executed, so that he may profit by their deaths. Then he leads forth his army against the Russian. A revolution speedily breaks out "Ziggy" Leaves Art Flat.

BEFORE beginning rehearsals for the next "Follies," the Hon. Florenz Ziegfeld Jr. proclaimed to a horrified universe that he is "off art for life." The illustrious impresario, during a recent visit to this city, compelled a purple scarf to resume its place upon a mayonnaise-colored shirt front, and disburdened himself as follows: "It's this way. There was an Oriental scene in last year's 'Follies' that cost me $24,000 before the curtain went up, and it might as well have been left out of the show. They told me that if the scene was to be real art, it must be historically correct, and so it was, down to the buckles on the shoes. But the costumes were also historically correct, and that made 'em so long that nobody could see the buckles."

Kreisler Sets a New Style.

A GOOD story has come to light regarding Fritz Kreisler. The violinist was to give a recital in an Eastern city with Josef Hofmann and Pablo Casals. At 8:15, when the audience had gathered, there was no Kreisler. His colleagues rushed to his hotel and found him peacefully asleep. When he came to dress he found that he had packed his evening clothes, but had forgotten a waistcoat. A waiter was summoned and readily surrendered his vest. It was brocade with reminiscences of many menus, but Kreisler tranquilly prepared to put it on. The waiter remembered that he had just purchased a new waistcoat. Kreisler donned the garment, which promptly

Greenwich Village Is Etched in Frank Play

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 13. A COMEDY in four acts, "The Red Geranium," by Ruth M. Woodward, which was presented at the Princess Theater Monday night by the Greenwich Village Producing Co., is probably the queerest dramatic flower that has bloomed this spring. It opens like a stunt at the Lamb's Gambol and closes with a tragedy. Between first and last it offers perhaps the most accurate series of pictures ever shared of Greenwich Village life of a sort—the sort which tourists believe generally prevails in the famous downtown quarter, and which really does go on in odd corners.

The Village atmosphere is present; so are the Village costumes, morals, cigarettes, home-brews, dialects and free-love philosophy. Even the tragedy is of the Village. It involves Mary of Modford (Massachusetts), who comes down to spend a studio evening with girl acquaintances and remains to spend the freshness of her maidenhood upon Larry, the hypnotizing Village lover.

Miss Woodward has written her play with an openness fairly matching the studio decorations supplied by Cleon Throckmorton. The lurid and misleading of Mary does nothing of detail for lack of frankness on the part of the playwright.

The four acts have for settings a Village apartment, a studio, the "Red Geranium" tea-room, and a hospital in which Mary—capitally played by Florence Rittenhouse—comes to the end of her folly. In the cast are William S. Rainey, Mary Ricard, Eleanor Coates, Mation Lord, Mary Donnelly and Donald Bethune.

Ethel Levy's New Vehicle. THE program describes as "a musical comedy different" a three-act opus, "Go Easy, Mabel," by Charles George, which was presented Monday night at the Longacre Theater, with Ethel Levy, former wife of George M. Cohan, as star. But neither in music nor action did the little piece prove in any way heretical.

A husband and wife begin to take each other as a matter of course. Somebody suggests to each that he or she make the other jealous—a notion so striking that one feels sure it has been employed before. Tradition is steadfastly maintained in the incidents, except for one innovation. People under the necessity of escaping are hidden not in the boudoir but in the bathroom. The usual feeble attempt at impropriety is made in the familiar smirking and timorous manner.

But the play is not entirely devoid of dramatic values. Miss Levy can kick one foot higher than her head without the slightest effort, and sings several indifferent songs with so much gusto that they seem rollicking. Indeed, one is moved to wonder why someone doesn't write a musical comedy for this capable performer. Others in the cast are Estelle Winwood, Will Denning, Eileen Van Buren, Margaret Dumont, Arthur Aylesworth and Russell Mack.

A Blow at Mere Man. ONE grand slam for the women—even though the feminist current tries with all its might to remain a subtlety—is "The Advertising of Kate," comedy in four acts, by Annie Nathan Meyer, which was produced Monday night at the Ritz Theater.

Kate, a partner in a publicity firm, has vowed to play the game just like a man. But you get the idea at the beginning that she is in love with her youthful partner, who flirts with pretty young women and doesn't give Kate a thought except in strictly commercial affairs.

In the second and third acts she is negotiating a big advertising deal; (Continued on Page Four.)

"Gypsy Passion" With Mme. Rejane Will Be the Attraction at Three Theaters.

study. There is a note of pathos when the boy is overcome with remorse when his badness causes the teacher to lose her position. The boy later inherits money and goes to a fashionable city school. This affords an opportunity to show "Freckles" wearing sporty raiment and driving his own car, but he tires of city life and returns to the small town where he tries to make amends for some of his early pranks. There are several school-room scenes which are said to be highly diverting. On the program also is Larry Semon's new comedy, "The Show."

Thomas Meighan and a cast including Leatrice Joy, leading woman, and five famous screen kiddies, Charlotte Jackson, Barbara Mater, Bruce Guerin and the mischievous DeBrie Twins, are appearing in "The Bachelor Daddy," the feature picture at the Missouri Theater this week.

The picture has the theme of a man's love for five motherless children entrusted to his care by a dying friend. He brings the children to his home, to the disgust of his intended bride and to the delight of his private secretary. As the story develops, blind love is awakened with surprising results. The picture is based on the novel, "The Proxy Daddy."

The Missouri management announces that it has installed a radio machine and will pick up the Post-Dispatch concerts in the theater nightly so that the audiences may hear them.

"Where Is My Wandering Boy Tonight," based on a famous old song of the same title, is the week's offering at the Liberty. There are only four principal characters. These are played by Virginia True Boardman, Cullen Landis, Celeste Johnson and "Patsy" Ruth Miller, formerly of St. Louis.

The story concerns the activities of a small-town young man who is in love with a charming village girl. His affections stray, however, when he becomes fascinated by a visiting show girl who encourages his attentions. He follows her to New York, leaving his mother and sweetheart almost broken-hearted. After a few vain efforts to win the girl's attention he learns that it cannot be done without money. Desperate, he returns home and resumes his position in the bank and a few days later disappears again with a large sum of money. Back to the city, he enters into a life of revelry showering gifts upon his too-willing temptress. Then the bubble bursts and he finds himself penniless, jailed and facing a prison sentence. Betrayed by the girl for whom he had ruined himself, he suffers a revolt of spirit. He is stricken with remorse and this, together with the penalty he must pay, plays an important part in the climax.

The feature at the Delmar, Criterion and Congress is "Gypsy Passion," with Mme. Rejane, famous French actress, in the leading role. This is a French production based on Jean Richepin's famous gypsy story, "Marius, the Child of the Bear." It is technically notable from the fact that the entire picture was made without a studio. The outdoor views were made in natural light while a portable lighting system was used for interiors and night scenes. Louis Mercanton was the director.

What They Are Doing in the Movie Studios

William de Mille has finished "Nice People," his production for Paramount with Wallace Reid, Bebe Daniels and Conrad Nagel, and is now engaged in the work of cutting and assembling the film. When he finishes his task he will turn his attention to his next production, which will be an adaptation by Clara Beranger of Booth Tarkington's story, "Clarence," with Wallace Reid, Agnes Ayres and May McAvoy.

Diving for pearls and battles between a rowboat equipped with a machine gun and a near-pinnas schooner owned by crooked pearls are a few of the stunts now engaging the attention of the company making "The Man Unconquerable." Jack Holt is the star and it is he who manipulates the machine gun.

St. Louis Actress Wins London in "Decameron"

LONDON, May 13.
Miss Willette Kershaw, formerly of St. Louis, U. S. A., who has the feminine lead in "Decameron Nights," at the Drury Lane Theater, is described by the critic of the Telegraph as revealing "a pretty sense of pathos, her performance throughout being imbued with a maidenly charm that won for her the sympathies of all the spectators." She was warned, however, against a tendency towards "monotony of expression."

The play, based on Boccaccio's "One Hundred Tales," is by Robert McLaughlin and Boyle. Lady Kershaw, who has borrowed from the Italian classic the framework of a plot and worked it out into a full-sized play. The result is a series of incidents of a wonderfully melodramatic character, in which a struggle between virtue and villainy is carried on with all the resolution and savagery of medieval times.

Two noble ladies, Princess Alatiel (Miss Kershaw) and Teodora, wife of Torello d'Istria, a Venetian nobleman, divide the honors due to the heroine. The former is first encountered as a shipwrecked maiden, who, having lost her memory, is unable to tell who she is or whence she comes. She finds refuge in a monastery at Neda, where also Prince Saladin of Damascus seeks an asylum, and the two promptly fall in love.

Thither also come Torello and a certain Riccardo Liberti, whose demeanor and appearance at once proclaim him as the scoundrel of the piece, and who declares that Venice can boast not one virtuous woman. Torello declares that his wife supplies proof to the contrary, and accepts a wager from Riccardo of the effect that the latter will prove Torello's wife to be faithful.

Plot Like "Cymbeline."
As in Shakespeare's "Cymbeline," Alatiel contrives to conceal herself in Teodora's bedroom, where he steals an amulet from her arm and discovers a secret mark on her body. He reaches Venice at the moment when the Festival of Purity is being celebrated in the Piazza di San Marco, and accuses Teodora of infidelity with an unknown man. She is condemned to stand naked in the square; but at the critical moment there is an eclipse of the sun, completely veiling Teodora from the view of the disappointed spectators.

In the course of events, Teodora is sculptured and Riccardo is slain in a terrific duel with Saladin, who discovers, too, that the shipwrecked maiden is no other than the Princess Alatiel, to whom he had been betrothed for reasons of state and whom he had never seen.

Drury Lane has a reputation for beauty and lavishness of spectacle, but it has never presented anything to equal the wonderful series of stage pictures with which the eye is beguiled in "The Decameron Nights." From the impressive austerity and solid grandeur of the Monastery of Neda we pass to the sensuous loveliness of Venice; then to the Royal Hanging Gardens of Damascus; and, surpassing all in beauty, to the view of the Piazza di San Marco, with its pinnacles of gorgeously dressed lords and ladies.

The company will also give two special performances at Geneva, and later will visit Christiania and Stockholm.

An unusually clever sketch, by Jon Swinley, and entitled "The Man in the Chair," has been put on at the Coliseum. It tells the story of a young wife who, after having been married to a drug addict for two years, finds life so unbearable that she goes to the doctor—in whom incidentally she is not interested—and begs him to make her life worth living again by killing her husband in the course of his professional attentions.

At first the doctor is horrified, but eventually he practically consents, and it is no surprise then to discover that he is in love with the lady whose husband he is to murder. He does make a proviso, however, that, should his courage fail him at the last minute, he shall be absolved from his promise by telling her over the telephone that he cannot do it.

Telephone "No."
So far everything seems plain sailing, but then there appears a friend of the doctor who, we have already been told, has had such an influence on his life that he may practically be said to be able to read all his thoughts. The newcomer sits in an armchair with his back to the audience and proceeds to read the doctor's thoughts very thoroughly. He knows as well as the audience the murder that his friend is planning, and eventually drags the truth out of him. Having done that, he pleads with him eloquently not to build his future on a love that can

WASHING WON'T RID HEAD OF DANDRUFF
The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.
Do this tonight, and by morning, most if not all of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.
You will find all itching and digging and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustreous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.
You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

KILLS FLEAS
Sergeant's Skip Flea Soap positively kills fleas, lice, etc. Won't irritate skin or eyes and leaves hair clean, soft and shiny. The cake lasts long time. At dealers or from us.

Eczema Caused Years of Intense Agony
"I have suffered intense agony from eczema on my leg and other parts of my body for years, and received only temporary relief from other preparations. It is only a month since I started to use PETERSON'S OINTMENT, and there is no sign of eczema or itching. You can refer to me—T. J. Taylor, 27 West 12th Street, Buffalo, N. Y."
"I've got a hundred testimonials," says Peterson of Buffalo, "just as sincere and honest as this one. Years ago when I first started to put out PETERSON'S OINTMENT, I found up me and there was a big box for 60 cents, and I am still doing it, as every drug store in the country knows."
"I guarantee PETERSON'S OINTMENT because I know that its mighty healing power is marvelous. It cures every one who buys a box that it is really guaranteed. Eczema, skin diseases, chafing, burns, scalds and sunburn, and if not satisfactory any drugist will return your money. Mail orders will be filled by Peterson's Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y. For sale by Judge & Bolsh, Enderle Drug Co. and Wolf-Wilson Drug Co."

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION
Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets
That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.
Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.
No gripping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.
If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.
Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 50c.

Only One New Production This Week in New York
NEW YORK, May 13. ONLY one new production is scheduled for this week. At the Belmont Theater, Monday night, will be presented an American comedy by J. C. and Elliott Nugent, entitled "Kempy." Grant Mitchell will appear as leading man. The authors will have parts, as well as Lotus Robb, Helen Carey, Robert Lee Allen and others.
Tomorrow night, at the Manhattan Opera House and the Hippodrome, will occur the annual national vaudeville show, with all the principal variety players now in the East appearing for the benefit of the National Vaudeville Association fund.

sell, the dimpled chin of Elsie Ferguson, the golden hair of Mae Marsh, the swan-like neck of Marjorie Rambeau, the sparkling eyes of Doris Keane, the arched eyebrows of Jane Cowl and the smiling lips of Blanche Ring.
Play for Frances Starr.
FRANCES STARR is said to be preparing to try out a play by Jean Archibald, called "Shore Leave," which Mr. Belasco has had stored away for some time, and which he once caused to be tested in Toronto. A dramatization of Henry Leon Wilson's "Merton of the Movies" is announced for next season, with Glenn Hunter in the title role. The 1922 Ziegfeld "Follies" are to have their premiere at Atlantic City on May 29, and will arrive at the New Amsterdam on June 6. Will Rogers, after a few seasons of absence, is to return to the cast, of which Gilda Gray, Raymond Hitchcock and Florence O'Denishawn will be members.
Mary Garden is said to be under contract to appear on the speaking stage next fall in Maeterlinck's "Pelléas and Melisande," with Sidney Blackmer. Billie Burke, in "The Intimate Strangers," concluded a week's engagement tonight at the Shubert Theatre.
Laurette Taylor as Critic.
WHEN a group of critics and playwrights got together in a revue, "No Strife," last Sunday night at the Forty-ninth Street Theater, for the purpose of showing New York just how actors ought to do their work, Miss Laurette Taylor was invited by the New York Times to turn reviewer and report the show.
The actress, in a next-morning article, gently but firmly advised the critics "to leave the stage before they take it up." She also advocated "a course of voice culture" for the purpose of giving the actors that meet for Heywood Brown, and a course with Yvette Guilbert for Alexander Woolcott.
"The first beautiful sight that met my eyes," she wrote, "was Woolcott, Toohy, Benchley, Kaufman, Connelly and Adams in dishabille, and, believe me, Mabel. It was terrible." She found some of the performers "competent," other "adequate," and still others their usual selves; also, "it was an evening of the perpendicular pronoun."
"None of the authors," Miss Taylor continued, "put their names on the playlets, and I don't think there will be any extensive inquiry as to who they are." However, she discovered "one gorgeous line" in a skit directed at Zoe Akins, and called "Zowie" or "The Curse of an Akins Heart." It was: "My darling, you are like the long-lost laughter of an untricked priest."
Farache and the Drama.
OSSIP DYMOV relates that his play, "The Bronx Express," grew out of an attack of farache suffered by his little daughter. The nearest physician could not be brought for some time, and the child had to be quieted. So the father made a story of the characters in advertisements which he had seen during daily rides in the subway. The pain ceased; or at all events the little girl fell asleep. Despite this omen, it occurred to Dymov that the story might be turned into a play, and in a few weeks it was completed.
Barney Bernard, now starring with Alexander Carr, the latest Potash and Perlmutter play, "Partners Again," began his theatrical career 18 years ago with $2.50 in his pocket. He had run away from home in Rochester because his parents insisted that his niche in life was the clothing business.
Bernstein Play in English.
HENRI BERNSTEIN'S "La Rale," recently presented by the French Players at the Belmont, is to be translated into English for production next season.
"Lilium," with Joseph Schildkraut and Eva Le Gallien, arrived at the Garrick Theater in Chicago last Monday night, for an indefinite stay.
The announcement comes from Moscow that Isadora Duncan, the American dancer, was married. In that city on May 3 to Sergei Esenin, an Imagist poet. * * * Winchell Smith, playwright and producer, who has just returned from Europe, relates that in Berlin he saw a real novelty in the way of a play, which told its story like a motion picture, having between 40 and 50 scenes. In concerned a composer whose life went to waste because an evil genius always thwarted his happiness.
"The scenes," Smith said, "were all over the stage, the light being played on one set and completely blotting out the rest. A character, for instance, for something he had done at another time. Immediately the light shifted to another section, and the happening was acted out, with a double, I suppose, for the narrator. I believe there is some chance of bringing this production to America."

ADVERTISMENT
SULPHUR IS BEST TO CLEAR UP UGLY, BROKEN OUT SKIN
Any breaking out or skin irritation on face, neck or body is overcome quickly by applying Menthosulphur, says a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ-destroying properties, nothing has ever been found to take the place of this sulphur preparation that instantly brings ease from the itching, burning and irritation.
Menthosulphur heals eczema right up, leaving the skin clear and smooth. It seldom fails to relieve the torment of disfigurement. A little jar of Menthosulphur may be obtained at any drug store. It is used like cold cream.
ADVERTISMENT.
CARELESS SHAMPOOING SPOILS THE HAIR
Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.
The best thing for steady use is Mulsified coconut oil shampoo (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than anything else you can use.
Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup of glass with a little warm water is sufficient to cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich creamy lather, which rises out easily, removing every particle of dirt, dandruff and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.
You can get Mulsified coconut oil shampoo at any pharmacy, it's very cheap and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.
ADVERTISMENT.
We Give Them Away To Women With Good Credit
If you are the head of a home, and have ever bought anything on monthly payments, either in your home town or elsewhere, we want to make you an absolute gift of one of these genuine Rogers Sugar Shells, and will send it by insured parcel-post upon receipt of your request. Then, once a month, we will mail you our Bargain Offers in Home Furnishings, which are shipped direct from the factory on easy monthly payments.
These offers will save you many a dollar. Cut out this ad., and mail it to us with your name and address, and we will send you a copy of a firm with whom you have, or have had a monthly-payment account. But one dollar. Shell to each family.

GOSSIP OF THE WEEK AROUND NEW YORK Society Women to Give Old-Time Street Fair—"Integrity" to Be Taught in Schools.
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, May 13.—The street fair opens Tuesday. That in itself is not an astounding announcement, since New York has known all sorts of street parties for ever so long. But the street fair is different, and bids fair to be one of the most attractive "stunts" ever shown before gaping Manhattan crowds.
"It's a circus, a fair, a carnival and an old home week party combined." Headed by a phalanx which walks right out of the social register into Park avenue, the street fair will be operated day and night for three days to raise funds for the Association to Aid Crippled Children.
Everything the circus has to offer and everything the largest church fair known to men has ever had to tempt the pocketbook will be on hand under the control and voice of society leaders. Society women will "bark for the show."
The street fair may become an annual event if New York likes the sample. It will begin Tuesday noon with a fanfare of trumpets, at least three band concerns and heralds galore.
"Integrity" to Be Taught.
"Integrity" will soon be taught in New York's schools. It may not be included in the curriculum as a special study, but every teacher will be ordered to keep it in mind with everything he or she teaches.
Conferences have been held by superintendents and other officials of the education system with a view to introducing plain honesty to the students. More meetings are to follow, but already a system has been evolved which it is expected will be followed in detail in all schools.
Associate Superintendent Meloney said this week that training in old-fashioned ethics for students is proving a bigger need every day. If it is necessary, he said, "Integrity" will be taught as a special course, but he believed it could be studied better in all courses which the students take.
Another Subway Wanted.
New York wants another new subway. This one would be exclusively for mail, baggage and freight from the Grand Central to the Pennsylvania station. The Forty-second Street Property Owners' Association is behind the project, and has gone so far as to consider plans.
"More than 2700 truckloads of mail pass between the two stations each day," says a statement. "These truckloads go by the street and carry a real danger both to traffic and pedestrians."
To Show Model Tenements.
Models of the model tenements which the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. plans to build as its contribution toward solving the housing problem will be shown next week at the "Queens Exposition," which will be held in Astoria, Long Island City. The models are of buildings erected around a square with every room opening to air and sunlight. The apartment houses will be started soon on Jackson boulevard, a few blocks from the Queensboro Bridge plaza.
All Jewish organizations were urged to join in the new session of the American Jewish Congress to aid the campaign for the protection of Jewish rights everywhere, in a statement by Nathan Straus.
"We are seeking the defense of the fair name of Israel," said Straus, "against attacks actuated by bigotry and racial prejudices, and our aims are so closely associated with the cause of justice that we should have the support of all right-minded people everywhere."

The greatest masterpiece in the Art Gallery of Life is Nature's "Picture of Health."
It is a marvelous portrayal of the human body at its best. One beholds a composite of all the finest qualities of the human body in perfect working order. All parts of which are sound, well organized and disposed, performing their functions freely, naturally.
If you fall in any single point of reason, you are not the picture of health. It is impossible, then, that you can mean to rebuild your strength, energy and vigor to bring your body to a normal state of efficiency in all of its parts.
LYKO
The Great General Tonic
Nervous is more often a result of exhausted nerves and the want of blood, and the only way to get the blood and nerves back to normal is by taking LYKO. It is a reliable and powerful tonic, and a functional regulator of the liver, kidneys and bowels. All diseases and ailments are cured by LYKO. It is the only tonic that can be taken by all ages and in all climates.

QUEENA MARIO JOINS METROPOLITAN ROSTER

Marion Telva and Manuel Salazar Re-Engaged, According to Announcement.

NEW YORK, May 13.—Before sailing this week for France, General Manager Guilio Gatti-Casazza of the Metropolitan Opera Company announced the list of singers engaged for next year. Among the newcomers will be Miss Queena Mario, coloratura and lyric soprano, familiar in St. Louis through appearances there with the San Carlo Opera Company, and recently a member of Antonio Scotti's troupe.

Miss Marion Telva, St. Louis contralto, is re-engaged for her third season, and Manuel Salazar, tenor, is re-engaged for his second year at the Metropolitan. American singers who will make their debuts at the Metropolitan next season include Edward Johnson, tenor; and Misses Laura Robertson, Selma Segal and Lucille Taylor, sopranos.

Miss Marie Jeritta, Feodor Chaliapin, Amelita Galli-Curci and Titta Rufa are re-engaged for the coming season. Newcomers there, all said to be of European reputation, will be: Barbara Kemp, Delle Reinhard and Elizabeth Rothberg, sopranos; Ina Bourskaya and Sigrid Olegin, mezzo-sopranos; Giacomo Lauri Volpi and Kurt Taucher, tenors; and Paul Bender, Michael Bohnen and Gustav Schutsendorf, basses, and baritone, Edmund Burke, baritone, is also engaged.

At least two novelties will be presented. These are: "Anima Allegria," with a libretto by Giuseppe Adam, based on a comedy by the Brothers Quintero, with music by Franco Vittadini; and "Mona Lisa," with a libretto by Beatrice Dowkey and score by Max Schilling. There will be revivals of Gounod's "Romeo et Juliette," Massenet's "Thais," Meyerbeer's "L'Africaine," Rossini's "Guilherme Tell," Strauss's "Die Rosenkavalier" and Wagner's "Tannhauser."

Grandma used Sage Tea to Darken Hair

GRANDMOTHER kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied, with wonderful effect. By using it at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through the hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color, and looks glossy, soft and beautiful.

feally, and the instrument is kept in tune by a delicate system of weights. The fingerboard is accomplished by means of V-shaped steel digits, and the mechanism plays with as much precision as a facility in the highest positions as in the first four or five. The violin is muted by touching a button. The performer sits at a console with two manuals and various electrical controls. The notes which he strikes on the keys are sounded on the violin. Energy is supplied by a motor; and, by means of electrical devices, it is as easy to play 100 violins as one. The tone is described as unusually full and resonant, and all the methods of expression are said to be practicable, in proportion to the skill of the operator.

No doubt it is possible to equip every known instrument with a self-playing apparatus. But think of a block full of player-cornets, or an apartment house turned into a pandemonium of mechanical trombones!

Greek Drama and Mathematics.

WHY is the style of the dramas of Sophocles so unadorned and austere that the lavishly decorated poetry of Shakespeare seems in comparison barbarous? Probably one influence was the Greek genius for mathematics, which was quite as preternatural as the Greek sense of beauty. According to a writer in a symposium just issued at Oxford University, under the title of "The Legacy of Greece," the Hellenes, starting at the very beginning, within 350 years brought geometry to the point of performing operations equivalent to the integral calculus—a point beyond which the human intellect made no further advance until Leibnitz and Descartes.

No work, save the Bible, has enjoyed such a reign as Euclid's "Elements." Carrying mathematics over into astronomy, the Greeks, who were well acquainted with the sphericity of the earth and its revolution around the sun, calculated with approximate correctness the distances and sizes of the sun and moon. Hipparchus, employing trigonometry in the second century B. C., estimated the mean lunar month at 29 days, 12 hours, 44 minutes and 2½ seconds—later differs by less than a second from the present accepted figure.

At a time when geography commanded little more than a fringe along the Mediterranean, Eratosthenes, the Cyrene, observed the different lengths of shadows cast at the same hour by upright gnomons at measured distances apart; and proceeded, by rigorous geometry, to calculate the polar diameter of the earth at 7550 miles, which is only 50 miles less than the true figure. For sheer intellectual splendor, this appears a feat comparable to the "Antigone" itself.

"TIZ" FOR FEET

For Sore, Tired, Swollen, Aching or Tender Feet

Good-bye, sore feet, burning feet, swollen feet, tender feet, tired feet. Good-bye, pain in corns, callouses, bunions and raw spots. No more shoe tightness, no more limping with pain or drawing up your face in agony. "Tiz" is magical, acts right off. "Tiz" draws out all the poisonous exudations which puff up the feet.

Use "Tiz" and wear smaller shoes. Use "Tiz" and forget your foot misery. Ah! how comfortable your feet feel.

A few cents buy a box of "Tiz" at any druggist or department store. Don't suffer. Have good feet, glad feet, feet that never swell, never hurt, never get tired. Beware of imitations!

A wise step or a blind buy?

Look at the motor cars you see. Many of them have two, three and sometimes four different kinds of tires.

Would you buy raw materials for a business in that way? Wouldn't you rather find out the tire which gives you the longest uninterrupted mileage at the lowest cost and least trouble—and stick to it?

That's the only way to be sure your money is spent wisely.

to sell to the man who is a good buyer. We offer Miller Tires on the basis that, under like conditions, they will give the utmost in satisfactory service from every standpoint. They will "stand up" on any kind of roads. The Geared-to-the-Road Tread lasts 50 per cent longer than the average non-skid tread, giving traction and protection against skidding.

You can prove these claims by putting a Miller Tire on your car and comparing it with any other tire you like. This comparison will prove to you, as it has to hundreds of thousands of others, that Miller Geared-to-the-Road Tires

Will Save You Money and Trouble

Buy tires bearing the name "Miller." Then you know you're right! Every one is protected and its quality assured by The Miller Rubber Company.

Miller uniform Inner Tubes help increase the mileage in any tire, but in Miller Tires they make a combination that can't be beaten. Make your next tire or tube a Miller.

The Value of a Good Name

Every reputable merchant feels proud of the confidence of his constituents.

He realizes to the fullest extent the value of a good name.

For the guidance and protection of the buying public will say, there are three facts upon which we stake our GOOD NAME. To-wit:

Quality determines value.

Value determines worth.

Worth can be proven by usage only.

These facts are applicable not only to furniture, but to all classes of merchandise and by following them your satisfaction is assured.

(Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.)

BERLIN, May 1. — The English drama is more popular in Germany than the German drama. During the war and until the end of 1920 Shakespeare dominated the German stage. Then came the expressionist drama, which replaced him. The importance of being earnest had an unprecedented run at the Theatre here in Berlin. It was acted extremely well, and the characters were made to appear as English as possible. Almost every play of Bernard Shaw's was produced during the last season. Hardly a week passed in which several of his plays could not be seen in several different Berlin theaters.

This year Wilde and Shaw are becoming less fashionable and are giving way to Brecht and minor French, German and Hungarian playwrights. These are the things that have been produced by German theater managers who work for profit, for these are the things the German public likes.

Nevertheless the advanced German stage has the characteristics of the English drama, on which it mainly lives, but of the modern German drama, on which it does not live. The chief characteristic common to both the modern German drama and the modern English drama is the tendency to present only the typical and the essential, to heighten contrasts and to eliminate details and accessories. This tendency is loosely termed "expressionism."

The Expressionist Technique.

THE German expressionist stage has two main schools. The one emphasizes the spoken word and the other emphasizes the visual elements of the drama. The leading exponent of the first school is Jesner, the managing director of what was formerly the Royal Playhouse (now the Staatstheater) here in Berlin.

The setting is summary and simple. The scenes and costumes are reduced to absolute essentials. There is no fore and back ground. The actors move in the simplest possible space and restrain all gestures. They face the audience and speak at the audience and not to each other. A staircase is often the only piece of scenery in the play. Its only use is to give prominence to the actor whose part is to be emphasized.

The modern German drama tends to avoid direct continuity. It makes the important phases in the development of the plot follow each other like separate pictures. Jesner has used this method in staging older plays, especially Shakespeare's. He leaves lightly over whole scenes and powerfully stresses turning points of vital moments in the play. The great speech in "Richard III," for example, is fired into the auditorium like a programmatic oration. Jesner has discovered and trained several prominent actors—one is tempted to call them not actors but orators. Among them is Fritz Kortner, who won his greatest success in the parts of Richard III, Caliban and Othello.

The "Mass" School.

THE chief exponent of the second school, which stresses the kinetic and visual elements of the drama, is Max Reinhardt. He used to work with the ordinary illusionist stage, and his early successes were based on the realism of Hauptmann's plays. He made many experiments before he found his own style. He abandoned the peep-show theater, and he built the Grosses Schauspielhaus—a monstrous piece of architecture with accommodations for nearly 4000 people.

The Schauspielhaus opened with the "Orestes." Reinhardt failed to solve the contradictions between the ancient and the modern drama. The Orestes left the audience cold and uninterested. The human voice was lost in the huge dome of the Schauspielhaus. Even the stentorian declamation of Agamemnon and the shrill passion of Cassandra remained ineffectual.

Reinhardt soon made good his mistake. He gave up the attempt to impress by means of orations from the mouths of heroes and began to study mass movements. His presentation of Aristophanes' "Lysistrata" was very successful. The multitudes of the rebellious Grecian women continually flood the stage and ebb from it. An elaborate dance-rhythm runs through the whole play like a leitmotiv.

Roland's "Danton."

IN Romain Rolland's "Danton" Reinhardt won his greatest triumph. "Danton" is in itself a play without the slightest merit. Reinhardt simply chose it because it gave him an opportunity of displaying his genius for creating mass effects. The stage is three-tiered. Below is the tribunal with the judge and jury. In the middle is the prisoner's dock, with Danton pacing up and down and roaring like a lion. Higher up, thronging the big arched windows in the background of the scene, all around, and even among the audience, is the turbulent Paris mob.

The audience is disconcerted at first when an actor sitting in the stalls shouts at Danton, when another hoots from the gallery, when another hisses from the pit, and another gets up in one of the boxes and blows a catcall. But as the uproar grows the audience is dragged irresistibly into the spirit of the play. The pandemonium becomes deafening, until at last the mob breaks loose and, bursting through the windows, pours over the three-tiered stage like a cataract. This breathless scene is one of Reinhardt's masterpieces.

Reinhardt's art as revealed in the Grosses Schauspielhaus has its drawbacks. It is often powerful and impressive, but all grace, refinement and subtlety are lost. He has also produced plays in smaller theaters—the Kammeroper—theater here does not depend on mass effects. Here again he leaves the spoken word to look after itself and emphasizes light and color. In the "Bettler," by Reinhold Sorge, a ball of light hits the faces of the actors out of the surrounding gloom and then allows them to vanish when the significant moment is over. Light, half-light and darkness heighten or relieve the dramatic tension.

Lotus Quartet Concert.

The Lotus Male Quartet will give a concert tonight at the Union M. E. Church for the benefit of the Sunday-school baseball teams. The members are W. D. Simmon and L. F. Helage, tenors; P. W. Simmons, baritone, and A. C. Spiegelsberg, bass. They will be assisted by Amie Guth Pushon, contralto.

100% PURE

Do you know the usefulness of 100% pure varnish?

You realize how extensively varnish may be used to improve and beautify the home. The sparkling brilliance of a varnished surface always adds to the neatness, attractive appearance, and smartness of a modern home.

But there is a difference in results obtained unless you use 100% pure varnish.

Whether your painter does the work, or you do the varnishing, see that Martin's 100% Pure Varnishes are used. Made from pure gums, oils and turpentine only. No benzene, rosin or other adulterants.

When this clear, pure varnish is used, it does not conceal nor darken the wood, but enhances the beauty of the natural grain. A tough, enduring, protecting surface is formed, which is easier to keep clean.

So be sure to ask for Martin's 100% Pure Varnishes, in the can with the replaceable air-tight cap.

If you have any difficulty in obtaining Martin's Varnishes, write us for name of nearest dealer.

MARTIN VARNISH CO.

Pioneers of 100% Pure Varnishes - CHICAGO, ILL.

Amber-Lite

A scientifically prepared Floor Finish. Penetrates the pores of Maple and other close-grained woods, forming both foundation and finish coat; produces beautiful mellow semi-transparent finish. For floors in schools, churches, hotels, stores and other public buildings. A remarkably enduring finish for kitchen floors.

Martin's Enamel

The equal of imported Enamels. Better than most Domestic Enamels. Free flowing, most durable, produces beautiful effect.

Satin Black Leather Finish

Well-Known Actress Tells How She Keeps Her Complexion Beautiful

Los Angeles, Cal.—We publish below a letter from that beautiful and well-known actress, Miss Eileen Sedgwick, which tells a story of interest to every girl or woman. Here it is: To Mae Edna Wilder, Rochester, N. Y. "I have been using your toilet preparations Derwillo and Liska cold cream and am more than pleased with the results. So much so, that I have discontinued the use of other preparations I have used for years." (Signed) Eileen Sedgwick.

There is something about Derwillo and Liska cold cream which makes you forget other beautifiers. They give you a complexion in a class by itself. You can leave your powder puff at home when you use Derwillo. Its popularity with actresses should convince you that there is nothing "better," "just as good," or "just like it."

Perspiration does not affect it, and it stays on until you wash it off. Put a liberal supply of Derwillo on your face before an auto trip or a day in the open. When you return cleanse your face with Liska cold cream and your complexion will look and feel as though you had remained at home, absolutely free from sunburn or windburn.

Try them today! If you don't like this Derwillo-Liska cold cream combination, take them back and get your money back. Derwillo is sold in three shades: flesh, white and brunette, at toilet counters everywhere, including Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph, Johnson Bros. and the Enderle Drug Co.

ECZEMA CAN BE CURED

Free Proof to You

All I want is your name and address so I can send you a free trial treatment. I want you just to try this treatment—that's all—just try it. That's my only argument. I've been in the Retail Drug Business for 20 years. I served four years as a member of the Indiana State Board of Pharmacy and five years as President of the Retail Druggists' Association. Nearly everyone in Fort Wayne knows me and knows about my successful treatment. Over twenty thousand Men, Women and Children outside of Fort Wayne have, according to their own statements, been cured by this treatment since I first made this offer public.

If you have Eczema, Itch, Salt Rheum, Tetter—never mind how bad—my treatment has cured the worst cases I ever saw—give me a chance to prove my claim. Send me your name and address on the coupon below and get the trial treatment I want to send you FREE. The wonders accomplished in your own case will be great.

DISCOVERED A CURE FOR ASTHMA AND HAY FEVER

Chemist Discovers a Simple Home Remedy for Asthma and Hay Fever and Makes a Generous Offer.

Mr. D. J. Lane, a chemist, located at 575 Lathrop, St. Mary's, Kansas, has discovered a simple home remedy for Asthma and Hay Fever. To test it he sent some to people who had been suffering from Asthma for years, and to their delight they state they were easily cured. Mr. Lane is so proud of his discovery and has so much confidence in his ability to cure that he will send a $1.25 bottle post-paid to anyone who will write for it. His offer is that he is to be paid for it if it cures. The one taking it is to be the judge and report its effect within ten days after using the remedy. If you suffer from Asthma or Hay Fever write for a bottle at once. Send no money. Just your name and address.

chosen to direct Wallace Reid in the latter's new picture, "The Ghost Breaker," the production of which has been started. Lila Lee will be Mr. Reid's leading woman.

The simultaneous appearance of one actor in two different roles in a scene is made possible by double exposure. One half of the film is covered while the actor is being photographed in one role. The actor then changes his costume and appears as the other person, and is thus photographed on the unexposed half of the film while the exposed half is covered. As the camera is not moved nor the scene changed during this operation, the finished film shows the same person playing the two parts at the same time. To be successful, there is no line of demarcation between the halves of the film which were exposed separately. In some cases by very expert photography an actor has been made to shake hands with himself.

Mary McLaran, who was the Queen in "The Three Musketeers," has abandoned the movies to study art.

Norman Kerry has been engaged by an Austrian company to play leads in its productions.

Mary Carr and her children were Easter Sunday guests at the White House.

The projector throws pictures upon a screen similar to the old-time magic lantern. The rays from a powerful light are passed through glass condensers, are condensed and passed through the lens to the screen in a cone shape. The film is passed through a guide or gate between the condenser and lens, and the rays of light pass through the film carrying the image through the lens to the screen. The film is driven and guided by means of rollers or driving gears moving each picture in succession quickly before the light. A shutter arrangement closes out the light while the film is being moved to the next picture.

Valentino's tutor for the role of bullfighter was Rafael Palmar, who is well known as a torero in Spain, Mexico and South America.

Billy Dove, new screen star and former Follies beauty, is 18 years old.

Edison introduced the "Cinephone," a talking machine which was synchronized with the film and reproduced the voices of the actors. The talking apparatus was regulated according to the speed at which the pictures were shown by a clock-like hand on a dial which corresponded with a similar dial on the projection machine. While fairly successful, the vogue of talking pictures in this form did not last long.

Continuity is name given to the detailed form of the film story which gives, in proper sequence, a minute description of all the scenes that are to make up the photoplay. Producers generally have their own experts who understand the practical making of pictures and are best

"PUTTING NEW LIFE IN ME"

Mr. W. H. Pennington, Wharton, Ark., writes: "I am taking Cadomene tablets and they are putting new life in me. I had a bad case of the grip last winter, and my physician's prescription did me no good. I saw that Cadomene was recommended for a case like mine and I went twenty miles to get them. Now, after using only one week, I am feeling strength, eating with a relish, and sleeping like a baby, etc."

Cadomene should be taken by any one who has symptoms of impoverished blood and deranged nerves, like the following: Nervousness, sleeplessness, irritability, nervous indigestion, headache, backache, cold extremities, a general run-down condition of the system.

Cadomene supplies iron and phosphorus with other tonics that build up blood and nerves. Take them and see how quickly they bring astonishing benefit to your poor "damaged" nervous system. All good druggists sell them. Ask for Cadomene tablets.

WHAT THEY READ

By W. E. Hill

"What a woman of middle age ought not to know" should have been stamped in big red letters across the cover of the book which an unfortunate caller has picked at random. "Sex and Character" is the volume, and surely the young people in the house ought to know better than to leave books like that around, to fall into the hands of some impressionable older person!

Whatever the person sitting next is reading, that's what they read in a crowded car. (The gentleman in the raincoat has produced an envelope and a fountain pen and is making thereon a memorandum of several things the little wife begged him not to forget.)

The park bench and the page of "Help Wanted" ads.

Timid lady who knows she's being stared at, pretending to be awfully interested reading the soap and cough drop ads in the street car.

Miss Fink, who spends her days behind the counter at the Big Store selling misses' sixteens and such, is a great reader. She hasn't missed a novelized movie in the afternoon edition for months.

Harry has been cramming for English Thirty-six—or is it English Sixty-three? Harry isn't sure himself now. Not after a long evening's session of Elizabethan poets. Harry has been looking up Spenser's "Faery Queen" in the encyclopedia and has a complete working knowledge of the subjects under "SP," including the spiny squirrel, the spinal chord, spherical harmonics, and the spinet, all of which Harry encountered on the way to Edmund Spenser. Poor Harry. Ten to one the questions will be on just what he hasn't got around to. Already a stoney-hearted English professor has jotted down question number one: "Contrast in your own words the salient points of character of Banquo's ghost, and of Tamburlaine." Subquestion A, "What, if any, were the underlying motives of Marlowe's predecessors?" Subquestion B, "Why?" And not one question dealing with Spenser's "Faery Queen!" Poor Harry.

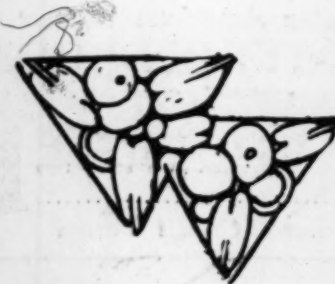

Mrs. Luke Smoot is homeward bound from a meeting of the Deposit Literary Circle. The D. L. C. meets every second Tuesday of the months in which you don't eat oysters—the months without the letter "R"—and the members do have such interesting times. Half the session is given over to the discussion of Browning, or Keats, or Shelley; then the hostess of the afternoon gets out the tea service and they read aloud—nothing trashy, mind you—from something in current fiction. This Tuesday afternoon the D. L. C. has been reading "The Sheikh."

The book canvasser who pounces on unwary college freshmen with a great proposition. For the small sum of one dollar and a quarter per week he will virtually give away a set of Parkman in eighty-five (count them) volumes, and a copy of "Droll Stories" thrown in for good measure. The "Droll Stories" sells the Parkman, and for eighty weeks the dollar and a quarter per are a sad reminder. The "Droll Stories" are borrowed one week after delivery and are never returned.

"Say, I don't see where these fellows who write columns in the papers get away with me! I swear I can't see 'em!" Harsh words perhaps, but how would you feel if, like poor Mr. Seity, you had sent in as a contribution words to the effect that Dr. Graboff had a dentist emporium on Myrtle street and then after a week's careful watch you found that your offering had probably gone into the wastebasket!

The clerk in the bookshop is supposed by all customers to have read and to be conversant on every book that ever came out, from Chaucer to Scott Fitzgerald and back again. Just what she does read no one ever knows.

Portrait of the lady who really didn't think much of "Main Street." Her favorite book is "Molly Make-Believe." (This is cleaning day, and Mrs. Pfaf is giving the bathroom rug a good shake.)

Post-Dispatch Milk and Ice Fund Begins 18th Season, With Goal Set at $10,000

Efforts Will Be Made to Increase Supply of Ice This Year—First Contributions Received.

Today's Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund begins the work of its eighteenth summer. A fund of $10,000 is being asked for those who are in a position to help the condition of the city's children. It is deemed that the amount necessary to meet all requirements of the 1934 season in furnishing pure milk and free ice to the children whose parents are unable to adequately provide for their little ones those necessities of baby life.

According to statistics from the office of the Health Department, St. Louis had the lowest infantile death rate of any large city during 1933, the death rate among infants under one year old being 61 per 1000, which was the lowest in the 55 years of recorded history in the Health Department. A share in the credit for this achievement belongs to the hundreds of workers who by their interest and enthusiastic efforts raised a record fund last summer for the purpose of caring for the babies in the congested districts of St. Louis.

New Record Set Last Year. The good work must not be allowed to lag. By concentrated endeavor on the part of friends of the babies it should be possible to raise $10,000, which is only $300 more than last year, when a new record was set in milk fund annals by a fund of $9,700.

This year, formerly, the distribution of ice to poor families in which there are babies will be carried on under the direction of an agent of the Milk and Ice Fund, and this year, as last, it is the intention to double the supply of ice throughout the extreme hot weather, as investigation has disclosed that the price of ice delivered for one ice ticket is not sufficiently large to last 24 hours in the hottest weather.

In addition to this it is the desire of the management of the fund to pay only to undertake to pay for the milk bills of the St. Louis Pure Milk Commission during the hot months, but to assist the commission in meeting the $1500 deficit which occurred last winter in its efforts to supply free milk to all poor children brought to its attention. The commission is an organization of charitable citizens who are engaged in supplying certified milk at cost to those who can afford to pay a reasonable sum for it, and furnishing free milk to those unable to pay for it. During the summer months the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund defrays the expenses of the free milk distribution, which is naturally much heavier than in other months. Last year, by reason of the augmented fund at its disposal, the Post-Dispatch found it possible to pay for all free milk distributed between June 1 and Dec. 15. Other sources of support for the free milk distribution from Dec. 15 until June 1 of this year have lagged somewhat, and the Pure Milk Commission is facing the summer season with a heavy debt hampering its work.

The time seems to be opportune for the citizens of St. Louis to directly assume, through the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund, the year-round care of destitute babies. Even when the heated months are past the need for pure milk remains and no thinking person can fail to respond to the call to extend an agency which adds to the sum of human happiness, reduces crime, poverty and misery and enhances the general well-being of St. Louis. Ten thousand dollars is the amount necessary to carry on the work for another year.

Fund Belongs to Children. Primarily the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund belongs to the children, who have chiefly supported it by money which they earn through giving amateur entertainments and conducting lemonade stands and similar benefit activities. From a fund of $4749 in 1925 and one of $5100 in 1927, it has increased to its present size as the need for it has grown, and in the last three years several organizations of adults have been of great assistance in making up the fund. A notable instance last year was the entertainment given by the Y. M. H. A. and Carlyle Perry organizations at the Liberty Theater, which netted more than $1615, and also the show presented at the Orpheum Theater by Children of the American Loyalty League, which added $1460 to the fund. Returns from the entertainment and dance sponsored by the Elks' Club and the Butcher-Gracer baseball game also added materially in increasing the fund total.

There are many organizations of adults who could give Milk and Ice Fund benefits with the expenditure of less time and effort than many of the children give to their affairs, and a few such benefits would be of great assistance, for the task of saving the babies is entirely too large a one to be left solely to the boys and girls.

For some time preliminary

Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund Has No Collectors

THE Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund again wishes to call to the attention of the public that it has no solicitors of cash contributions, and requests that it be notified immediately by telephone of any attempts at street or house-to-house collections of money in the fund's name. Cash donations properly should be sent direct to the fund in care of the cashier of the Post-Dispatch. All will be acknowledged in the Post-Dispatch.

To prevent any possibility of dishonesty in the fund's name, the public is asked to give no money in any way or to donate any supplies to anyone claiming to be working for the fund who is a stranger. It is desired that as far as possible workers sell tickets and solicit supplies for carnivals, bazaars and refreshment stands among persons with whom they are acquainted.

work of the Milk and Ice Fund has been going on. A general letter to all workers of whom the fund has the names and addresses was sent out last week. The list is by no means complete, since full lists of workers and complete addresses are not always sent in. Then, too, in the addressing of hundreds of envelopes some mistakes are naturally made, so that some workers whose names and addresses the fund has may not have received their letters. This explanation is made so that every worker may know that it was the intention to send letters to all, and that this was done as far as possible.

Instructions for Workers. For any who did not receive letters and also for the information of the readers of the Post-Dispatch, the general letter, addressed to the "Members of the Pure Milk and Free Ice League," is quoted herewith:

For five successive years you have raised record funds to "Save the Babies." Last year, despite many obstacles the fund amounted to $9014.76 through the untiring loyalty and splendid efforts of league members. This season $10,000 is needed to furnish pure milk and free ice to the destitute little ones in the city's tenement districts. If each group of workers will increase their last year's contributions by a small percentage, the goal will be easily reached. Plan your affair just a little earlier than usual and devote more time to the sale of tickets, etc. The result in life and health for the babies who have come to look to you for those necessities which their parents are unable to provide for them will more than repay you for the additional effort.

We feel sure that the babies can again count upon your enthusiastic help.

Yours for another record year, THE POST-DISPATCH PURE MILK AND FREE ICE FUND, (Eighteenth year.) Tickets to Be Furnished.

A circular of information to workers accompanied each letter, one of the most important parts of which is given in connection with this article. Other quotations from the circular follow:

TICKETS—Blank form tickets with spaces for the address of the place of entertainment, admission price and date of entertainment, will be furnished free upon application to workers giving Milk and Ice Fund entertainments this year as last. The use of these tickets is not compulsory, but they will be supplied to all who wish to save the expense of having special tickets printed. Any number likely to be used can be obtained, and unused ones returned.

BUTTONS AND MEMBERSHIP CARDS—The usual buttons and membership cards will be presented to all children who take part in affairs to help the poor babies. New membership cards, dated 1934, have been printed. The buttons will be of the revised design used the last four seasons.

PLACARDS—Workers desiring to conduct lemonade or ice cream stands can obtain printed placards upon application. A written request will bring them by mail.

NO WAR TAX—The law placing a tax on amusement tickets provides that it shall not be charged when an entertainment is entirely for the purpose of raising money to be put to purely charitable uses by a bona fide charitable organization. Persons giving entertainments, all of the receipts of which, less necessary expenses, go to the Milk and Ice Fund need not, therefore, charge a war tax on admissions. This statement is approved by the Collector of Internal Revenue in St. Louis as being a correct interpretation of the law so far as it applies to Milk and Ice Fund entertainments.

An exception would be in the case of a theater proprietor giving a "Milk and Ice Fund Night," sharing the receipts of the night with the fund. The usual war tax would then be charged, because only a portion of the receipts would go for charitable purposes and the remainder to a private individual, the theater owner.

The Milk and Ice Fund no longer approves amateur entertainments in its name unless the entire receipts, less necessary expenses, go to help the babies.

Mothers' Club First to Give to Milk and Ice Fund. For the third consecutive year the first contribution of the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund season was received from the Sorority Circle Mothers' Club. A check for $50 was sent with the good wishes of that organization to the fund early last December through Mrs. F. E. Kemp, 5733A Eitel avenue, treasurer.

Although the fund is formally opened today, several other contributions are on hand. A check for $21 came from children residing on Westminster, between Taylor and Walton avenues. They gave a play, "A Real Princess," written by Martha Virginia Welsels, at 4548 Westminster place, on Saturday evening, May 6, and earned that amount for the fund. The children who took part were: Mabel and Josephine Bonack, Edna Mae Finley, Rosemary Welsels, Anderson Kammon and Cecelia Chamblin, Margaret Joy, Ruth Joy and Luevenia Johnson gave a show at 101 Hereford avenue, Ferguson, Mo., and earned $1.76 for the fund.

MEDICAL CONVENTION TO BRING 9000 VISITORS

American Medical Association Will Meet in St. Louis From May 22 to 26.

The seventy-third annual meeting of the American Medical Association, the largest scientific organization in the world, will be held in St. Louis beginning Monday, May 22, and ending Friday, May 26.

It is expected that the registration will exceed 6000, making it the largest meeting in the association's history.
The addition of members of the fellows' families, together with the simultaneous meeting of seven other medical societies, is expected to bring the total of visitors to the city to more than 9000. Nearly 5000 reservations have been made, exhausting the facilities of the leading hotels and St. Louisans now are being asked to provide spare rooms in their homes.

The St. Louis Medical Society is issuing a 100-page guide book to be distributed that St. Louis is "The Friendly City." It is fulfilling its promise by arrangement of an elaborate program, the chief feature of which will be entertainment, with ballet and music, in the Municipal Theater on Friday night of the week in which the meeting will be held. The public of St. Louis will be admitted also, to follow the buttons bearing the words, "Ask me, Doctor, I am a St. Louisan," will be worn by members of commercial and civic organizations during the meeting week and members of the Automobile Club of Missouri will place stickers on their windshields indicating their willingness to give visitors "a lift."

Other entertainment features are a roof garden tea for visiting women at Hotel Statler Tuesday at 4 p. m., a reception in the City Art Museum on Wednesday at 4 p. m., to follow an automobile ride for women in the residence sections of the city and St. Louis County; a visit to the Missouri Botanical Garden Thursday; the president's reception
Thursday night in Arcadia dance hall; a tea on the grounds of the Washington University School of Medicine Thursday at 4 p. m.; a boat ride on the Mississippi Friday; and a musicale by the Morning Choral Club in the Vandervoort auditorium.

Postmaster-General Hubert Work is retiring president of the association, and will attend the St. Louis meeting to induct his successor, Dr.
George E. de Schweinitz, of Philadelphia.

The House of Delegates, the legislative branch of the association, which is composed of representatives of the various state associations, will meet Monday in the auditorium of the St. Louis Medical Society. On Tuesday evening the opening general meeting will be held in the Odeon. The president's address will be the chief feature of this session. On the following day the section meetings, of which there are 16, will convene. Ten different meeting places, including churches, have been provided for the sections.

The general headquarters for the meeting will be Moolah Temple, where the scientific exhibits will be held.

Other Medical Bodies.
The following other medical organizations will meet during the same week: The American Association for the Study of the Feeble-Minded, the American Association of Anesthetists, the American Association of Industrial Physicians and Surgeons, the American Proctologic Society, Association for the Study of Internal Secretions, the American Medical Library Association and the Radiological Society of America.

St. Louis hospitals and the St.
Louis clinics will have clinical sections immediately prior to and during the meeting. There will be many fraternity and medical school reunions and banquets.

Tree Turned Into Newspaper
IN 3 1/2 HOURS IN GERMANY Paper Makers' Journal Tells of the Rapid Process in Certain Districts.

BERLIN, April 22.—Trees on which birds warbled their morning song are turned into newspaper paper and sold as midday editions on the same day in certain towns of the Harz district, says the Papierfab-rikant, the leading German paper-makers' organ.

The exact time taken in the process is three hours 25 minutes. The trees were felled at 7:35 a. m.; pulped and turned into paper by 9:30; rushed in a motor truck two and one-half miles to the printing office and at 11 o'clock newspaper boys were crying the local sheet on the streets.

Cecilia Choral Club Concert.
The Cecilia Choral Club, directed by O. Wade Fallert, will give its third and concluding concert of the season Tuesday evening at the Odeon.

Beauty

The greatest line of beauty is the curve. This beauty is an integral part of every Lloyd Loom Baby Carriage as shown in the exclusive "shell" design of the bodies—a graceful bowl shape, woven of endless wicker, with a continuous sweeping curve from side to front, unbroken by corners or by concealed short ends of wicker.

It was Marshall B. Lloyd who invented the method and loom which weave beauty into Baby Carriages and Wicker Furniture thirty times faster and finer than the old hand weaving method. These inventions cut labor costs, enabling us to weave the finest wickers, use the best materials, employ the most skilled workmen, add the latest refinements and still sell our wicker products at very moderate prices.

Your dealer will explain the Fifth Wheel Reversible Gear; Oil Tempered Springs; Continuous Steel Pusher; patented Double Spoked and Double Rimmed Wheels; patented Automatic Hood Adjustment—features that add materially to the beauty, convenience, comfort and stability of the carriage.

Write for Lloyd booklet showing Lloyd Loom Carriages and Loom Woven Furniture, for sale by leading furniture and department stores.

DRY LAWS WILL BE ENFORCED, SAYS HAYNES

Federal Commissioner Says Real Issue Is Conflict of Americanism With Old World Customs.

By the Associated Press.
LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 12.—Withdrawals of whisky from bonded warehouses for this year, on the basis of the last three or four months, will amount to about 2,000,000 gallons, "which is perhaps only about one-half million gallons in excess of normal medicinal requirements," R. A. Haynes, Federal Prohibition Commissioner, told the Churchmen's Federation here yesterday.

Haynes compared this figure with 150,000,000 gallons of American-made whisky which he said were consumed in the United States annually during the years immediately preceding prohibition, and with about 12,500,000 gallons withdrawn from bonded warehouses on permits in 1920, and about 3,500,000 in 1921.

Criticism of Newspapers.
"It is significant," Haynes continued, "that at a time when liquor is more difficult to obtain than at any other time in our history; when drunkenness has decreased to a very appreciable degree; when convictions for the violation of law are becoming most numerous, that at such times the largest amount of space is given in some of our newspapers to articles most flimsy of facts, which set forth the idea that prohibition is a failure."

"I am inclined to believe that this propaganda has its origin in the interest of large personal gains on the part of a comparative few, who have felt most forcefully the effects of the law. As long as enforcement officers could be easily bribed; as long as the traffic went on unimpeded; either by taxes, fines or jail sentences; as long as only the small offenders were brought to justice, there was little cause for the insidious propaganda."

"Nothing can affront the American people more than the statement that we cannot enforce our laws. In this statement lies the death warrant of the Republic, for the nation cannot endure, without reverence for law, without the recognized authority of law. The perpetrators of this new treason have overlooked one of the great essentials of the American people: that law is but an expression of the nation's will, and the will power of America has ever met apparently insuperable difficulties and changed them into world amazing achievements."

"This law was ratified by 46 States, the largest number of States that had ever ratified a constitutional amendment."

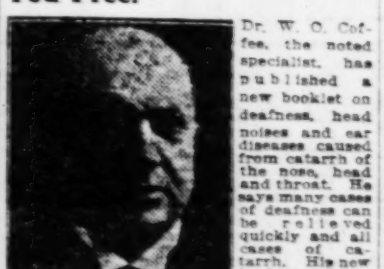

Democracy Against Avarice.
"The real issue that underlies all the contest over prohibition enforcement is Americanism in conflict with old world customs and concepts; it is democracy against avarice, lawlessness and anarchy. It is no mere expression of pride to say that when America wills to do that which other nations have not done, she will not fail of that achievement."

"This is an hour when the burden of the war rests heavily upon people through the imposition of taxes, and the astute propagandist has pointed to the fact that prohibition will cost the Government nearly $10,000,000 this coming year. However, if we were to collect the fines, penalties and special tax imposed upon violators of the law in the first six months of this administration, they would more than pay two and one-half times the estimated cost of enforcing the prohibition law for the next year."

"Those enormous figures do not include nearly $3,000,000 in bonds that are being forfeited to the Government, or $2,000,000 that have been offered in compromise by 21 of the largest violators of the law, and do not include $4,000,000 in differential or prohibitive tax."

Woman Elected Police Judge.
LENA, Ill.—Miss Catherine Krapp, elected police magistrate on the independent ticket, has been qualified for the position. In an interview, she admitted that she did not know much about the duties, but agreed to do her best. Her father occupied the position for 19 years.

DR. COFFEE SAYS If You Suffer With Deafness, Head Noises or Catarrh, Let Him Examine You Free.

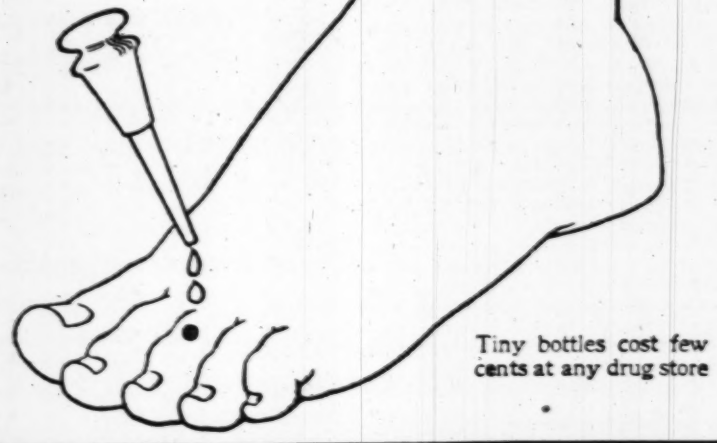

Dr. W. C. Coffee, the noted specialist, has published a new booklet on deafness, head noises and catarrh of the nose, head and throat. He says many cases of deafness can be relieved quickly and all cases of catarrh, his new booklet tells of this. Cases that are getting bad in one ear and just started in the other, that have a tickling or other noise and worse with each cold, get quick relief. Head noises, tinnitus, tinnitus and throat can, as a rule, be relieved without operation. He has a special method of removing adenoids and tonsils without going to the hospital. All this is told in his new booklet. He will examine you free during this month and tell you the truth about your case. If he does not think he can help you, he will tell you so. He has 35 years' experience. Is authority on nose, throat and ear diseases. Writes 50 pages a day. He is in his St. Louis office every day and Thursday, from 400 Old Fellows Bldg., 410 Olive St. St. Louis. He will write for you a booklet on deafness, head noises, catarrh, etc., and send it to you free. He will make a discount on all glasses fitted this month.

New York Doctors Tell Just How To Make Your Figure More Youthful and Beautiful

Very Remarkable Series of Tests Prove Amazing Value of MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS to Increase Weight and Energy, Clear Skin and Act as a General Health-Building Tonic.

"You can see for yourself what you have gained since taking MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS," says a well-known Clinical Physician of one of New York's leading hospitals who is recommending these tablets to his thin, run-down patients to put on weight and increase energy.

What a Few of the Millions of Users Say:
"After taking two bottles I gained quickly—I could never go over 125 pounds, and now I weigh 135."
"I've taken until now 2 bottles of your VITAMON TABLETS and the result is that I've gained 14 pounds."
"I have gained 11 pounds in 4 weeks."
All testimonials given above are guaranteed authentic—original letters on file for inspection.

Thin and run-down women everywhere who have vainly tried to put on firm flesh and build up a pretty, well-rounded figure should read below of the truly surprising results produced by MASTIN'S Vitamin Tablets in a series of tests made by several prominent New York Hospital physicians recently.

Twenty-two weak, thin, nervous women and women were selected at random from the workers of the metropolis and their progress closely watched from day to day by this Committee of Doctors. In no case did anyone making the test lose a single day from work or change their regular mode of living—they simply took two of MASTIN'S Vitamin Tablets after each meal. At the conclusion of the week the weight, measurements and general physical condition of these cases were carefully checked—what the Committee of Doctors found out proved a wonderful surprise to themselves—a great joy to their patients and makes perfectly clear what you may expect MASTIN'S to do for you.

To quote one of these physicians, "Out of twenty-two cases under observation many of them put on as much as 10 pounds." Not only did MASTIN'S Vitamin Tablets build firm flesh, but also away boils and many skin eruptions aided digestion, increased the number of red blood corpuscles and most surprisingly reduced high blood pressure in many cases.

MASTIN'S Vitamin Tablets contain not only the purest form of concentrated yeast vitamins, but all three vitamins scientifically combined with specially prepared organic iron for your blood, brain, bone and tissue-building elements of Nature. MASTIN'S provides just what your body must have to produce and "stay there" weight, strength and energy. Insist MASTIN'S to get the VITAMON. You can get MASTIN'S at all good druggists, such as all Eastern Drug Stores, Johnson Bros., Judge & DeLoe, A. Medler, Pauley's, Wolff-Willson, etc.

Old University Charter Forbids Students From Golfing and Dancing

"Footballe Meetes" and Rough and Violent Exercise Were Also Banned at Augusta Academy, Now Washington and Lee University.

Historians are accustomed to hail the age of the earlier Georges as the heyday of easy living, liberal ideas on personal conduct and the time when a gentleman could take his amusement without any other restriction than his personal conscience which usually was sufficient to fit any condition that might arise. It appears, however, that this is another of those traditions out of the dim and dusty past that will not stand the glare of publicity.

One of the first half dozen educational institutions to be chartered in the then new land of America was Augusta Academy, the institution out of which grew Washington and Lee University at Lexington, Va., and William McCleskey Martin, Governor of the Federal Reserve Board in St. Louis, at the dinner of the alumni of this institution at the university last Tuesday night, presented to his fellow alumni a copy of the original charter of Augusta Academy, which has been brought to light recently among almost forgotten archives of the university.

This remarkable document, unnoted for generations, is probably the most picturesquely worded and provisioned charter ever granted to an educational institution, and it shows that back in the reign of George II, 1749 being the date of the document, golf, dancing and billiards, all delights of gentlemen today, and as they were then, were looked upon by his Most Christian Majesty as great sins.

So odd and unusual is the list of things forbidden to the students and the professors that they would seem, but for George's own privy seal and the serious train of the philosophy and advice set forth on the parchment, to be a worthy product of the mind of the King's jester rather than the King himself. Following is the complete text of the charter in its quaint early English:

Text of the Curious Charter.
GEORGE, ye Seconde by ye Grace of God, of Great Britain, France and Ireland, King Defender, of ye Faith, etc.
TO ALL TO WHOM these presents shall come, greeting:
WHEREAS, our faithful and well-beloved Subjects, Reverend

Miller's Antiseptic Oil

Known as

Snake Oil

Will Positively Relieve Pain in a Few Minutes

Try it right now for Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Lumbago, sore, stiff and swollen joints, pain in the head, back and limbs, corns, bunions, etc. After one application pain usually disappears as if by magic.

A new remedy used externally for coughs, colds, croup, influenza, sore throat.

This oil is conceded to be the most penetrating remedy known. Its prompt and immediate effect in relieving pain is due to the fact that it penetrates to the affected parts at once. As an illustration, pour ten drops on the back of your hand and rub it in. It will penetrate the skin and through and through in three minutes.

THE RELIABLE SAVE 40% TO 60% RELIABLE QUALITY FURNITURE DURING OUR MONSTROUS ENLARGEMENT SALE! LARGER & MORE ENTHUSIASTIC THROUGHS ARE IN ATTENDANCE AS THIS SALE PROGRESSES! CREDIT TERMS

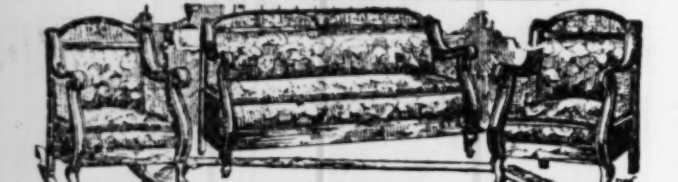

THE RELIABLE'S MONSTROUS ENLARGEMENT SALE is attracting widespread attention! St. Louis has never before seen such an astounding Furniture sale! St. Louisans have never before been offered such amazing price reductions, that's why the response has been so overwhelming. Truck load after truck load of Furniture is constantly leaving our warehouses for homes of thrifty people who have been able to realize the extreme savings nature of this phenomenal event, and profit by the amazing bargains. Savingly inclined people are taking advantage of this opportunity to save 40 to 60 per cent on Furniture of the substantial RELIABLE quality—they have been coming from far and near to get their share of the savings, and, regardless of how high their expectations may have been, this sale has fully realized their fondest hopes. A better Furniture-buying opportunity was never presented you, and as brisk, spirited buying is fast depleting our stocks, you will be exercising good judgment by ATTENDING AT ONCE!!!

The reason for the tremendous reductions we are now making is because the builders need all available space for completing alterations that are now under way and this necessitates our disposing of several entire floors of Furniture in double-quick time! Reductions of 40 to 60 per cent off RELIABLE'S regular low prices is rapidly reducing our Furniture stock, in fact, buying has been going on on such a tremendous scale that stocks are fast becoming depleted! You cannot begin to appreciate the extraordinary savings nature of this Furniture economy event until you stop and consider that even at our regular prices our offerings are always unduplicated. Just think—YOU ARE SAVING 40 TO 60 PER CENT OFF THE RELIABLE'S REGULAR LOW PRICES, thereby presenting to you the most phenomenal Furniture-buying opportunity in years! We urge you to act immediately! BRIDAL COUPLES AND HOME MAKERS should make the most of this extraordinary opportunity of outfitting a complete home at a very small cost! ALL PURCHASES FOR FUTURE DELIVERY STORED IN OUR WAREHOUSES FREE OF CHARGE!!!

THREE-DAY CONFERENCE ON REHABILITATIONIndustrial Meeting Opening Tomorrow Will Be Attended by State Workers.

A conference on industrial rehabilitation, sponsored by the Federal Board of Vocational Education, will be held here for three days beginning tomorrow.

The meeting is for State workers in industrial rehabilitation, for persons engaged in work in other State departments, and individuals and agencies interested in social and service activities related to rehabilitation.

Following the address of welcome by Sam A. Baker, State Superintendent of Public Instruction of Missouri, at the opening session tomorrow afternoon, Harry L. Fidler, vice chairman of the Federal Board of Vocational Education will speak on "General Aspects of the Problem of Industrial Rehabilitation." Other speakers at the opening meeting will be William M. Coman, Supervisor of Industrial Rehabilitation of California, and S. S. Riddle, chief of the bureau of rehabilitation, Department of Labor and Industry, Pennsylvania.

Rehabilitation in the field of agriculture will be discussed Tuesday by Lloyd Henry, Supervisor of Industrial Rehabilitation in Montana, and Willis W. Grant, Supervisor for Iowa. Other speakers Tuesday will include Col. Lewis T. Bryant, Commissioner of Labor of New Jersey, Percy Angrove, Supervisor of Industrial Rehabilitation, Michigan, Calvin F. McIntosh, member Federal Board for Vocational Training, Robert E. Lee Jr., of Maryland, President of the International Association of Accident Boards and Commissioners, and Dr. George B. Mangold of Missouri State University.

Co-operation by other State departments and by private agencies in rehabilitation work will be the topics for consideration at group meetings on Wednesday. At the general meetings the future of industrial rehabilitation will be discussed by E. T. Franks, member of the Vocational Education Board, while Dr. R. M. Little, director of the Industrial Rehabilitation for New York, will talk on problems of future legislation.

Wonderful! Fresh Pineapple Pie!

Pineapples are ripe! Great, luscious, scented ones, sugar-sweet, are arriving every day from Cuba where the finest pineapples are grown.

The season is short. Don't miss the opportunity to enjoy this glorious tropical fruit, now at its best.

Very few people know what an infinite variety of good things to eat you can make with fresh pineapples. Here is a recipe for fresh pineapple meringue pie. Try it!

Cream 1 cup butter, add 1/2 cup sugar and 2 cups shredded fresh pineapple. Beat. Add beaten yolks of 2 eggs mixed with 1/2 cup milk. Bake in pie pan 15 minutes. Remove from oven. Fill a baked pie crust with mixture, bake until firm. Cover with meringue made by beating whites of 3 eggs until stiff, then adding 1 tablespoon sugar and beating thoroughly. Brown in very hot oven.

We have prepared a little book of simple ways to serve fresh pineapple. It includes recipes for salads, fruit cocktails, pies, tarts, puddings, ices, sherbets, as a topping for ice cream and cakes.

NEW BOOKS FOR THE WEEK AT THE PUBLIC LIBRARY

Any of these books will be sent by parcel post to card holders on receipt of postage, in order of application. "A BOOK OF DRAWINGS," by H. M. Bateman. A collection of cartoons ridiculing modern society, many of which have appeared in Punch. The introduction is written by G. K. Chesterton.

"A SURVEY," by Max Beerbohm. A collection of 31 cartoons. Some of the well-known people caricatured are Lloyd George, Joseph Conrad, Bernard Shaw, Margot Asquith and Lord Curzon.

"MOORE BEETLES," by M. Fabre. The fourth and last volume on beetles in the Collected English edition of Fabre's entomological works. Translated by Alexander T. de Meillon.

"THE CARPENTER AND HIS KINGDOM," by Alexander Irvine. The life of Christ written from a modern viewpoint. The author has had varied experiences, having been a newsboy, day laborer, soldier, minister, lecturer, teacher and journalist.

"STUDENT HISTORY OF THE HEBREWS," by Laura A. Knott. A history of the Hebrews as given in the Old Testament. Intended as a textbook in the study of the Bible. The author has been a teacher of religious education for 15 years.

"A HANDBOOK OF MENTAL TESTS," by F. Kuhlman. The author is director of the Minnesota Research Bureau in Mental Deficiency. The book contains a revision of the Binet-Simon scale.

"BENEDETTO CROCE," by Raffaele Piccoli. Benedetto Croce has been a leader of Italian thought for the last 15 years. The book is intended as an introduction to his philosophy and is the first book to be published dealing with his life and work.

"INTRODUCTION TO THE PROBLEM OF GOVERNMENT," by W. W. Willoughby and L. Rogers. An analytical and critical treatment of the problems of constitutional and popular government. Topics for further discussion and a bibliography are given at the end of each chapter.

CLOTHING AND FOOD FOR NEAR EAST RELIEF SOUGHT

Starting at 8 a. m. tomorrow, 350 laundry wagon drivers of St. Louis will begin the distribution of clothing for the orphaned children in Armenia, Syria and Palestine. Retail grocers of the city will also co-operate in assembling canned goods and food stuffs for consignment to the Near East.

Persons desiring to give clothing should pack it in a bundle for delivery to the laundry driver. The organization cautions contributors to tie together shoes so that they may be sent in pairs. The clothing will be packed and loaded into freight cars. Railroads will give free transportation to the seaboard.

A gift of $50 was received last week by the Near East Relief from Mrs. Louise M. Thomas, principal of Lennox Hall, Kirkwood. It was revealed that originally the money represented a collection taken up among the students at the school as a birthday present to Mrs. Thomas, who in turn, later gave the same to aid the starving in the Near East.

Thyrsus' Annual "Mellendrammer." Thyrsus, the Washington University dramatic organization, will present its annual "Mellendrammer" in the auditorium of Mary Institute, Lake and Waterman avenues, Wednesday afternoon and evening. The play is entitled "Snake Eyes; or the Abducted Heiress." Alice Clifford is to portray the heroine, Scott Littner the hero, and Sol Kohn the villain. The play will be open to the public.

RECORDING DEVICE FOR MESSAGES BY RADIO

The necessity of an expert radio operator to receive code messages may be eliminated by the use of a recording device. The recorder at the Washington Bureau of Standards by F. W. Dunmore is the recording of radio telegraph messages on a tape at fairly high speed, so they can be read at average operator speed. The elimination of the watch at stations may be effected by the installation of a system, and in line-radio telegraph a sounder may be operated by means of a recording device. The signal transmitted by radio telegraph is recorded, making it a permanent record. The necessity for the Morse operator is a telephone receiver.

Wire telegraph recording devices have been employed for years. It will be recalled, but only within the past few years they have been applied to radio telegraph, on account of the fact that the exceedingly small amount of energy found in an incoming signal—ordinarily only a few crowbars—made it difficult to extract a radio recorder.

Reports on this recording device are more rugged than hitherto developed and using currents of the nature of 5 milliamperes or more, indicate that an amplifier of mechanism may be operated for remote control of bodies, such as automobiles, airplanes. The simultaneous recording of two messages received on same antenna may also be accomplished by means of two recorders of type connected in series. It is

Currents of 5 milliamperes or more are obtained, according to reports of the Bureau of Standards, by increasing the feeble signals received through the use of the electronic amplifier. Electrical tuning of audio frequency which is better received is employed. The operation of the newly developed relay has been made possible by the development of the electron tube as a reliable instrument for measuring practice. With a current of 2 milliamperes or more, a and positive action is obtained and it is possible to use an or telegraph relay of rugged construction which does not require and repeated adjustment in operation. It is explained.

The radio relay is constructed that the electron tube circuit be operated on 110-volt alternating current from 110 circuits, or the relay can be operated by batteries properly connected.

After amplification the radio signal is delivered through tuned audio-frequency transformer to the plate circuit of an electron tube in which is connected the lines of a high-resistance relay. A condenser with a capacity of about 1 microfarad is across the relay windings. movement of the armature relay may be made to operate desired mechanism, such as a ordinary ink-tape register or of paratus, or for the remote of boats and vehicles.

The selectivity in this apparatus is greatly increased by the audio-frequency tuning of the secondary circuit on the input former, making duplex operation possible. Interference from is also reduced somewhat.

NAVY WILL BROADCAST WOMEN'S PARTY

Probably the most prominent broadcasting program yet announced is scheduled for Sunday at May 21, when the naval radio station at Anacostia, D. C., will broadcast the whole program of an open-air meeting and entertainment of the National Women's party. You listen in about 3 p. m. afternoon around 415 meters can probably pick up N O F. an exceedingly interesting and important meeting for over an hour. President is expected to be and will either speak or have message read over the radio program also includes music, Marine Band, addresses, etc. and brief speeches by Curtis and Representative F. meeting will be held in front of the building at the First street, N. E., facing the Plaza. The speeches and may be picked up by a special microphone transmitter and carried by the transmitting station for casting up to about 100 miles possible that the messages be sent out on long waves by Arlington station. By permission of the Secretary of Navy, the Anacostia Radio will carry the whole program.

Last Tuesday the first concert in Washington was given by N O F. under the auspices of the Soldiers' Institute. This included high-class vocal and instrumental artists. By request of the Navy, the concert was broadcast and also radiophone times last week, being heard away as Boston.

RECORDING DEVICE FOR MESSAGES BY RADIO

The necessity of an experienced radio operator to receive code messages may be eliminated by the recent development of a radio relay recorder at the Washington Bureau of Standards by F. W. Dunmore. Applications of the new device include the recording of radio telegraph code messages on a tape at fairly high speeds so they can be read by an average operator visually instead of aural. The elimination of a constant watch at stations may be effected by the installation of a call system, and in line-radio telegraphy a sounder may be operated from a signal transmitted by radio frequency currents, making it unnecessary for the Morse operator to use a telephone receiver.

Wire telegraph recording instruments have been employed for many years. It will be recalled, but it is only within the past few years that they have been applied to radio telegraphy, on account of the fact that the exceedingly small amount of energy found in an incoming radio signal—ordinarily only a few milliwatts—made it difficult to construct a radio recorder.

Reports on this recording relay, which is more rugged than devices hitherto developed, and using larger currents of the nature of 5 milliamperes or more, indicate that any form of mechanism may be operated by radio for remote control of moving bodies, such as automobiles, boats or airplanes. The simultaneous records of two messages received on the same antenna may also be secured by means of two recorders of this type connected in series. It is said, currents of 5 milliamperes or more are obtained, according to experts of the Bureau of Standards, by increasing the feeble signals received through the use of the electron tube amplifier. Electrical tuning to the audio frequency which is being received is employed. The operation of the newly developed relay has been made possible by the development of the electron tube amplifier as a reliable instrument for engineering practice. With a current of 5 milliamperes or more, a strong and positive action is obtainable, and it is possible to use an ordinary telegraph relay of rugged construction which does not require careful and repeated adjustment in operation. It is explained.

The radio relay is constructed so that the electron tube circuits can be operated on 110-volt, 60-cycle alternating current from lighting circuits, or the relay can also be operated by batteries properly connected.

After amplification the received radio signal is delivered through a tuned audio-frequency transformer to the plate circuit of an electron tube in which is connected the windings of a high-resistance telegraph relay. A condenser with a capacity of about 1 microfarad is shunted across the relay windings. The movement of the armature of the relay may be made to operate any desired mechanism, such as the ordinary ink-tape recorder or other apparatus, or for the remote control of boats and vehicles.

The selectivity in this apparatus is greatly increased by the use of the audio-frequency tuning of the secondary circuit on the input transformer, making duplex operation possible. Interference from strays is also reduced somewhat.

PRINCIPLES OF THE VARIOMETER IN TUNING

By JOHN V. L. HOGAN, Consulting Engineer, New York; Fellow and Past President Institute of Radio Engineers.

It is not hard to understand how the effective length or inductance of tuning coil can be changed if one moves a slider or switch so as to connect into circuit a smaller or larger number of turns. Quite obviously, the more turns which are active, the greater the effective length or inductance of the tuning coil in question.

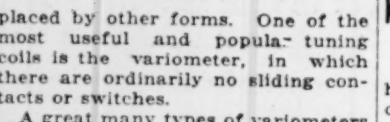

Sliding contact tuners are not entirely satisfactory for continuous service and have largely been replaced by other forms. One of the most useful and popular tuning coils is the variometer, in which there are ordinarily no sliding contacts or switches.

A great many types of variometers have been built, but the characteristic feature of all of them is the use of two coils (or two sets of coils), one of which is fixed in position and the other of which is movable. These two coils are usually connected in series, the moving coil being arranged so that it may be rotated inside of the fixed coil.

The number of turns in circuit usually remains constant when a variometer is used. The total effective inductance of the two coils is varied by shifting the position of one of them, so that its magnetic field partially aids or partially opposes the magnetic field of the other coil. When the two coils are so placed with respect to each other that the current flows through them in the same direction their magnetic fields act together, and the total inductance is a maximum. When the moving coil is reversed by turning it through 180 degrees, the fields of the two coils are brought into opposition and the inductance is a minimum. Intermediate positions of the moving coil provide intermediate values of inductance.

NAVY WILL BROADCAST WOMEN'S PARTY MEETING

Probably the most pretentious broadcasting program yet attempted is scheduled for Sunday afternoon, May 21, when the naval radio station at Anacostia, D. C., will transmit practically the whole program of the National Women's party. If you listen in about 2 p. m. Sunday afternoon around 412 meters, you can probably pick up N O F and hear an exceedingly interesting entertainment lasting for over an hour. The President is expected to be present and will either speak or have a message read over the radio phone. The program also includes music by the Marine Band, addresses, choral music, and brief speeches by Senator Curtis and Representative Fessenden. The meeting will be held in front of 25 First street, N. E., facing the Capitol Plaza. The speeches and music will be picked up by a special microphone transmitter and carried by wire to the transmitting station for broadcasting up to about 800 miles. It is possible that the messages will also be sent out on long waves from the big Arlington station. By special permission of the Secretary of the Navy, the Anacostia Radio Station will carry the whole program.

Last Tuesday the first radio concert in Washington was transmitted by N O F under the auspices of the Soldiers' Institute. This concert included high-class vocal and instrumental artists. By request it was repeated and also radioed several times last week, being heard as far away as Boston.

BAKING VACUUM TUBE TO PROLONG ITS LIFE

Vacuum tubes, even when handled most carefully, will show signs of distress after comparatively short service unless some means of prolonging their life is administered. The wonderful sensitivity of the vacuum tube is its great asset, and to preserve and prolong this condition is the desire of every user. The following is a process which you will find of great assistance in restoring new life in your used bulbs and making them as sensitive as new ones.

After about four months of continued use the tube should be removed and placed in an oven. The temperature of the oven is gradually increased until the glass of the bulb is too hot to be handled. When this temperature is attained, the bulb should be baked for 30 minutes at the end of this time the oven is turned off and the bulb permitted to cool gradually. When re-placed in the panel board and the "B" battery turned on, the bulb will "blue" with considerably less voltage than was used before the baking process. You will find that the tube is now as sensitive as when brand-new.

The baking increases the vacuum in the bulb when the heat expands the glass, thus making the tube more sensitive. It also aids the flow of the electrons and in some slightly defective bulbs consumes whatever slight leakage of air into the tube that there may have been. Altogether you will find this process a very profitable one in prolonging the life and use of your vacuum tubes.

KEEPERS OF LIGHT HOUSES TO HAVE RADIO STATIONS

The Lighthouse keeper's daughter, his wife and children, as well as the crews of lighthouse tenders, will be able to keep in close touch with the world's doings now that the Department of Commerce has begun equipping them with radio apparatus. This will insure the immediate receipt of orders, enable the light-houses to communicate with vessels off the coast and also secure some entertainment, which has hitherto been based on meager libraries, donated magazines and perhaps a new phonograph record or two.

Radio will eliminate waste of time, money and materials by enabling sea-going tenders to keep in touch with their stations while on a cruise of perhaps several hundred miles. Light ships will also be enabled to use the radio for information and amusement. According to the Lighthouse Commissioner, radio will be a great boon in relieving the lonely and monotonous life of the faithful lighthouse and ship light tenders some of whom are without mail for months, and remain on their posts a year at a time. Through the co-operation of the Navy Department, radio telephones have been installed at Scotch Cap and Cape Sarichef, at Unimak Pass, Alaska, where the keepers stay three years at a stretch and are without mail for as long as 10 months at a time.

OLD NAVY TUBES TO BE SOLD TO AMATEURS

The navy will open sealed bids on 30,000 surplus vacuum transmitting tubes, which are being sold in wholesale lots of 10,000 at the Washington Navy Yard, on Monday, May 15. These tubes were originally designed for transmitting, and fit ordinary commercial transmitting sockets, but may also be used for detecting and amplifying by reslotting the receiving tube socket about 45 degrees from the usual slot.

This is essential, it is pointed out, because the retaining pin in the lamp base is about 45 degrees from the position of the retaining pin as ordinarily found in receiving tubes sold today. When these tubes are reslotted, they must be sold in their original cartons to licensed amateurs only, for experimental or entertainment use.

The fact that they are several years old and that they were originally purchased by the navy as transmitting tubes must be shown on the label. In case the retailers fail to comply with the regulations of the Navy Department, the tubes will be seized and the payments forfeited.

DR. W. P. HENRICH, THE RECTAL SPECIALIST, SAYS: Get Your Piles Cured!

BETTER NOW THAN WAIT UNTIL IT IS TOO LATE!

Unfortunately I found during my many years of treating Piles and other Rectal diseases, that the majority of such afflicted put off coming for a cure, until they became so bad they can scarcely get around at all. They do not realize that Rectal Diseases do not get well by themselves.

Included Rectal Diseases are constantly growing worse: if not attended to properly and if not removed, they slowly, gradually may develop malignant conditions, such as Cancerous and Tubercular Diseases, which are incurable and indispensible advance agents of premature death.

Why take such dangerous risks when mild and safe treatment is easily obtainable from Dr. Henrich?

Is it on account of your reluctance to take a trip to St. Louis?

Is it because you shrink from the expense that a cure involves?

Is it because you fear the treatment might be too severe?

When your future happiness, nay, even your very life may be at stake, such objections must fall to the ground. Take my advice, pull yourself together, come NOW to me, before it is TOO LATE. Fear not the cost, for your financial loss will mount higher on account of neglecting your health.

Year not the treatment, for my treatment is mild and inoperable with the tortures you suffer with each recurring attack of your affliction.

There is no reason why you should travel any longer under the shadow of misery, torture and even death! COME NOW or at as early a date as you possibly can arrange. COME NOW BEFORE IT IS TOO LATE. Examinations in Free.

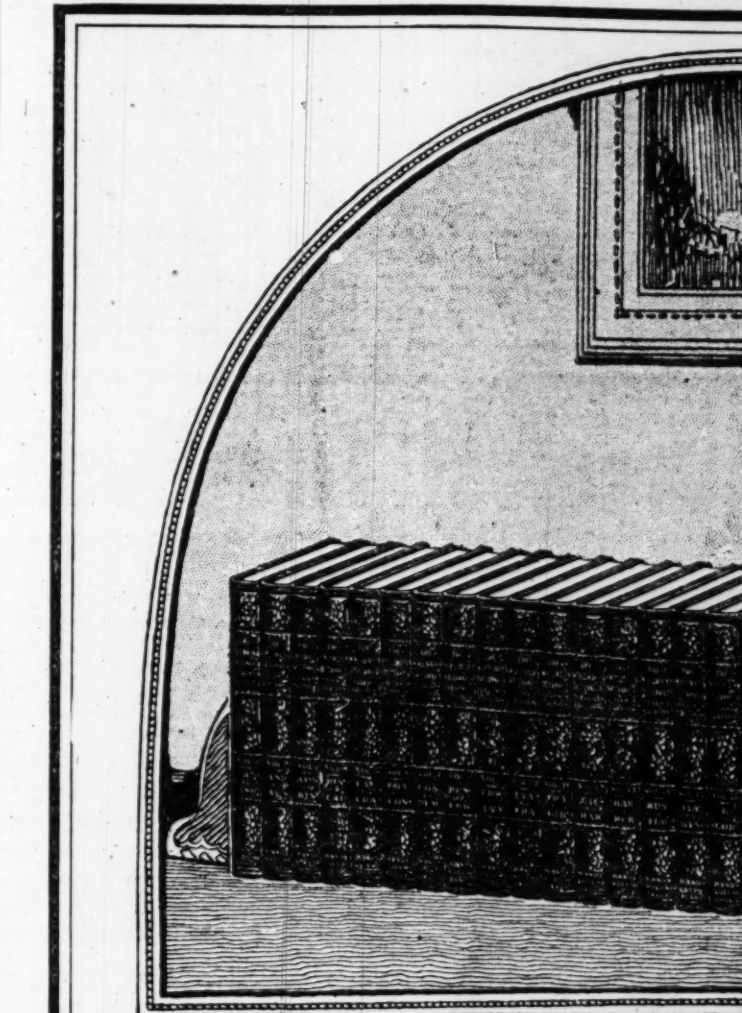

Every week I am discharging a number of people as cured, many of whom only a few weeks before had lived of life on account of the tortures of Rectal Trouble and now they bless the day they came to me. Tell your friends about me.

The Broadcast Need for This Great Library of Liberal Knowledge

THE NATIONS of the world have been drawn closer together socially, economically and commercially. So closely interwoven are the interests of the nations, so far is the welfare of one vital to that of the other that every man today must think in world terms and not in terms of a single nation. Particularly this is so in our country which has come to be the world's banker—the principal creditor nation. Can men or women, owning their homes, with the interests of this nation vital to them, neglect to be well posted today on the social, economic and political conditions of other countries of this globe whose prosperity is of so great consequence to America?

Today the newspapers frequently give three columns on the front page to news of international character. Foreign opera and theatrical organizations are touring the country. Figures of world wide prominence are crossing our land from coast to coast. Magazines are established, dedicated to the purpose of conveying to the people news world wide in scope. Passenger traffic between the United States and European, Asian, and South American countries has probably never been so heavy as now. More than half the books, fiction and non-fiction, in greatest demand in the libraries and stores throughout the country, are books on international subjects and written by internationally known authors.

There burst upon us daily new phases of international questions, new books, discoveries, inventions, outbreaks against established governments, kaleidoscopic changes—the world truly moves. Can you and your family grasp the full meaning of the happenings recorded on the front page of tomorrow's paper? Can you draw your individual conclusions sanely? In a word, can you and your family interpret and understand to the fullest what is going on all over this intensely interesting world?

When a man seeks some means to increase his, his wife's and his children's understanding of present day affairs, he turns to

for the Britannica takes for its theme the entire world. It covers the world from Alaska to the tip of South America, from your own town or city to the far corners of China or the heights of the Himalayas. The Britannica stands for thousands of years of human experience, discovery, invention, history and exploration. The leading scholars and men of action, internationally famous, made this great library of universal knowledge.

Today the interest of the family has gone out over the great world, far beyond the skyline as viewed from the front porch of the home. It is remarkable how the world has contracted in size in our minds—the Atlantic and Pacific oceans are not so broad as they once were and the peoples of other nations not so strange, so different from ourselves and their joys, sorrows, their problems are not so unlike ours.

The Britannica, as no other resource, serves admirably to introduce, to acquaint you, really to create a friendship between you and your family, and the population of the rest of this globe.

No home today whose members are watching the world events as they occur should be without the Britannica. The Britannica, accurate, comprehensive in world-wide terms, and thorough in treatment, gives to the man and woman that capacity to talk intelligently on every question of wide interest which comes to the fore. It gives to the children that help they need in their current history and current topics courses, as well as increasing their interest and understanding of their general school work. The Britannica stands forth clearly as the great international knowledge giver and interpreter.

EAST SIDE AUTO TOUR
IDEAL FOUR-HOUR TRIP69-Mile Jaunt Through Southern Illinois Is Over Fairly Good Roads.

A circle motor jaunt over fairly good Southern Illinois roads which can be made in about four hours is the fourth of a series of Sunday automobile tours offered to motorists by the Post-Dispatch and the Touring Bureau of the Automobile Club of Missouri.

This trip, which routes one south through Cahokia, Duplo, Lake View, Columbia, Waterloo to Hecker, and then back through Smithton, Belleville, Edgemont to East St. Louis, is approximately 69 miles in length. Upon leaving St. Louis via the Free Bridge, the road is fairly good as far as Columbia. From Columbia to Waterloo, a distance of approximately nine miles, the road is under construction, but passable, and can be made at a moderate rate of speed.

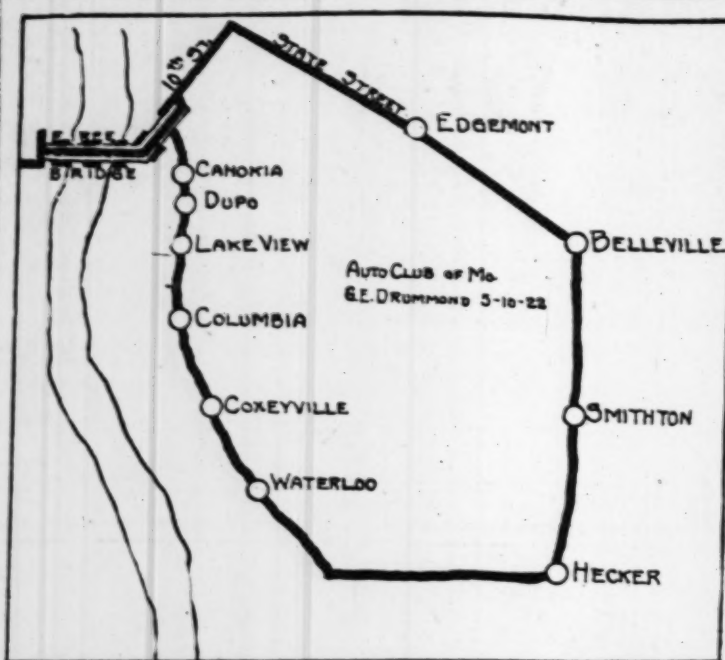

From Waterloo to Hecker the road for a short space is also partly under construction, but passable. After leaving Hecker and all the way to Belleville a 14-mile stretch of very good road is encountered.

From Belleville on to Edgemont the road is good, but from there on to the Free Bridge it is a bit rough at places.

BUICK ANNOUNCES
NEW SPECIAL SPORT CAR

The Buick Motor Co., through the Vesper Buick Auto Co., local distributors, has just announced its special Six-55 sport touring car.

This touring car matches the special Six-54 roadster announced and shown at the National Automobile shows in the spring, both in design and general appointment.

The new model is mounted on the large Buick chassis. The long wheel base is guaranty of leg-room in both compartments and a new type of rear spring suspension insures exceptionally easy riding; there are snubbers in front, and a touring trunk of handsome appearance and adequate capacity on the rear. Head lamps and cow lamp are all of special drum type.

An adjustable sunshade, attached to the windshield, rear vision mirror, threshold plates of etched aluminum, running board step plates of rubber fitted with nickel guards, stamp the car as the property of an owner who can afford the best.

Additional equipment of the special sport touring comprises: Khaki top of exclusive Buick patented design with no bows to obstruct vision; two-piece full ventilating windshield with wiper; glass covered ignition and lighting switch with push button dash lamp; combination gasoline gauge, oil pressure gauge and ammeter; combination clock and speedometer; cigar lighter; carpets in both front and rear compartments; walnut steering wheel with walnut control lever knob to match; heavily nickled radiator, step plates, guard rails and all other fittings, dark Buick lacquer finish with wheels to match. Tuac steel wheels built to Buick specifications are optional equipment at an added cost.

WESCOTT ANNOUNCES
PRICE REDUCTION

The Wescott Motor Car Co. of Springfield, O., announces through its local dealer, the Valley Automobile Co., a price reduction on all Wescott models, ranging from $200 to $400.

The reductions are as follows: Five-passenger touring, old price $1890, new price $1690; five-passenger speedster, old price $2190, new price $1990.

HUDSON AND ESSEX
BECOME ONE COMPANY

Formal announcement of the consolidation of the Hudson Motor Car Co., capitalized at 1,204,000 shares, the formation of a new company to be known as the Hudson Motor Car Co. and the Essex Motors, Inc., by of stock of no par value, has been received by R. C. Frampton, president of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., local distributors for the Hudson and Essex cars.

R. D. Chapin, president of the Hudson company, will head the consolidated company. Their ownership in the past has been practically identical, the two companies operating as a single unit.

With approximately 350,000 families in Detroit, Mich., there is one passenger automobile to each three families. This is said to be the highest ratio in any city in the country.

CADILLAC SALES SHOW REMARKABLE INCREASE

"Cadillac sales for the current year up to May 1 were two and a half times the volume for the corresponding period of last year," said H. H. Rice, president and general manager, Cadillac Motor Car Co., Detroit.

March and April were two of the largest selling months Cadillac ever experienced. Only three months ever equalled and one other month exceeded Cadillac sales in March, 1932.

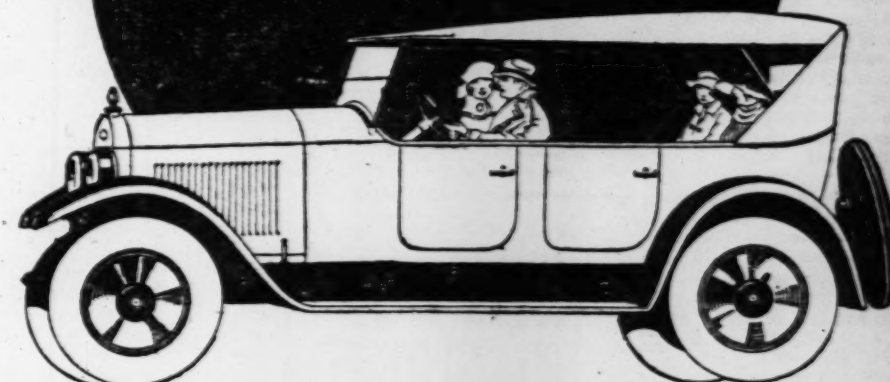

HIGGINS MADE MANAGER.

E. A. Higgins has been appointed wholesale sales manager of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., Hudson and Essex distributor to succeed H. R. Henry who recently resigned to remove to Columbus, O. where he will join the Hudson and Essex distributor of that city.

Like the Unexpected realization of a wish which has never even been encouraged into a definite hope, is the appearance of a fine car with a Knight-type motor at $1375.

Few ever expected to see this amazing motor in a worthy car at so low a price—The Willys-Knight car—well bred, well made, well behaved, gentle to its occupants. With Willys-Knight Motor—the highest development of the Knight sleeve-valve principle—quiet, dignified, proud, untroubled, and, like a good friendship, improving with use.

DORRIS MAKES RUN TO SPRINGFIELD IN 4 HOURS
A trip from St. Louis to Springfield, Ill., last week in four hours' actual running time, to attend the Illinois State dental banquet, was reported by W. C. Nelson of the Dorris Motor Car Co., who made the trip accompanied by Dr. B. E. Lischer, Dr. H. H. Bell, Dr. O. W. Brandhorst, Dr. J. A. Brown and Dr. E. F. Schewe.
The trip was made in a 6-50, seven-passenger Dorris touring car. Leaving St. Louis at 1 o'clock, the party arrived at the Leland Hotel in Springfield at 5 p. m., having covered the distance of 115 miles and averaging 15 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

HAYNES SALES INCREASE THIRTY-FIVE PER CENT
Haynes sales in April of this year broke previous records for a single month, and showed an increase of 35 per cent over the sales for the same period last year. Indications are that May will show an even greater percentage of increase over May of 1921.

DIEHL EXPECTED TO BE RE-ELECTED BY A. A. A.
The re-election of George C. Diehl of Buffalo, N. Y., as president of the American Automobile Association, is expected to take place with only small opposition when the two-day convention of the organization is opened in St. Louis next Friday. The only contestant who appears likely to run against Diehl is Walter D. Meals, president of the Cleveland Automobile Club. The automobile Club of Missouri and the Chicago Motor Club, two of the largest organizations within the A. A. A., are supporting Diehl.

The convention is the first in 20 years to be held outside of Washington, D. C. It was brought to St. Louis through the efforts of William King, general manager of the Automobile Club of Missouri. About 1000 delegates will appear to represent 600 clubs.
Mexico is literally flooded with stolen automobiles, which are sold for 50 per cent of their actual value.

Nash Leads the World in Motor Car Value

AUTOMOBILE history naturally associates the valve-in-head type of motor with C. W. Nash because of his important influence upon its development, which has helped largely to give it its present high place in the esteem of motor car buyers.

The Nash Six and Four are powered with the Nash Valve-in-Head Motor, and the striking quality of its performance is indicative of the manufacturing genius and conscientious care which has been exerted persistently over a long period of years to perfect it.

NAME FLEER PRESIDENT

H. H. Fleer of the Fleer-Petty Auto Accessories Co., was elected president of the Motor Accessory Trade Association at the annual meeting held Tuesday evening at the Claridge Hotel. H. W. Kruse of the Beck & Corbett Co. was elected vice president and Robert E. Lee, secretary and treasurer.

Four directors were also elected, namely: G. G. Giese of the Alastir Tire Cushman Co., the retiring president; C. A. Marlen of the H. & H. Machine Co.; J. P. Quan of the Fred Campbell Auto Supply Co.; and L. B. Tebbetts of the L. B. Tebbetts & Co.

Tebbetts was elected on a special ballot after he and Dan Hyland of the Stewart Products Service Station had both received the same number of votes of the first ballot. A. H. Kollmer of the Auto Salvage was elected sergeant-at-arms.

Five new members to the association were also elected at the meeting, they being the W. D. Walsh Co., 4374 Olive street; Kant Break Sales Co., 1415 Pine street; M. Grossmann, 1235 Pine street; Keystone Lubricating Co., 121 South Seventh street; and the Holliday-Pittsburgh Sales Co., 2438 Locust street. Copies of the association directory were also distributed at the meeting.

Automobile tax fees for a medium-sized four-cylinder car are as low as $5 annually in some parts of the United States. The same car in England would call for a tax of $62; in Spain, $48; Belgium, $18; France, $124; and Italy, $400.

ACCESSORY SHOW FIRST OF ITS KIND HELD HEREMore Than 200 Exhibitors to Display at the First Regiment Armory.

What is claimed to be the first exclusive show of motor car accessories open to the general public which has been held in this country, will be held at the First Regiment Armory, Grand and Market streets, beginning at 7 p. m. Monday, May 22. The show will be continued until Saturday, May 27, from 11 a. m. to 11 p. m. each day. There have been automobile accessory shows held in Chicago and New York but they were exclusively for the inspection of dealers.

The St. Louis show is to be a combination for both dealer and the general public and it is believed by the promoters and the more than 200 exhibitors that will be there that the attendance will be very large. The Armory is 200 feet long by 100 feet wide and this square floor area is surrounded by a number of company assembly rooms, and these as well as the main floor will be thickly set with exhibitions of automobile accessories, supplies, ornaments, necessities and luxuries.

Up to Saturday morning there were 200 exhibitors signed up, these representing lines of springs and windshields and windbreaks and spark plugs and spark detectors and gas savers and gas strainers and the thousand other items which go to make up the enormous motor car accessory business of the United States. While most of the exhibitors are St. Louis houses, there are a number who have come from other cities to display.

The motor accessory show is given under the auspices of the Motor Accessory Trade Association of St. Louis and the manager of the show is J. H. Gennison. A Show Committee from the association, of which G. G. Giese is chairman, is acting in the usual advisory capacity for the arrangement and conduct of the big event. This is the first time that accessories have ever been shown apart from the regular motor car show and extreme effort is to be made to make it a success.

A large number of invitations have been mailed to dealers in the territory surrounding St. Louis bidding them to the show.

Show Manager Gennison is one of the best known of public decorators in St. Louis, and he is expending much thought and expense for the artistic embellishment of the armory for the show week.

A great arch is to be around in front of the armory and this is to be covered with Southern similar. Above this there will be a brilliant electric sign announcing the show. There will be attractions every night, and included among these will be radiograph concert, two exhibitors will have radiograph apparatus.

A novel feature of the interior arrangement of the show is that a one-way traffic will be maintained throughout the building, thus avoiding all congestion of aisles and affording real comfort of those who come to see the novel devices for automobiles which will be exhibited.

GASOLINE RAIL CARS
Railroad officials, having become much interested of late in the gasoline-propelled railway car, were given the opportunity a few days ago of inspecting the latest and most improved car of this type, when a White rail coach was run over the Pennsylvania Railroad from Philadelphia to Washington, a distance of 136 miles. The car made the run to Washington for the annual meeting of the American Shortline Railroad Association and was the feature exhibit at the convention. It made daily runs during the convention over the tracks of the Washington & Old Dominion Railway, carrying as passengers representatives of the various short-line railroads in attendance at the meeting.

Development in the rail coach are being watched with the keenest interest by railroads, and the run from Philadelphia to Washington attracted numerous prominent Pennsylvania railway officials as passengers. The rail car driven to Washington was built for the Union Transportation Co. and is now operating over the company's 25 miles of track, between Pemberton and Hightstown, N. J. The Union Transportation Co. placed a 29-passenger rail car in service several months ago and its operation proved so successful that a second car of larger capacity was purchased.

NEW CHANDLER SPORT
MODEL NOW ON DISPLAY
The Royal Dispatch, a new four-passenger sport car, recently announced by the Chandler Motor Car Co. of Cleveland, is now being exhibited by the Lewis Automobile Co., local distributors.

Lithic lines, smart appointments and understated rear springs giving the car a road-hugging appearance, are outstanding features of the Royal Dispatch. It is equipped with wire wheels and carries two spare wheels, one on each side of the car, just behind the front fenders. A trunk rack on the rear is an added convenience that goes to make this an ideal car for the socially active. A row of vertical cast aluminum bars give added refinement and afford ample protection for the body finish. The same thoughtfulness for convenience is apparent in the roomy package compartment in the rear of the front seat, lighted by a tonneau lamp. Other features adding to the dapper appearance of the Royal Dispatch are beveled glass wind wings, nickel-plated radiator shell and motor-meter and barrel-type head and park lamps.

WILLS SAINTE CLAIRE INCREASING FORCE

An addition of nearly 33-1/3 per cent to the working force was made this week by C. H. Wills & Co., in their Wills Sainte Claire plants in Marysville.

A full night-shift and a full day-shift are now working to swell the production and keep pace with the demand for cars. The day-shift goes on at 7:30 and works until 5 p. m. The night-shift steps on their heels at 5:30 and works until 5 a. m.

Every effort is being made in Marysville this month to double the April production of Wills Sainte Claire cars.

AUTO CLUB CHARTERS
TRAIN FOR SPEED RACES

The Automobile Club of Missouri, the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association and the Kansas City Motor Car Dealers' Association have jointly arranged for a special train to take their members and friends to the Indianapolis automobile races on Decoration day. The train will leave Kansas City at 10 a. m. on May 29 and St. Louis at 8 p. m. that evening and return the morning following the races. Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Hinkle are in charge of the affair. Several hundred members of the Automobile Club took a similar trip last year.

The average American passenger automobile has a wheel base of 122 inches, carries 31x1-inch tires and weighs 3100 pounds. The engine is of six cylinders.

The Special 6-55 Sport-Touring

A patrician motor car with every appointment found in the finest automobile—

And, with all this—the certainty of Buick performance, Buick sturdiness and Buick power.

The Special Sport-Touring is built in response to the demand of the motorist who seeks Buick's kind of motoring with the intimate comfort and refinement of the sport design.

No detail of convenience has been omitted. No effort has been spared to include every comfort and every appointment that could be sought in any motor car.

The rugged, powerful, Buick driven chassis gives it the speed, endurance and smoothness that make touring a pleasure and not an uncertain adventure.

Nominally four passengers are accommodated in the roomy body but five can ride.

The Special Sport-Touring is finished in dark Buick maroon with wheels to match—which with the beautiful trimming, binding and finish give this special model its tailored appearance.

The demand for this handsome model at the remarkably low price will tax factory production to the limit. Consult the nearest Buick dealer for detail specifications and delivery dates.

Equipment of the Special Sport-Touring

Khaki top of exclusive Buick patented design with no bows to obstruct vision; Khaki adjustable sunshade; two-piece full ventilating windshield with wiper and mirror; glass covered ignition and lighting switch with push button dash lamp; combination gasoline gauge, oil pressure gauge and ammeter; combination clock and speedometer; cigar lighter; handsome, heavily nickel-bound luggage trunk mounted on permanent specially-designed base;

Buick design drum-type head and cowl lamps; front stubbers; carpets in both front and rear compartments; walnut steering wheel with walnut control lever knob to match; heavily nickel-plated radiator, step plates, guard rails and all other fittings; Tuxedo steel wheels built to Buick specifications are optional equipment at an added cost of $50.00 if installed at the factory; extra tires or tire covers not included.

Sentinels of Safety

GUARD the rear of your car from damaging collisions by warning the driver behind. STOP flashes out in brilliant red when the foot-brake is depressed. Big enough not to be mistaken for the tail-light. It gets instant attention.

Be extremely careful when buying electrical equipment of this nature. It must be well constructed to stand up under constant usage. The name Stewart is on this Stop Signal.

A substantial bracket to fit any car. Model 184, $5.00.

Don't take your eyes from the road ahead to look to the rear. The minute you do, you invite Disaster into the car as one of the passengers. Stewart Rear Vision Mirrors give you a clear view of the road behind at all times.

MANY NAMES SUBMITTED FOR RECKLESS MOTORIST

More than 5000 persons have submitted suggestions for a name for the reckless automobile driver in the contest being held by the American Automobile Association. The contest, designed to "tag" the reckless motorist with a distinguishing name similar to that of "jaywalker," for the careless pedestrian, will end tomorrow, May 15.

In addition to the thousands of suggested names submitted, the A. A. A. has received hundreds of letters setting forth the writers' ideas of reckless drivers and intimating that an appropriate name cannot be placed upon them, by reason of the limitation of the postal laws. However, enough good suggestions have been received to make it almost certain that the reckless motorist will take his place with the "jaywalker" shortly after the contest closes.

The most appropriate name will be selected by a committee of prominent citizens. The names will be arranged alphabetically, with only a number to identify them with the letter containing the name of the contestant. None of the judges will see these letters until after the award is made.

The winner will receive $25 in gold and certain sections have promised additional rewards provided the winner comes from that section. The judges will be announced within the next week.

CARS HAVE LONGER LIFE.

It is a noteworthy fact that while motor cars have been coming down in price they have on the whole been lasting longer. While the car manufacturers claim that this is due to improving materials and design, the Joseph Dixon Crucible Company allow a great deal of credit to more intelligent and scientific lubrication, particularly in the gear-boxes. Besides lengthening the useful life of a car, correct gear lubrication makes the car handle more easily, the gears shift more quietly, and deliver a higher percentage of engine power. Attention to the gear boxes is very much worth while. Gears, cars and power are expensive, but proper lubrication is cheap.

Jackie Congan, age 6, the youthful motion picture player, has a specially built passenger automobile, costing $10,000.

NEW ACCESSORY FOR FORDS ANNOUNCED

A new Ford accessory known as the Kreitner automatic air valve has been placed on the market by the Kreitner Manufacturing Co., a new company with offices in the Title Guaranty Building.

The valve, which fits in the stove or hot-air pipe, is designed so as to automatically control the supply of air to the carburetor and a saving of from 15 to 40 per cent of gasoline is claimed by the makers.

I. F. Kreitner of East St. Louis and W. H. Dyer, formerly with the Zeinicker Supply Co., are officers in the new company.

A vast national building program assures prosperity for the automobile industry and you.

1000 Mile Hazards Take them out of your motoring

YOU EXPECT better mileage from Gargoyle Mobiloil. Naturally, Gargoyle Mobiloil does last longer than the average oil which is merely a gasoline by-product.

But after 1,000 miles of use what happens to oil? Even the best oil may be thinned-down with unvaporized gasoline. Carbon gets in. Dust enters through the carburetor. Water and rust may also be present.

After 1,000 miles of use your Gargoyle Mobiloil has far more lubricating value than other oils. But even so, it is true economy to drain off all used oil and replace with fresh, clean Gargoyle Mobiloil. For full economy and protection this attention is an absolute necessity.

When you see the dealer, ask him for Gargoyle Mobiloil in a sealed 5-gallon can. Or ask about the larger steel drums (leak-proof—with convenient faucets) for your home garage. Then you need never go driving with over-used oil in your crank-case.

By the way—

How long is it since your crank-case was emptied and refilled?

Hadn't you better attend to this today?

FOR the transmission and differential of your car use Gargoyle Mobiloil "C" or "CC" or Mobiloil—bright—as specified in the complete Chart.

Wyss' One-Acre Tracts. 132x330. Located three-quarter mile east of Mitchell, Ill. on the National State Aid (concrete) Road.

Should you want to subdivide them you can get seven city lots out of an acre. If you want employment you can reach Granite City, Wood River, Roxana or Hartford in 15 minutes; or St. Louis, Alton or Edwardsville in 30 minutes.

Best drained tract in this district. Never overflows. You can cut your high cost of living 50% by raising vegetables, chickens—keep a cow and a few hogs. Sell all your produce by merely displaying a for-sale sign.

Mitchell has five trunk, two interurban lines, two churches and a public school, railroad terminal shops, etc.

Free taxes for 1932. For price and terms, call or telephone F. N. Hickman Land Co.

A long, narrow, light-colored strip, possibly a piece of paper or tape, running horizontally across the frame. The strip is slightly curved and has a textured appearance. It is set against a dark, almost black background. The strip appears to be a single continuous piece, with some slight variations in tone and texture along its length. It is positioned in the upper half of the image, extending from the left edge towards the right. The right end of the strip is slightly folded or bent, showing a darker, more shadowed area. The overall image is in black and white, with high contrast between the light strip and the dark background.

Singing Babies to Sleep by Thousands

Mamma may go to the movies, knowing that the radio lullaby will be on the job at cribside—Woman at one broadcasting station says she brings the sandman to 10,000 sleepy children every night—The wireless proxy mother eases the "radio widow's" burden of bereavement.

"ROCK-A-BYE, baby, mother is near." This verse of a famous old nursery song has lulled thousands, maybe millions, of babies to sleep, but in this age of advancement and precocity it is fast becoming obsolete.

Upon hearing it the sophisticated "baby flapper" of the present day might well be supposed to sit up in her cradle with a bored expression and say: "What do you mean—mother is near? Hand me the head set and I'll see what's going on in the lullaby line tonight in St. Louis, Pittsburg, Chicago and Newark. If the one from Erminie is floating around I'll get it. Mother may stay at the movies as long as she likes."

Then the astonishingly modern child, while adjusting the receiver, will croon: "Whether mother be near Or mother be far, The radio is here, And there you are."

"There I go doing it myself!" she will chuckle. "Believe me, I have heard so many of these go-to-sleep rhymes since the radio bug bit papa that whenever I have nothing on my hands poetic feet keep running through my head. I guess by the time I'm big enough to wear short skirts I'll be a poetess. I like all the lullabies that come through except those in the afternoon. Yesterday I thought I would let the radio put me to sleep for a matinee nap. I tuned up with Chicago, but I didn't like the song. It was something about red Northern potatoes being two-and-a-half a bushel. The bushel measure was the only kind it seemed to have and there wasn't a sign of rhyme. Then it went on into onions and I cut out. I like Stevenson's 'Garden of Verse,' but I don't care for Chicago's verses of gardens. They are full of dollars, but have no sense."

O, yes! It is being done. The adding machine would break down under the strain if you tried to make it number all of the juveniles who are being put to sleep every night to the tune of the radio lullaby.

As just one instance, there is Miss Rose Forster, a sweet-voiced young woman, who nightly sings go-to-sleep songs from the biggest radio broadcasting station in Chicago. Miss Forster, of course, has no exact figures as to the number of those who hear her, but knowing the range and scope of the station, she estimates that 10,000 children listen to her lullabies every night while waiting for the sandman. This may sound like an extravagant claim, but who knows? It must be remembered that under favorable conditions the singer's voice may be heard for a radius of 2000 miles and within a circle inclosing a large and populous portion of the United States. She naturally assumes that the lullaby period is the "children's hour" and that not even the most hardened "head-set hog" would deny to his little ones the pleasure of hearing this portion of the evening program. At any rate it is certain that Miss Forster's lullabies solve the crib-time problem in hundreds, if not thousands, of homes.

A station in Newark, N. J., is one of several which make a specialty of a curfew program for children, and a station recently established in St. Louis has a bedtime story as an important part of its nightly programs.

One of the radio activities is an Eastern broadcasting station which issues what it calls a "Woman's Daily." This is designed to include many of the features of a daily newspaper of interest mainly to women. This "vocal newspaper" also has a "children's department" for the kiddies to listen to. This at times includes fairy stories and lullabies.

complaining or pettishness now—just childish absorption in enjoyment until the soothing music has its inevitable effect. When the sandman comes he finds a smiling little girl awaiting him. Then very gently the headpiece is removed. Papa tiptoes out of the room.

Already it is being whispered around that the new method of communication has brought into being the "radio widow." Like the "golf widow" and the "baseball widow," she is a wife who to all intents and purposes is in the bereaved class because her husband's devotion to a particular fad robs him of her companionship. The term "radio widow" is already finding its way into the literature of this new diversion.

Some women find their "bereavement" doubly sad. These are the "widows" whose husbands devote the afternoon to golf and the evening to the radio receiver. Who can blame the "radio widow" if she goes out to visit a neighbor or to see a moving picture, knowing that if she is not home in time to sing baby to sleep the radio will do it for her?

SHELL SHOCK—A Woman—Two Men—Tragedy

MEDICO-LEGAL experts, psychologists and the average citizen of France are puzzled over the outcome of a recent murder trial. The circumstances were highly dramatic. The "eternal triangle" and what is known as a "brain storm" were in the case. Briefly, a soldier of the World War had killed his best friend, a young man, who he believed had made love to his wife, a volunteer nurse who had attended the soldier during his tedious recovery from shell shock. The defendant had been discharged as cured in 1918. The killing took place nearly three years later. The jury has found him guilty of murder, but recommended clemency because of his mental history since the explosion of a shell in battle sent him to a hospital. Highly interesting in itself because of the delicate medico-legal problems involved, this case is of importance to America and to all the other nations which took part in the war, on account of the large numbers of men who suffered shell shock.

In 1914 Sergt. Jacques Bouquerot, the son of farmer parents living in the neighborhood of Chartres, was called to the colors. The explosion of a shell shattered his nerves, symptoms of mental unbalance developed, and he was sent to a hospital at Nice, where he slowly recovered. The volunteer nurse who cared for him, Mlle. Marthe Boutellier, a young woman of good family, won his heart and marriage presently followed. In 1918 Bouquerot was discharged from the hospital as cured, but was retired from further military service on account of tuberculosis of the lungs, for the treatment of which the doctors prescribed life in the country. Accordingly, Bouquerot, who had inherited a substantial fortune from his parents, bought the chateau of Courancieres and settled down to the life of a country gentleman and farmer. He devoted himself assiduously to the cultivation of his land, evoking, however, good-natured but somewhat contemptuous criticism because of the large amount of time which he spent in the society of his workmen. His only intimate friend was a Belgian, Paul Coulon, the son of a neighboring farmer, who helped him in buying and selling, accompanied him on hunting excursions in the game season, played billiards with him and practically lived at the chateau.

Mme. Bouquerot, on the other hand, found country life exceedingly dull. Accustomed to the gay social distractions of Nice, the three months each year in which she was privileged once more to enjoy them were almost the only bright spot in an otherwise lonesome and dreary existence. The fact that her husband seemed to have no regard for time, appearing for luncheon at 2 o'clock and for dinner at 11, did not make matters better. It was the familiar story of a war marriage marred by what Dickens has so well described as unsuitability of mind and purpose. Paul Coulon stepped into the breach as a sympathetic friend and companion. Mme. Bouquerot made him her confidant, poured into his ears her complaints, her suspicions of the attentions which her husband showed to other women during her absence, her repulsion at the dull and listless attitude of M. Bouquerot in the evening after a long day in the fields among his workmen. On the other hand, the smallest glass of wine seemed suddenly to excite her husband's nerves and give him all the appearance of drunkenness. Paul Coulon listened, sympathized and urged her to be courageous. One day last June Bouquerot returned home for dinner at about 8 o'clock, bringing his friend with him. After dinner the two men played billiards; then Bouquerot, as was his habit, fell asleep in his chair. Paul Coulon and Mme. Bouquerot conversed quietly until about 11, when Coulon departed. Mme. Bouquerot accompanied him to the gate of the park, only to return with him in a few minutes to have, as she explained, a cup of coffee. Bouquerot, apparently still asleep, but with his eyes open, observed the departure and the return, but made no comment regarding the alleged explanation of coffee. To all appearances he was in a stupor, conscious but helpless so far as speech or movement was concerned. Mme. Bouquerot and Coulon presently withdrew to an adjoining room, the door of which remained open, and there, according to Bouquerot's testimony later, the two were heard to kiss one another several times. When, after a few minutes, they returned to the room in which the husband sat apparently helpless in his chair, a heavy storm had broken, and Coulon was persuaded to pass the night at the chateau in a room which Mme. Bouquerot prepared for him, and from which, in the course of the preparations, further kisses were overheard. Bouquerot spent the night immobile in his chair. At about 7 in the morning he arose heavily, ate his breakfast in silence and departed for the fields, returning at 2 o'clock for luncheon. Just as he was finishing Coulon arrived and went at once to the smoking room, where he found Mme. Bouquerot and her two children. Coffee and conversation were in progress when Bouquerot, rifle in hand, entered the room.

"How now?" exclaimed Coulon, half laughing and half afraid. "Do you want to kill us?" "If that is what you want," said Mme. Bouquerot, "begin with me."

Without a word, Bouquerot fired point-blank at the man whom he apparently regarded as the destroyer of his home. Coulon, who had received the bullet in his head, staggered out of the chateau, made his way for a few yards along the walk and fell dead. While Mme. Bouquerot knelt over the body of the dead man, Bouquerot went quietly to the village and gave himself up. "I have killed my best friend," he said. "I had a stroke of fury when I saw him and remembered the scenes of last night."

Bouquerot was charged with murder, and, after a delay of more than six months, was tried at Chartres. Calmly he recounted before the court the details of the tragic scene and the events of the evening, during which, he averred, he was powerless to move from his chair. "When I returned home the next day," he continued, "my wife had already lunched. At the sight of Paul Coulon my blood froze. As I entered the room where he was it seemed to me that a torrent of blood mounted to my brain when I recalled what had happened the night before and remembered the significant look which he had given my wife. From that moment I know nothing of what I did, but I remember hearing my wife say: 'If you mean to kill us, begin with me,' and later, as I passed her on my way to the village, 'You will put this down as an accident.'"

The testimony of witnesses was for the most part of the usual kind. It was affirmed that Bouquerot drank too much, that he neglected and ill-treated his wife, that he kept company with other women, that he was unaccountably familiar with his workmen, and that he often seemed absent-minded and "queer."

Mme. Bouquerot, on the other hand, was described as a petulant and disagreeable person and even her morals were questioned. Her father testified that the couple had lived unhappily and that he had more than once urged divorce. What set the courtroom and the country to talking, however, was the medical testimony. How were the extraordinary immobility of the night and the furious outburst of the following day to be explained? Why did Bouquerot watch incriminating acts without a movement or a word, depart as usual the next morning for the field, neglect to return for luncheon until someone reminded him that the hour was late, and then shoot his best friend as soon as he saw him?

The medical expert appointed by the Court to examine Bouquerot testified without hesitation that the periods of extraordinary torpor and immobility to which the accused was subject were due to the shell shock which he had suffered early in the war, and which caused "an abnormal sanguineous irritation" of the brain. Bouquerot, it was declared, was a victim of "neuro-psychic post-comotional inequilibrium." He was not insane, but "his responsibility at the moment of the act which he committed was not complete." His physical condition was such that the sight of any conduct which appeared to him to be an invasion of his rights, and especially of his conjugal rights, might at any time disturb the normal functions of the brain and lead to acts for which, notwithstanding that he was aware of them, he could not properly be regarded as fully responsible. Translated into common parlance, shell shock had left him subject to brain storms which at one moment held him firmly in their grip and the next moment drove him inexorably onward. The impulse to kill Coulon had been engendered by Bouquerot's physical reactions on the evening before the shooting, but the same physical reactions kept him from acting until the next day.

The jury before which the case was tried found Bouquerot guilty of murder, but with extenuating circumstances which, in their opinion, entitled him to clemency. He was accordingly sentenced to five years' imprisonment. Under the law the judges had no recourse save to impose the penalty in this case the minimum, but the verdict of the jury was debated throughout France. If as the medical expert appointed by the Court testified, Bouquerot was not fully responsible, why should he be compelled to bear all the odium of one of the worst of crimes with only the mitigation of a comparatively short sentence? Is not imperfect responsibility virtually the same thing as no responsibility at all? If it is, then the proper place for Bouquerot is an asylum, not the hard quarters of a criminal. On the other hand, if the medical testimony is to be regarded as indicating the existence of a mental or moral state somewhere between complete responsibility and complete irresponsibility, conviction of a heinous crime joined to the imposition of a light penalty seems to be an extremely crude way of dealing with it.

What grave possibilities for themselves, their families and their friends, dog the steps of men who temporarily unbalanced by shell shock, but apparently restored, may nevertheless at any moment be swept by waves of emotion at the sight of acts which touch their honor or their sense of right? What "retarded reactions" to use the phrase of the medical expert at the Bouquerot trial may at any moment induce conduct which under ordinary circumstances the law regards as crime? And if juries, prone everywhere to look askance at the testimony by medical experts, insist upon returning verdicts of guilty in the cases of accused persons for whose responsibility no psychologist will stand sponsor, will a way be found to set aside their verdicts and enforce a decision at once more just and more rational?

These are some of the vexing questions in regard to which psychology and law appear to be much in need of getting together.

New Type of Piling Digs Itself in.

Governors of Missouri, Iowa and South Dakota witnesses at an interesting test of railroad man's invention designed to curb Missouri River — Water pressure through center of concrete pile sinks it 40 feet in 90 seconds—A striking feature is that it can be sunk at an angle which has not heretofore been possible with ordinary pile-driving methods

A CONCRETE pile which digs its way into the ground and goes scooting down through the earth until it reaches bedrock is being hailed by engineers as holding out hope of an effective way to curb the Missouri and other rivers which have a way of cutting away their banks and forming new channels, with the consequent flooding and destruction of farming land.

This ingenious contrivance is the invention of Edward Bignell, a Nebraska railroad man.

Recently 300 engineers from all over the country, a special trainload of railroad men, the Governors of Missouri, Iowa and South Dakota, with members of their staffs, and 200 other interested men, gathered in Omaha to see Bignell demonstrate his "discovery."

In the past, when the Missouri River started cutting into its banks and devouring farm land, nothing was able to stop it. If trees were in the way, the river simply washed them out and carried them downstream. If piles were driven into the bank, the river dug them up and added them to the driftwood which lines its shores. When the Missouri took a notion to wander, it wandered wherever it pleased and no power could stop it until it got ready to come back home—if it ever got ready to remain where it ought to stay.

But Bignell's invention has put a stop to all that according to the engineers who saw the recent demonstration. And these opinions are backed up by actual accomplishments along the banks of the Missouri just above Omaha, Neb.

Bignell's system is to drive a pile so deep in the ground that the river simply cannot undermine it. And then, by driving additional piles in tongue-and-groove position, to form a wall which the river cannot pass.

If the tongue-and-groove wall is not desired, after the piles have been driven home branches of trees are anchored by iron cables to the piles, the current of the river is momentarily checked by the branches and the silt and sand in the water immediately are deposited and a sandbar is formed which protects the threatened banks.

Wooden piles of sufficient length to perform this work cannot be secured. Iron piles would rust out and were too expensive. There was no known method of driving concrete piles to any such depths. Bignell solved the problem.

The Bignell pile digs its own way down to bedrock. Not a blow of any kind is delivered.

At the demonstration the engineers saw a 40-foot concrete pile dig its own way down through hard dirt until just its head was above the ground. And just one minute and a half, 90 seconds, were consumed from the moment the foreman raised his hand to start until he lowered it as a signal to stop.

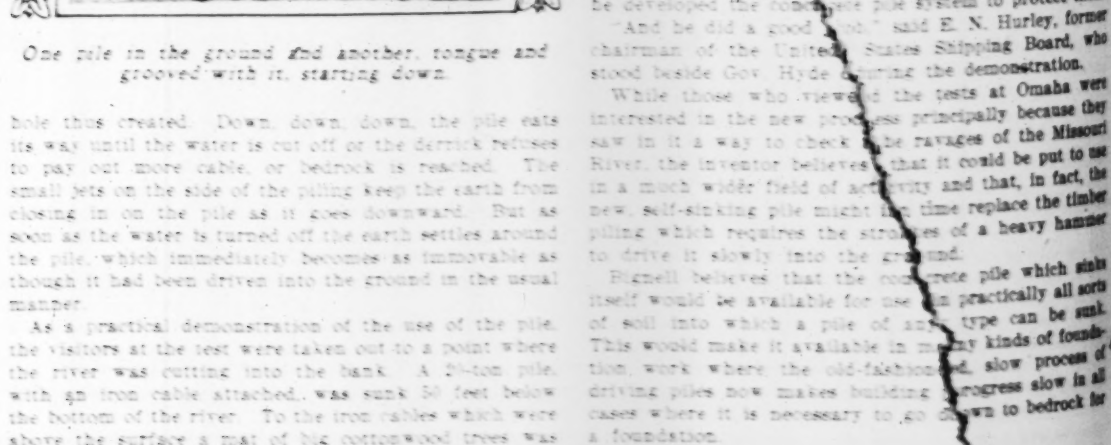

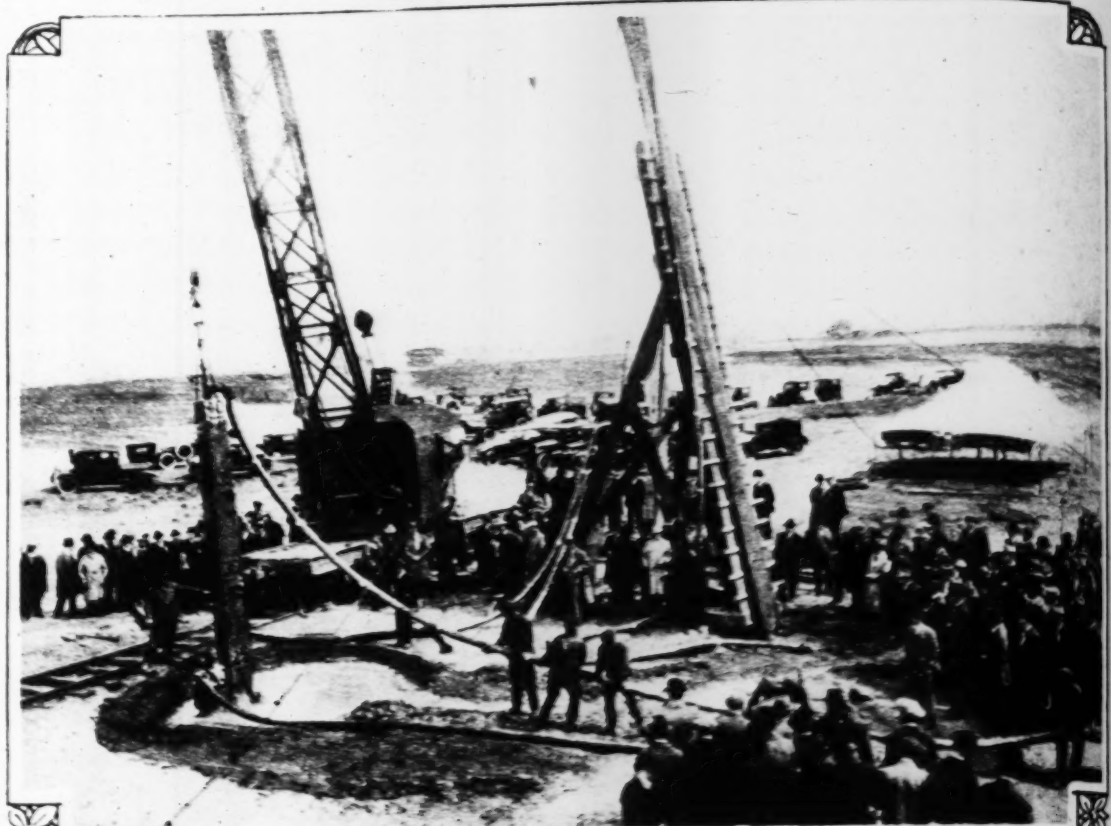

They saw another 40-foot pile eat its way in at an angle of about 30 degrees. Less than two minutes were required. Under the old system of pile driving there is no such thing as driving a pile at an angle.

The engineers saw a 40-foot concrete pile start down and keep on going until its nose struck bedrock, 30 feet below the surface. When the head of the pile reached the surface of the ground the thing just kept on going down until the iron cable attached to the head indicated the point of the pile was 30 feet below the surface and that the head was 40 feet underground.

Then the pile was pulled out of the ground just as quickly as it had eaten its way downward. Two minutes were required to send this pile to bedrock and about the same time consumed in bringing it to the surface.

The Bignell concrete piles are about 16 inches square. Down through the center of each is a four-inch iron pipe. At the point this pipe contracts to a two-inch nozzle. Four one-inch iron rods are embedded in the pile to prevent it from breaking. These iron rods extend the entire length of the pile. Every five feet on each of the four sides of the pile there is a one-inch jet, connected with the main four-inch pipe in the center of the piling.

A big derrick picks up the pile and swings it in a perpendicular position, with the nozzle end just touching the ground. Then, from a force pump connected with a steam engine, a stream of water under 200 pounds pressure to the inch is sent down through the four-inch pipe in the center of the pile. When this water comes out the nozzle end of the pile it simply eats away the ground beneath. As it does so the derrick operating the pile lowers the pile into the secured. As these trees swung into position against the bank the erosion immediately ceased and a sandbar started forming.

Engineers state that with tongue-and-groove piling a wall can be built which the river cannot pass and which will keep the stream within its channel. The new system will cause the river to scour and cut a channel so deep that it will be navigable for steamboats, say the engineers.

"I can see the finish of the Mad Missouri," said Gov. Hyde of Missouri after he had witnessed the demonstration. "The old Missouri is going to be so gentle it will eat out of our hands, once that system gets into full operation."

Bignell, who designed the new system, was for many years superintendent of the Nebraska division of the Burlington Railroad. He had so much trouble with the sandy rivers of Nebraska cutting out the approaches and the footings to the railroad bridges that he developed the concrete pile system to protect them.

"And he did a good job," said E. N. Hurley, former chairman of the United States Shipping Board, who stood beside Gov. Hyde during the demonstration.

While those who viewed the tests at Omaha were interested in the new process principally because they saw in it a way to check the ravages of the Missouri River, the inventor believes that it could be put to use in a much wider field of activity and that, in fact, the new, self-sinking pile might one time replace the timber piling which requires the straining of a heavy hammer to drive it slowly into the ground.

Bignell believed that the concrete pile which sinks itself would be available for use in practically all sorts of soil into which a pile of any type can be sunk. This would make it available in many kinds of foundation work where the old-fashioned, slow process of driving piles now makes building progress slow in all cases where it is necessary to go down to bedrock for a foundation.

BLIND AND DEAF GIRL A CONCERT PIANISTE

Helen May Martin of Olathe plays "by vibration," and her performance has been praised by critics—In less than four years, the girl memorized some 30 pieces of music, including classical selections, and renders with expression the harmonies she can never hear—At start of music course she learned by placing hands on those of teacher as latter struck the keys—She makes good bread and cake, sews, knits, operates a typewriter and does much of the housework in modest home

PROBABLY for the first time since the morning stars sang together at the dawn of creation, a person who is unable to see or to hear has given a piano recital. An audience of more than 400 heard and applauded. The pianiste, dwelling always in the darkness and the silence, played an evening's program of difficult selections from the masters and struck but a single false note.

This prodigy is Miss Helen May Martin, who lives with her widowed mother, Mrs. Helen May Martin, a milliner at Olathe, Kan., the little town just beyond the Missouri border which has been noted chiefly as the home of the late John Peter St. John, 40 years ago the renowned prohibition Governor of Kansas. Olathe people now are predicting that their village will have a much wider reputation as the home of Helen Martin, somewhat mistakenly termed "a second Helen Keller."

If Miss Martin goes on the road as a pianiste, which is said to be her ambition, her press agent probably will play the "second Helen Keller" publicity note rather loudly, and no doubt with a ticket-selling effect. Yet there would seem to be in this young woman's achievements enough of the marvelous to attract the public without dragging in the name of Miss Keller.

Helen Martin is 25 years old and has been nearly, but not quite always, blind and deaf. Helen Keller has been so from birth. From early childhood, all Miss Martin's knowledge of the normal world has been gained through methods similar to those whereby Miss Keller has been enabled to communicate with other persons and to absorb much learning. But this Kansas girl has one accomplishment not possessed by the older deaf-blind woman.

"Helen Keller can't play the piano," friends of the Kansas girl point out, "while Helen Martin can."

The concert pianist to whom we are accustomed plays "by note"—with the written music score in handy view. A few pianists of some reputation play "by ear" —Blind Boone, the famous Missouri negro, for instance. Paderewski (when he played, could both see and hear. Blind Boone could hear. Helen Martin can do neither. How, then, is it possible for her to render such a delicate thing as Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata"?

Helen Martin plays "by vibration."

So far as the world of music knows, she is the only person in history who has learned to play on the pianoforte by vibration. Her playing, he it understood, is not a mere "stunt"—not a matter of having learned, mechanically, to strike a key here and a key yonder with the necessary spacings and inflections, and of having committed to memory certain "pieces" thus acquired. Of course, that would be a prodigious feat in itself, perhaps an impossibility.

Miss Martin, though she does not hear the music she plays as it is heard by her auditors through the delicate auricular mechanism at each side of the head, "feels" the music. Through some mystery of vibration not comprehended by persons who possess all the normal physical senses, two of which she lacks altogether, she is able to "get" the melodies and the harmonies, so that she knows, as well as anybody else does, when a false note is struck.

"Miss Martin plays well," wrote the music critic of the Kansas City Star, who went to Olathe to witness her recent debut as a concert pianiste. "And she has taken only 50 piano lessons," he adds. "Never has she had a teacher who understood both the teaching of the deaf and of the blind. Rhythm she has learned by vibration—by placing her hands over the hands of her teacher."

blind-deaf girl and sought her out. Blind persons have certain perceptions acuter than those possessed by seeing persons. Old Dr. Brandon doubtless felt, somehow, that this girl could learn music if there were any way of teaching her. He discussed the matter with her mother and gave Helen four piano lessons. Then the blind pianist went upon his way.

To Helen he had made just a little bit ajar the door opening into a new realm of marvelous beauty. It was the world of harmony vibrations, a world unfelt by us who get our music through the ear alone. In her double-walled prison of silence and darkness Helen felt the welcome sensation of something beautiful, hitherto denied her. Perhaps a prisoner long immured in a dungeon feels a sensation similar, when through a new-made crack in the wall comes the scented breath of spring and he can peer through the aperture and glimpse a bit of the earth's greenery and the blue sky. The dungeon inmate, however, has known that such a world exists around him. Helen, until the old blind pianist came, was not aware of the environ- world of music. The door being ajar, she desired that it be pushed wide open.

Mrs. Martin, trimming ladies' bonnets all day long, was sad because she had not sufficient means to send Helen to Kansas City for study there. But with the aid of friends she employed teachers who lived in Olathe, first Mrs. Clella Perkins and then Mrs. Greeley, both of whom took a keen interest in the girl's ambition. They studied new methods suited to the emergency, and in the past three or four years the pupil has proved to be remarkably apt. She has memorized no less than 30 pieces of standard music, including classical selections.

First, the pupil placed her hands upon those of the teacher as the latter fingered the pianoforte. Finally she could place her own hands upon the keyboard and get the vibrations direct.

The Olathe people have many wonderful things to say about their "second Helen Keller," irrespective of her musical accomplishments. The girl was 16 years old before she ever received a day's schooling. Because of her double affliction it was believed that she could not benefit by going to school. At home the devoted mother had taught her much, but there was yet so much to learn! Helen herself felt the need of more education, and in 1912 she wrote to the Superintendent of the State School for the Deaf, located at Olathe. The Board of Control, after some discussion, admitted Helen to the school. But what could be done, they asked, for a pupil both deaf and blind? Put Helen finished the course, which ordinarily requires nine years, in five years, and her grades never went below 97.

Miss Martin was graduated from the Olathe institution in 1917 and took first prize in the bread-making contest. Now, while her mother makes hats to bring in a living, Helen does much of the housework. People in Olathe praise the cakes she bakes. She sews and knits expertly and operates a typewriter with ease.

Possibly, then, Shakespeare and Keats might be able to understand more of the mystery of the Kansas girl's piano playing than can be comprehended by the average mind.

Miss Martin was 21 years old before she "had any music," as the phrase goes. This is not to deny that she had music in her soul, but she knew nothing of it as normal people do. To her the masterpieces of the great composers were sealed silences. Also which is a matter of less importance, the realm of jazz was closed to her—and, happily, still is.

In 1918 there came through Olathe an old blind pianist, one Dr. Brandon, who was told about the local

Italy's political boss is a priest

By FERDINAND TUOHY.

THERE is something immensely stimulating in arriving in a country to discover there a fresh world character hitherto known to you only as a vague name. It gets you away from four-Power treaties, and Genoa, and reparations, and all the rest of that dull and interminable round of news that has sprung up in the wake of the war. Before going to Rome to write about the papal election I read the name of Don Sturzo, as I suppose many Americans have, but it meant no more to me in Paris than it meant to the vast majority of Americans—except the restricted few who follow the intricacies of Italian politics. Yet this Don Sturzo is the most powerful man in Italy today (excepting, of course, the international figure of the supreme pontiff). No one can do anything politically in Italy nowadays without being beholden to Don Sturzo, as was vividly emphasized during the long-drawn-out political crisis just terminated with the assumption by Signor Facta of the premiership. And possibly Don Sturzo will be more interesting to Americans since one detects a close resemblance between his all-conquering methods and those pursued with equal success by a second cleric, albeit of a different type and with a very different goal—the Rev. E. C. Dinwiddie, late political chieftain of the Antislavery League.

So meet Don Sturzo, dictator of Italy. "Don" (strictly meaning "Lord") is the title commonly given to priests in Italy, just as we in America speak of them as "Father." A most unprepossessing figure of a man. Long, lean and lanky, sallow, sunken and 50. With prominent eyes, hair so shiny that it looks as if it had been oiled, and a great hooked nose. Ever stooping and shabby of raiment, a figure of the stage, if ever there was one, never seen and rarely heard, but ever present, and his name and that of his political party, the Popolari, on everybody's lips every hour of the day.

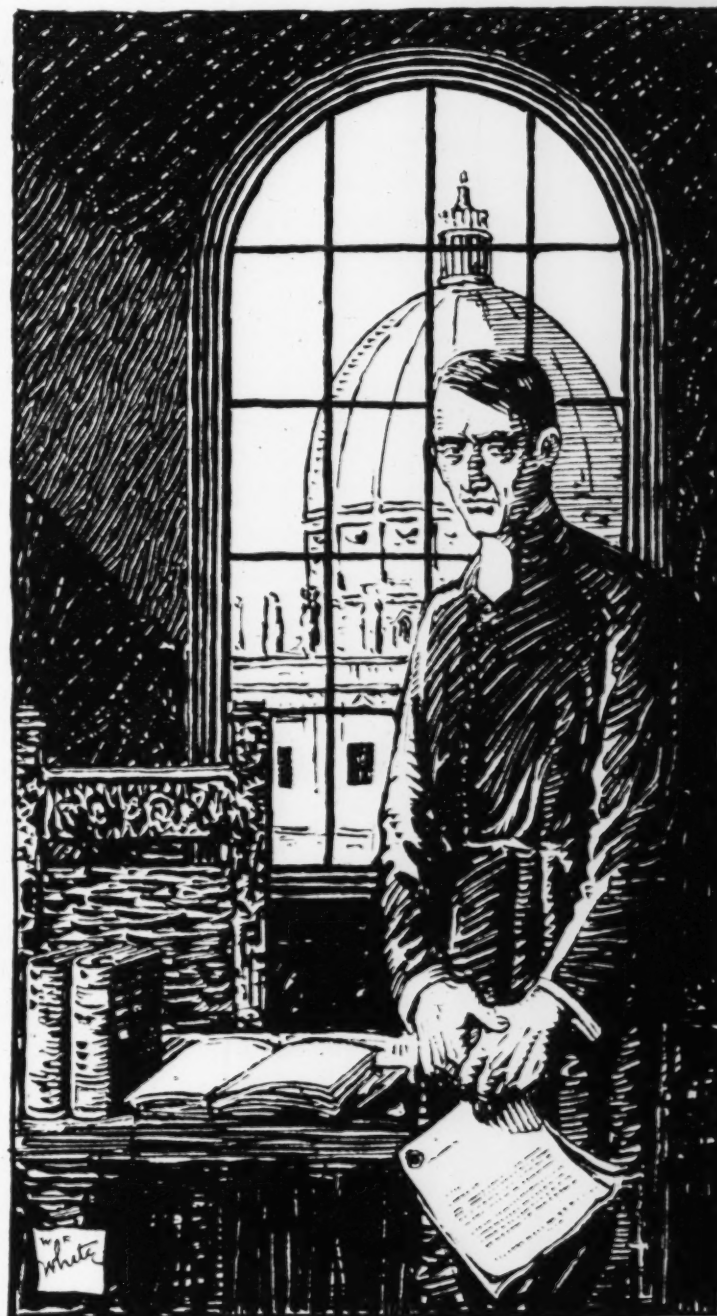

When, on my first night in Rome recently, I inquired, "Who is Don Sturzo, anyway?" it was like asking in the United States, "Who is Douglas Fairbanks?" A ripple of merriment greeted my alien ignorance. Don Sturzo is Italy, at the moment, as I was to learn long before heading north across the Alps once more.

Unprepossessing, as he is, there is one thing about Don Sturzo, village priest, which compels forthwith closer observation: He is a Sicilian, of a tribe not the quietest and most well-balanced in the world, yet he is of mild manner and pleasant voice and never has been known to get excited or lose his head. Furthermore, when he speaks—mirabile dictu!—it is without gesture or flourish or any conscious effort at spellbinding. And yet he holds the most divergent types of men under his sway. How? Let us probe a little into his past.

Twenty years ago Don Sturzo was a young priest, leading the hard, rough life of a Sicilian village, Caltagirone, where he was born. The natural harshness and poverty of the mountainous, sun-baked countryside seems to have bred a spirit of revolt into the young Sturzo very early, or when still barely out of his teens and fresh-ordained he set to work on his scheme for "the liberation of municipalities from politicians and the yoke of the state," which was destined later to spread throughout Italy. Sturzo's methods vividly recall those enacted during the earlier local option campaigns in the United States. He resolutely refrained from linking himself with any party or organization, and thus kept himself free to attack all and sundry when occasion should arise. He assembled around him in his native village a small group of men entirely devoted to him and whom he led with an iron discipline. These pioneer assistants of Caltagirone he selected with infinite care. He appealed to all types in the community, peasants and workpeople, and indicated how their respective lots could be improved under his teaching. People who observe only surface appearances might call it a sort of bolshevism carried out under the cloak of religion, but there was nothing bolshevist about it. For instance, Sturzo actively incited the peasantry to take over the land belonging to the ever-absent proprietors, but he also came out hot and strong for the owners of small holdings when the peasantry he had spurred on to communal ownership in the first instance were displaying symptoms of pushing their advantages too far. For he realized the injustice of peasants working hard to keep some strange princeling or dukelet living in luxury in Rome or Naples and never even visiting his vast estates; but where a farmer-lived on and worked the small piece of property that was his, he insisted on his inalienable right to ownership of that land. It was one thing to seize vast estates that had been lying idle, and work them; it was altogether another to deprive a hard-working farmer of his land.

Don Sturzo rapidly became a little king in his backwoods Sicilian village, where, we read, "though his supporters were far from being the majority, no administration could rule the municipality without their participation, so that they, Sturzo's men, were really the masters of the situation and could impose whatever conditions they wished."

What a familiar ring those words have! And, further resembling the Antislavery Leaguers, Don Sturzo necessarily drew very considerable support from religion, from the fact of his being a good and holy man, held in profound reverence by the illiterate and superstitious Sicilian peasantry. (Cardinal Luiddi of Palermo has only quite recently stamped out—at least he thinks he has—the black magic and wizardry that were a relic of the Phoenician, Arab, Greek, Roman and Norman pagan faiths which underlie the Christian in Sicily.)

The friend and counselor of all—but especially of the poor and oppressed—alighting this and that grievance on behalf of this and that rural type, Sturzo found little difficulty in being elected Mayor of his native village in 1905. He was then 34, and he remained Mayor until he reached the age of 50, two years ago. In that year, 1920, he was to loom up as a national character in Italy; that he will be known internationally before he is finished is a near certainty. As Mayor he made known the purposes of the party he had in mind, and which is today, willy-nilly, the most important party in Italy and one the end or future course of which few would care to foretell, so bound up has it become with advanced ideas of justice for the laborer and the peasant, with conservative clericalism and with, one might almost aver, the very future of the papacy in its relationship to the Quirinal and the wider Catholic world. Sturzo called into existence a social factor of a magnitude which he can scarcely have foreseen when he enunciated its guiding principle as follows:

"May this party rise up on the basis of community existence which can only be if we combat for municipal liberty against the exaggerated control of the state; if we free our cities from the yoke of, and abuse of power and privilege of, the politicians, and from the intrigue of parliamentary agents who make the city their platform."

Don Sturzo was and remains a passionate champion of decentralization, of communal liberty, home rule and of the autonomy even of the smallest towns. That way and that only did he see the path to success, to the foundation of a giant party based well and truly upon the Catholic Church of Rome. "Get at the parish priests individually," was his principle. Make them the agents of the party—tens of thousands of them dotted up and down the country. Make of these priests political soldiers. This Don Sturzo has now done, although by no means all Italian churchmen adhere to his radical ideas. (Cardinal Bogliani, Archbishop of Genoa, one of the leading antagonists of Sturzoism, was compelled to retire not long ago, Pope Benedict XV. contenting himself with a diplomatic note of regret at his exit.)

The effect of Sturzo's propaganda left no further room for doubt at the general election of last year when the Popular Catholic party, the child of his bosom, entered the Roman Parliament with the astonishing number of more than 100 Deputies, drawn from all parts of Italy. While discreetly refraining from all official sanction of the new party, the Vatican was well known at the time to have been in no small measure responsible for its tremendous strength, and Pope Benedict have been a staunch admirer of its Sicilian organizer. It would never have done for his holiness to have admitted the fact, either in the spoken word or in his organ, the Osservatore Romano, but certain things, "cannot be denied." And the contentment of his late holiness with the success of Sturzo and the resultant springing to life of a great Catholic political party in the state, though running counter to the historic policy of separation laid down by Pius IX., is one of those things "which cannot be denied."

Sturzo was on everybody's lips during the recent simultaneous selection of a Pope and of a Premier. That he had much to do with the raising of Cardinal Ratti to the papacy is open to doubt; indeed, it has been hinted that the College of Cardinals, rather doubtful of the effects that Sturzoism might have on the Italian State Constitution, elected a Prince of the Church who was not a great admirer of the Sicilian priest and one whom they thought unlikely to encourage him.

On the other hand, Sturzo dominated the political crisis. His veto on Giolitti, who that veteran came up for the premiership, is now famous. When Ponomi, after his first resignation, was made to present himself again before the Chamber, he first called in Don Sturzo and read the latter his speech in order to know what the Sicilian priest thought of it. The veto on Giolitti, who had ruled the Italian Chamber for a generation, means nothing else than that Don Sturzo is now the deus ex machina of that institution. Finally, we are told, and in view of the number of Sturzo men in the new Facta Cabinet there seems small reason to doubt the fact, that he checked up Signor Facta's suggestions as to the personnel of the new Cabinet over the telephone.

In other words, Don Sturzo was the unseen hand forming the new Italian Ministry, the hosts of the nations of the world at Genoa.

Message in Bottle Delivered After 50 Years
LACED on an iceberg on the coast of Franz Josef Land in the Arctic nearly 50 years ago by the Austrian expedition which discovered that territory, a bottle containing a message in the handwriting of the leader, Karl Weyprecht, has just reached Vienna.

After being imprisoned in the ice two years, Weyprecht decided that the ship, Admiral Tegetthoff, must be abandoned, and before the party set out on their hazardous journey in three small boats this bottle and its message, addressed to the Austrian Government, was placed on a berg, so that if the party perished news of their fate might possibly reach Austria. The bottle was found last year on the coast of Nova Zembla by a Norwegian exploring party and has now been sent to the president of the Austrian Geographic Society.

Only one survivor of the party remains alive, Vice Admiral Brosch, who resides at Graz. He states that the commander and other officers made four copies of the letter, which were each signed by Weyprecht. They were placed in separate bottles and on different bergs.

Holland To Pour The Zuyder Sea Back Into

Six hundred years ago, the North Sea broke through the dunes; now the task of reclaiming inundated region with dike and pump begins—About 2000 fishermen, who believed they could hear the chimes of submerged churches, must turn farmers or move to the coast—Some 400,000 acres of agricultural land will be added to kingdom of Netherlands and probably will be organized into a new province—Ancient villages, once famous ports, which may benefit by becoming inland towns

By E. VAN LIER RIBBINK.

A NEW province is being won for Holland, but not by the sword. In one of the most interesting and important undertakings which a nation ever started, more than 400,000 acres of fertile soil will be added to that crowded country.

It is the reclamation of the land now covered by the Zuyder Zee, through the construction of great dikes between the Zuyder Zee and the North Sea, and the pumping out of the water which for some 600 years has covered about one-tenth of the total area of the kingdom.

A message from Holland in November, 1920, announced that the Island of Wieringen had been made headquarters for the Zuyder Zee project and that after many years of discussion the actual construction work had begun. In March of last year it was reported that, owing to the general financial situation, the Zuyder Zee expenditures were causing some uneasiness and that the work might be spread over a larger number of years than was planned at first.

In olden times, when English sea captains returned to port and were asked what news they brought with them, the factious reply would be that "The Dutch have taken Holland." A true word spoken in jest, or so it seemed, when the Dutch Parliament voted funds for driving the ocean out of its noted inland sea.

In ancient times the Zuyder Zee did not exist. When the Roman legions came to the "Island of the Batavians," as Holland was known in those days, a small lake existed in the center of the country. True, the whole country was but a half-submerged swamp, being the alluvial deposits of the Rivers Rhine, Meuse, and Scheldt, but already it had certain definite boundaries, and the ocean did not penetrate nearly as far inland as at present.

Of this period, John Lothrop Motley has written in his "Rise of the Dutch Republic":

"This inundated by mighty rivers, quaking beneath the level of the ocean, belted about by hirsute forests, this low land, neither land, 'hollow land,' or Holland, seemed hardly deserving the arms of the all-accomplished Roman."

Yet, foreign tyranny from the earliest ages has coveted this meager territory as lustfully as it has sought to wrest from their native possessors those lands with the fatal gift of beauty for their dower; while the genius of liberty has inspired as noble a resistance to oppression here as it ever aroused in Grecian or Italian breasts.

The lake formerly in the middle of Holland was called "Lake Flevo." To the north of this lake was a low-lying country stretching for many miles to the shore line of the North Sea. This land, lying between the lake and the ocean, was considered the most fertile in all Holland. During the early Middle Ages it supported a large population, and possessed several fine towns and prosperous villages. Like other low-lying parts of Holland, it had a fine system of canals, which constituted not only waterways for commerce, but also provided drainage for the water from the higher lands to the east and the west.

The region was blessed with numerous fine old Gothic churches, each with its own "vartilen" or musical bells, and the old chroniclers speak of the music of these church bells, as they tolled out their clear notes across the "nether land," one tower taking up the burden of song from the next.

In the cities lived prosperous burghers and the great guilds held their sway, and treated on terms of equality with the lords of the great castles.

This region was then the most advanced and civilized in all Europe, and here it was that civic freedom had already been achieved while "good" King John of England was yet pulling the teeth of his subjects to extort money from them, and while the Princes and Lords of other lands dealt with their subjects as they did with their cattle.

Then came the deluge! In one fatal night the waters of the North Sea banked high against the dunes to the north, which formed the only defense of the low lands against the ocean. They broke, and the church bells carried the dread message to the people that the North Sea was upon them.

Their message, before they were still, was "Save yourselves if you can!" and the chroniclers tell of the wild rush in those dark hours when the people fled before the waves, vainly attempting to reach higher land.

When day broke, the stormy waters of the North Sea had swept over the land, effecting a junction with the placid waters of Lake Flevo, and the latter had turned salt. Here and there, the spire of a church tower still showed above the expanse of water, and wreckage of all kinds floated on the surface.

One of the stories handed down through the generations tells how the watchers on a high dike saw drifting on the waters an object which they found to be a child's cradle. On top of this cradle, the story says, was a black cat, which jumped from side to side, trying to make the cradle keep its equilibrium amidst the waves. And when the watchers drew the cradle on the dry land they found in it a baby girl peacefully sleeping.

This may be but another version of the child Moses, the reeds and Pharaoh's daughter, but the dike where the cradle is supposed to have landed is known to this day as the "Kinder Dyk"—the child's dike.

Thus came into being the Zuyder Zee, meaning the Southern Sea, in contradistinction to the North Sea. And for six centuries this sea was threatened by great fleets of ships making their way from the port of Amsterdam to the Dutch colonies in all parts of the world—to New Amsterdam in America, to Batavia, to Brazil, to the Cape of Good Hope, and elsewhere.

For 600 years, also, the Zuyder Zee has been the home of important fisheries, and to this day thousands of fishermen earn their daily bread on it.

But a sea it shall be no longer the Dutch people have decided. Huge dikes are now being built to the northward to shut off the Zuyder Zee from its junction with the North Sea, and on these dikes tremendous steam pumps are being installed, whose task it will be to pump the water out of the Zuyder Zee into canals, whence it will drain off to the North Sea.

The construction of these dikes is one of the greatest works of the kind ever undertaken, and doubts were expressed as to their ability to weather the terrific storms which frequently sweep Northwestern Holland. But the experts who have persuaded the Dutch Parliament to commence the work are confident that they can "throw a wall before the ocean's foot," as Queen Wilhelmina characterized the project in her address to Parliament.

It is calculated that the land which will be reclaimed under the project will add an entire new province to the territory of Holland, so that the country will have 12 provinces instead of 11, as at present.

Three islands within the Zuyder Zee will become part of the mainland once more, after having existed in their present isolated state for six centuries.

The Second Chamber of Parliament sanctioned a preliminary budget of 30,000,000 guilders for the initial work, such as the building of the dikes and the installation of pumps. But many other expenses will be incurred, including a special fund for the compensation of about 2000 fishermen, whose means of livelihood will be taken away when the Zuyder Zee once again becomes dry land. Several thriving ports, such as the ancient cities of Hoorn, Enkhuisen, Muiden and Stavoren, will become inland cities.

Fishermen on the Zuyder Zee are a superstitious lot, which is not to be wondered at, seeing that they sail their vessels over waters which cover many a "dead city." Numerous legends have sprung up, and fishermen believe that, in some weather, they can hear the church bells of sunken cities tolling beneath the waves of the Zuyder Zee. At the seaside resort of Muiderberg, at low water, the slate slabs of an old cemetery were recently revealed, and near the port of Enkhuisen a very low old disclosed part of a cabled house.

It is certain also that many valuable finds will be made as soon as the level of the Zuyder Zee is appreciably reduced by the pumping, and antiquaries are ready to rejoice over the prospect. Treasure hunters, too, will become active, for the great flood came in the days of massive gold and silver plate.

When the "drying-up" process is completed and the Zuyder Zee has ceased to exist, the newly made land will be sold by the Government in farm lots. The sites will be laid out as nearly as possible just where the ancient cities stood.

There is no doubt about the fertility of this land, which is to be transformed into farm land, meadows, and townships. The Government has already samples taken of the submarine soil and these have been found to consist of a desirable mixture of fertile clay and sands.

Canals will be constructed diagonally across the reclaimed land, to provide a proper drainage. These canals will be linked up with the remainder of Holland's famous system of waterways. Opinions are divided as to the name to be bestowed on the new province, "Zuyder Zee Province" and "Flevo Province" being the most popular. It is expected that the work will last about 30 years.

Its unique origin explains the shallowness of the Zuyder Zee, especially of the outer portion, where extensive sand and mud flats are exposed at low tide. The average depth of the inner portion is but 12 feet, and the maximum 20 feet, rendering navigation perilous matter for any but small fishing craft.

The drifting banks of sand, by blocking up the entrances and important channels, contributed to the decay of cities once famous maritime centers. The other cause was the use of larger and larger vessels of the world's commerce. The shallow waters of the Zuyder Zee were not suitable for such ships.

Among the "Dead Cities of the Zuyder Zee," as they are commonly called, Hoorn is noted for its remains of the old domestic architecture. With a population in the fourteenth century of 25,000 people, it has less than 10,000, and its 10 churches to two. Today the former center of commerce is noted for its cheese business in butter, also.

But Hoorn has a proud past. In a naval war between the States of Holland and the States of Friesland, a fleet under the command of Admiral Tromp, in his exultation, fastened mast of his flagship, as a sign of the sea clear of the enemy or intent of Van Tromp's ships had been a hundred years before the fish was an active agent in crippling which then had the most formidable Hoorn and its neighbors, Enkhuisen, sent out a fleet which, in 1573, took the Count of Count's flagship, the Inquisition, and lashed themselves together and for nearly the whole day, was held a prisoner at Hoorn for silver-gilt drinking cup is pressed.

About 12 miles away is Enkhuisen, "deadest" of all the "Dead Cities." But this is merely in comparison to the most important town in Holland, a thousand ships, including 140 boats in the herring fishery, a fine harbor and widespread coast dealt kindly with Enkhuisen.

Now, says a recent visitor, with sand, the population reduced to a quarter of its former number, its houses ruined and abandoned, and scattered. The one sole sign is that of having been the birthplace of the great animal painter and etcher, Pieter Aertsen. Then there is the ancient town of Enkhuisen, which became important village of melancholy appearance at one end of a dike proposed other end at Stavoren in Friesland.

has less than 10,000, and its 19 churches have dwindled to two. Today the former center of a large foreign commerce is noted for its cheeses and does a large business in butter, also.

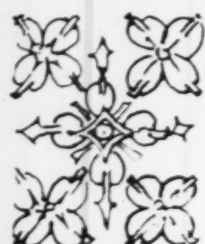

But Hoorn has a proud past. In 1672, during the naval war between the States of Holland and England, a fleet under the command of Admirals Van Tromp and De Ruyter fought with an English fleet, com- manded by Admiral Blake, near the Goodwins. After a stubborn fight, in which Blake was wounded, two of the ships taken and three more sunk or burned, the re- mainder of the British retreated to the Thames. Van Tromp, in his exultation, fastened a broom to the top- mast of his flagship, as a sign either that he had swept the sea clear of the enemy or intended to do so. Some of Van Tromp's ships had been furnished by Hoorn. A hundred years before the fight with Blake, Hoorn was an active agent in crippling the power of Spain, which then had the most formidable navy in the world.

Hoorn and its neighbors, Enkhuizen and Monnickendam, sent out a fleet which, in 1575, defeated the Span- ish fleet and took the Count of Bossu prisoner. The Count's flagship, the Inquisition, and two of the Hoorn ships lashed themselves together and fought hand-to-hand for nearly the whole day. Afterwards the Count was held a prisoner at Hoorn for three years, and his silver-gilt drinking cup is preserved in the Guild- hall.

About 12 miles away is Enkhuizen, usually called the "Deadest" of all the "Dead Cities of the Zuyder Zee." But this is merely in comparison with its past. Once the most important town in Holland, with 60,000 in- habitants, a thousand ships, including 20 men of war and 160 boats in the herring fisheries, a large arsenal, a fine harbor and widespread commerce, time has not dealt kindly with Enkhuizen.

"Now," says a recent visitor, "the harbor is choked with sand, the population reduced to 5,000; one of its ancient gates is at a quarter of an hour's distance from the first houses in the town, its streets are grass- grown, its houses ruined and abandoned, its people poor and scattered. The one sole glory that remains to it is that of having been the birthplace of Paul Potter, a great animal painter and etcher."

Then there is the ancient town of Medemblik, the capital of the Province of North Holland before Hoorn and Enkhuizen became important cities, now a small village of melancholy appearance. It was to have been at one end of a dike proposed many years ago, the other end at Stavoren in Friesland.

Stavoren, ancient capital and residence of the King of Frisia, Rome's indomitable rebel, a great city before Amsterdam existed, is classed by travelers as not only dead but buried. Now it is a small, sparsely village, surrounded by great bastions and marshes. An enor- mous sandbar blocks the way to its harbor, and the place which was famous throughout all Europe in the thirteenth century is almost a memory. Will its ancient glories when a seaport be revived when it becomes an inland town?

Then, back in the province of North Holland, is Monnickendam, formerly a flourishing city which as- sisted Hoorn and Enkhuizen in defeating the Spanish Admiral, Bossu, and took from him as a trophy his collar of the Golden Fleece. Enkhuizen has Bossu's sword. Monnickendam now is a village of 2,000 inha- bitants, mostly engaged in fishing. Not far away is Edam, from which a famous cheese with the red rind takes its name, and with a port on the Zuyder Zee.

About half way between Edam and Amsterdam, and not far from the shore of the Zuyder Zee, is the vil- lage of Broek, once renowned for curious reasons, namely, the ludicrously ornate appearance of its houses and gardens, and the passion of its inhabitants for cleanliness. Even the rest of Holland used to laugh at Broek, and sometimes travelers had difficulty in getting directions to the place. Says one visitor:

"Imagine a pasteboard village made by a boy 8 years old, a city made for the show window of a Nu- remburg toy shop, a village constructed by a ballet master after the drawing on a Chinese fan, a collec- tion of barracks of wealthy mountebanks, a group of houses made for the scenes of a puppet theater, the fancy of an Oriental drunk with opium, something which makes you think of Japan, India, Tartary and Switzerland all at once, with a touch of Pompadour rococo, and something of the constructions in sugar that one sees in a confectioner's window, a mixture of the barbaric, the pretty, the presumptuous, the in- genious and the silly which, while it offends good taste, provokes at the same time a good-natured laugh; imagine, in short, the most childish extravaganzas to which the name of village can be given, and you will have a faint idea of Broek."

The houses are mostly of wood and one story in height, and all of them surrounded by small gardens, separated from the streets by sky-blue balustrades with wooden apples and oranges on top of the pales. The streets are narrow and paved with tiny bricks of vari- ous colors, set edgewise and combined in different de- signs, so that the streets seem to be carpeted with Cashmere shawls. The gingerbread houses, with roofs of painted tiles and windows of red and blue glass, are painted in various colors, such as rose, black, gray, purple, blue and grass-green. Flags, ribbons, gilding and all manner of ornamentation abound.

The inhabitants always denied that there had ever been a rising of the populace there, because visitors threw some cherry pits in the street, but admitted that any citizen who saw a leaf fall upon the pavement would go outside, pick up the leaf and throw it in the canal. That inhabitants walked 500 paces outside the village to clean their shoes, or that boys were paid to blow the dust out of the cracks of the pavement, was denied. But shoes always were taken off at the door, animals were forbidden to pass through the village and an ordinance once forbade the smoking of a pipe in the village unless it had a cover, to prevent scattering the ashes.

One of the most interesting results of the reclamation of the Zuyder Zee's bottom will be to end the isolation of the Island of Marken, with about 1,000 inha- bitants. They have had practically no intercourse with the mainland, and their customs and dress are those of 600 years ago.

Zita, Who Won and Lost a Throne

Tragic rise and fall of the daughter of impoverished royalty, who married the ruler of Europe's proudest empire and shared with him the ignominy of exile—Aided him in his final and disastrous effort to re-establish his kingdom and saw him die hated of many nations

IT HAS not escaped the romantic fancy of the world that the exiled and now widowed Zita, ex-Empress of Austria-Hungary, is an august and enchanting figure. Four years ago she was the young and beautiful consort of the imperial Hapsburg, Charles; today she is still young and beautiful, but with six small children and one unborn, a fugitive, husbandless and in want. These are not circumstances to escape the observation of sentimental mankind. But of all those who have pitied the regal and unfortunate Zita, there are few who have considered in what a matchless degree of color and fact she personifies the royal disinherited. Zita was born a dispossessed Princess, daughter of a dispossessed royal father and a dispossessed royal mother—that is, her father was the late Duke Robert of Bourbon-Parma, last of the sovereign Dukes of Parma, and her mother a Princess of the formerly regnant Braganza house of Portugal. Now that is a romantic genealogy.

The Dukedom of Parma was one of those brilliant little Italian principalities which make the history of Northern Italy an intricate patchwork of violent colors. It was a city state and fell under the leadership of a powerful line of Dukes of the ancient Farnese family. The occasional reader of history will remember the famous Alexander Farnese, Duke of Parma, who conquered the Netherlands for Philip II. Popes and Captains alike descended from that capable lineage, but finally the Farnesi decayed and no longer ruled in Parma. In the eighteenth century, when Italy was divided up fantastically between Austria, France and Spain, the Duchy of Parma was given to a younger son of Philip V of Spain. Now, Philip V was a Bourbon, a grandson of Louis XIV, whom that powerful King had placed on the Spanish throne, and so we have the Bourbon family reigning in Parma. In the succeeding history of the Parma Bourbons dispossession prevails as a constant motif.

With the French Revolution and the Napoleonic conquests the then reigning Duke of Parma was deposed, and the duchy became at first a republic and then a part of Napoleon's empire. When the Bourbons were restored in France the Parma Bourbons were not at first returned to their dukedom. Parma was given as a principality to Marie Louise, daughter of the Austrian Emperor and wife of Napoleon. The Duke of Bourbon-Parma was made King of Etruria, but upon the death of Marie Louise he lost his kingship and became Duke of Parma once more.

He was the great-grandfather of the present ex-Empress Zita and was an extraordinary fellow. At first he went in for extreme liberalism, and then reacted to the bitterest despotism. He interested himself in theology and became a Protestant. Then he became a Catholic again. Finally his extravagances of opinion and action became such that all Europe laughed at him. Princess Zita was born at Pianore in the Italian Province of Lucca. Her girlhood was passed in a convent at Zangher and later with the French nuns in the Ryde Abbey, Isle of Wight. Her sister, Princess Adelaide, is today a nun in the Ryde Abbey. Princess Zita was fresh from the convent when she went to live with her mother, the former Princess of Braganza, in a castle in Austria. Now, shortly afterward, the Archduke Charles of Austria was impelled by decorous courtesy to pay a formal call on the Dowager Duchess of Parma.

He was then a young man placed quite curiously. He was second in line to succeed the Emperor Francis Joseph on the Austrian throne, and that meant at the same time little and much. The heir, the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, afterward murdered at Sarajevo, seemed likely to be a fixture for a long time as heir and later as Emperor, but he had made a morganatic marriage and his children were ineligible to succeed to the throne. This meant that while the young Archduke Charles was only a slight prospect as a future Emperor, the succession to the crown would descend through him. Thus his choice of a wife was an important matter and one to be regulated as carefully as that of a Crown Prince. When the Archduke Charles paid his ceremonial visit to the Dowager Duchess of Bourbon-Parma he, quite inevitably, met the young Princess Zita. He fell in love with Zita and she with him.

They were both of amiable and romantic dispositions. His Hapsburg family, the most rigidly aristocratic in Europe, had nevertheless been marked by a succession of wild marriages for love; the strain was in the blood and in tradition. Charles courted Zita with ardent inclination. As for herself, when she was a young girl in the convent, she had chosen this motto for herself: "More for you than for me." She regarded life as an affair of sentimental sacrifice; and at the wooing of the handsome young Archduke, her gentle philosophies crystallized into a resolve to devote her life to the service of the pleasant lover. The two determined eagerly upon marriage.

It might be supposed that they would have encountered few obstacles. True, it was a love match, but then Charles might have been expected, according to Hapsburg tradition, to have fallen in love with an actress or some unknown and unroyal Countess. Zita was of most distinguished kingly ancestry. Her father had been a sovereign and a Bourbon; her mother was a Braganza. The young Princess should have made a fit mate for a Hapsburg Prince, especially with her many acknowledged personal merits. However, it was just before the war and German influences were dominant in Austrian governmental circles. Zita was an Italian, and Italy was even then regarded by Germany as a probable enemy. The Bourbon-Parma family was, of course, of French origin, and was known to hold French sympathies, as was proved later when in the Great War Zita's brothers served in the Belgian army. And further, the Dowager Duchess of Parma was notably anti-German. Thus, the entire German influence at Vienna was thrown violently against the proposed marriage of Charles and Zita, and affairs looked very dark for the young couple.

A battle of intrigue ensued. The valiant old Duchess made a subtle and persistent fight for the marriage of her daughter and the Archduke, which would be quite a fine alliance for the Bourbon-Parma clan. She enlisted her friends to argue for the match at court, made her own solicitations to the Emperor, and heartened Charles in his determination to marry Zita. The young Archduke needed no heartening. He was utterly in love. The turning point of the fight came with the winning of the heir-apparent, the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, who was a partisan of the Germans and greatly opposed to the match. He was won over by courteous attentions to his wife, who, as a morganatic spouse, held a position of small honor. Charles and Zita showered attention upon the unfortunate lady, who was afterward to be murdered at Sarajevo, and this quite captivated the Archduke Francis Ferdinand. In a little while the Emperor consented to the marriage, and Charles and Zita stood happily at a gorgeous cathedral ceremony. The Princess of the dispossessed Bourbons-Parma had gained the privilege of mothering a successor to the Austrian crown, and she might even one day become Empress. Then came the murder of the Archduke Francis Ferdinand, and Charles and Zita became the heirs of the aged Emperor. Zita would become an Empress.

She and Charles lived the life of an Austrian officer and his wife. Children were born to them, and the young Archduke was seen rolling a baby carriage in the streets of Vienna. The war came and with it more than ever disfavored by the German party, especially as both she and Charles were much influenced by the pro-Ally Duchess of Parma and as her brothers appeared fighting in the Belgian army. The Emperor Francis Joseph died and Charles and Zita became Emperor and Empress of Austria-Hungary. Zita became Empress of Austria-Hungary. The intrigues against Zita increased. Charles' famous letter to his brother Sixtus, in which he expressed the opinion that France had a just claim to Alsace-Lorraine, increased the hatred of the German faction. Evil stories were circulated about her. Then the downfall of the Austrian monarchy, and Charles and Zita and their children were driven into exile.

Zita, born a dethroned Princess and now dethroned again, took her misfortunes with fortitude. She heartened Charles, and encouraged him in his attempts to regain the Hungarian crown. She accompanied him by airplane in his last adventure in Hungary, and went with him in exile to Madeira. The Hapsburg fortune is confiscated and they are in want. She is seen hurrying to Paris, where one of her children has remained and has fallen ill. Her husband contracts pneumonia. She offers her blood to save him. He dies and she is a widow with her small children and in poverty.

After collecting a generous share of the income for a few months you probably would buy a high-priced car—a roadster, certainly. Possibly, also, you would begin to wear loud-speaking garments, with diamonds and things on the outside.

In an Iowa town there lived a young man who invented the $30,000-a-week sandwich and now in Chicago he is collecting regularly a large percentage of the proceeds. He owns no automobile at all, not even a flivver. He wears low-voiced clothing and is not conspicuous on a dark night because of diamond headlights in his shirtfront.

St. Louis friends of Christian K. Nelson of Onawa, Ia., inventor, creator, discoverer or founder of Eskimo Pie, aver that this new-rich young man of 28 has not lost his head; that he is a clean-cut, likable, sensible youth; that he puts on no more airs than he did when he jerked soda and sold plain ice cream and conventional chocolates in a confectionery store, which was not so very long ago.

Young Nelson's fortune is the result of a human-interest idea that occurred to him in the course of his day's work when he was selling confections. He has the advantage of having been trained to think, being a graduate of the University of Nebraska, class of 1916, with the degree of bachelor of arts. After leaving college he became principal of the high school at Theford, Neb., and later taught mathematics and the classics in the high school of Onawa.

In 1918 Nelson entered the military service. Returning home the next year, he went into partnership with a friend in the confectionery business. His father had owned a creamery and ice cream plant at Moorehead, Ia., and the young man had operated the wholesale end of a confectionery business while teaching school early in 1918. So he knew something about the line in which he entered business.

"Sorry," said Nelson, "but we've sold out of that bar just now."

"Well, then, Chris, just give me an ice cream sandwich," said the customer. Chris was about to serve the ice cream sandwich when the customer interrupted him, saying that he would take instead a chocolate bar of a make different from that which was out of stock.

That was where Chris Nelson began to use his college education. He had used it to some extent, to be sure, in teaching others, when he was Prof. C. K. Nelson. Now he proceeded to apply it to his own brain, to do some original thinking himself, to reason out a certain proposition, to wit:

That customer really wanted chocolate, having called for it first and then returned to it after agreeing with himself to compromise on ice cream. (Chocolate, then, was his first choice. His second choice of an ice cream sandwich showed that ice cream ran chocolate a close second.)

"And it was an ice cream sandwich, and not a dish of ice cream that he wanted," mused Chris. "Something that he could eat out of his hand, rather than from a dish or through a straw. Why not a chocolate ice cream sandwich? Why, yes—ice cream and chocolate in combination, similar to a chocolate bar! The ideal confection!"

That was, of course, the germ of a great idea; but how great it was Nelson was unaware. He knew that such a combination would make a popular confection, but not being an advertising genius he had no adequate conception of its commercial possibilities.

"But it's certainly worth trying out," said Chris to himself. "Why, if I can succeed in making a chocolate-ice cream sandwich we'll put it over big in this store—maybe, in time, be able to popularize it in other towns in this neighborhood."

Chris Nelson set to work deliberately on the proposition. His job was to coat a cube of ice cream with chocolate, so that the confection could be held in the hand and eaten; result, the ice cream sandwich de luxe, something new under the sun. But the job was not easy. Nelson knew little about chocolate. Repeated efforts to make the chocolate adhere to the ice cream resulted in complete failures.

"All the same," said Chris to himself, "the thing can be done—it must be done."

And the more he pondered the idea the better he thought of it. His determination to succeed deepened. He told but few persons about his idea, and to those he spoke guardedly. Local ice cream men and those in other parts of Iowa to whom he ventured to suggest the possibility of a workable chocolate coat on ice cream ridiculed the notion.

"What I need," reflected Chris Nelson, "is some man who knows a lot about chocolate."

That man he found, and the quest ended. He was introduced to Russell Stover of the Graham Candy Co. at Omaha, Neb., to whom he unfolded his dream. Stover saw immediately the wide possibilities of the idea. Possessing an expert knowledge of chocolate, it required but one attempt to make the coat stick to the cream and thus complete the sandwich. It was simply a matter of cooking the chocolate to the proper consistency with the proper degree of heat. Nelson had stuck to his idea until the chocolate, at last, stuck to the ice cream.

The next thing was to select a name for the new sandwich. Already there were ice cream sandwiches. To call it some sort of sandwich would not do, lacking novelty. Russell Stover got busy under his thinking cap.

"When we were boys," said Stover, "we liked to go to the cupboard and get a piece of pie and hold it in hand, eating it that way. Let's call this thing a pie."

"Pretty cold pie," suggested Nelson.

"Yes—cold. Say, boy, here's the great idea: Eskimo Pie!"

"Sounds good," assented the Admiral Peary of the frozen pie discovery.

"We'll get it patented and try it on the public," said Stover.

Nelson and Stover formed a partnership and protected their invention or discovery by a series of patents and copyrights, covering both the process of making the "pie" and the name bestowed. Late last fall they tried it on a small part of the public, limited to Des Moines, Ia. Des Moines liked Eskimo Pie and proved it by eating it—best proof of pudding or pie. Then the young firm employed an advertising expert and put on a State-wide Iowa campaign. The realized idea which certain Iowa ice cream men had ridiculed caught on throughout the State.

Chicago was next to be invaded. That was in last December. Cold season, mighty good ice cream time. But the great city was plastered with Eskimo Pie placards, the newspapers carried the advertising, the dealers could not supply the demand for "pies."

The human-interest idea of the Onawa confectionery merchant had caught on—it stuck, like the chocolate to the ice cream. Then began the tremendous merchandising campaign which put the product on sale, with constant demand, all over the country within less than 60 days. Manufacturers of ice cream everywhere were clamoring for licenses to make and sell the new confection. Night and day work was the necessary program at the home office. Today more than 1350 ice cream manufacturers in the United States and Canada are operating under the license granted by the Eskimo Pie proprietors.

Each of these firms pays a royalty to the patentees. Sales of Eskimo Pie are estimated to have run as high as 4,000,000 a day. "It is certain that the 2,000,000 mark has been attained frequently," says an official of the Russell Stover Co., owners of the patent and trade mark. From the same authority comes the information that originally a royalty of 5 cents per dozen was paid and that the royalty at present is 4 cents per dozen. Estimating at an aggregate sale of 2,000,000 a day, it is seen that the royalties would amount to $300,000. The product has a seven-day sale, so that a week's royalties at this figure would total more than $400,000. But it is not claimed that the sales are averaging 2,000,000 a day. The promoters of the proposition state that there have been weeks in which the gross proceeds have reached $500,000. As in all other lines, the sales fluctuate.

Now that the baseball season is open, sales of this novelty are said to be increasing rapidly. "Butcher boys" are tossing Eskimo Pies to perspiring bleachers at a great rate. This is the first summer season of the new confection.

The promoting company is under a large expense, quite naturally, in order to hold its own. Just as soon as Eskimo Pie became popular there was a rash of imitators. The world is measurably full of fellows who live to realize on the original ideas of other fellows. This means that the Nelson and Stover concern must have legal fights to protect the patented cold pie. The first legal action has resulted in a temporary injunction restraining the Sundae Corporation of Milwaukee from licensing manufacturers to make a product put out by that concern because it is held to be an infringement on the Eskimo Pie patent.

You can go into an ice cream parlor or a drug store almost anywhere and find infringements on this frozen sandwich. Chocolate and ice cream sandwiches, wrapped in silver foil, are sold under various names. When a customer asks for Eskimo Pie he may be handed something under another name which the clerk insists is "practically the same thing" or "just as good."

A St. Louis advertising expert who managed the recent campaign which put Eskimo Pie on the general market said the other day:

"All such confections are infringements on the Stover patent, which protects the process of manufacturing the product. As there is but one process, and in the nature of things can be but one process, it follows that the Iowa boy and his partner have cause of action against any manufacturer who puts on the market an ice cream-chocolate sandwich."

A thing on which the owners rely to a large extent is the gratitude of the ice cream industry. "One of the reasons for the phenomenal success of Eskimo Pie," says an official of the company, "was its introduction during the winter season. Stover knew the ice cream business and knew that it is unprofitable during the winter months. This product offered the ice cream manufacturer his first real opportunity to sell ice cream at a profit during these months."

SILVERSHINE

by VINGIE E. ROE

SILVERSHINE lay in his tracks, his weary, bloodshot eyes staring in cold indifference at the closed doors of the cabins. Behind him whimpered and whined his mates—no not his mates, for even that camaraderie of the harness which makes a dog team commonly stick together through cold and curses, underfeeding and ill-treatment, had no part in his heart. It seemed nothing lived in Silvershine's heart but savagery. The rest of the dogs feared him with a wholesome fear that was valuable to their master, since it precluded the fights that so often take place between members of the best teams going.

It was a good team, a very good team, picked and sifted from full 30 dogs that had made it up at times, for it ran a 500-mile journey with deadly regularity and hauled supplies to the tiny store at Linwell's landing, and Jacques Peraux, who owned it, would have none but the best. It had been a brutal sifting, that, for Peraux's hand was heavy and his compassion nil. He was even now inside the warm store where the red stove glowed, stretching his palms to its grateful warmth, his black eyes sparkling, his white teeth shining under his small moustache, while in direct defiance of all laws of custom, his dogs shivered in harness, stiffening from the last exertion of the run. He was the only driver in a radius of a thousand miles who would so have neglected his team.

But who was to say a word to Jacques Peraux concerning this? Jacques Peraux, boring of eye, straight of mouth when the laugh hardened, weighing 210 pounds, without an ounce of fat on his 6 feet 3? No one.

His dogs might freeze in their tracks, might shiver and whine and watch the bright windows of the cabins with pitiously eager eyes, and though this and that one might look at them with pity, yet that was all.

And it was this very thing which proved their supremacy, these gaunt, hard-driven dogs, not care and full feeding which made them good, but the fact that they were good, were the best in all that stretch of frozen country, in spite of their hardships.

"Great Galt!" said Pierre le Blanc, "what would they be, M'sieu, with a full belly?"

The man to whom he spoke, Allen Derwent, who owned the store at Linwell's landing, shook his big blond head and puffed his pipe in silence. But Linda Derwent, big and blonde like her father, calm and very beautiful, came from behind the counter that day and watched them cover the last long slope of snow at a racing gait, and her china-blue eyes clouded.

"I think that Jacques Peraux is a great bully," she said, sharply, "and a worse brute than that splendid silver king which runs in the lead."

So it was that, on that very day when Jacques was warming himself and talking rapidly with a deal of delight in his own rather musical voice, the girl stopped to the rimmed window and looked out on the team. Silvershine had dropped in his tracks, and the rest had followed his example. They were panting from the last dashing sweep up the slope, and their quick breath curled out on the cold air like fairy plumes.

Silvershine had seen Linda Derwent many times before, but suddenly, and for the first time, he lifted his pale eyes that could glow so swiftly, and looked at her face in the window.

Something flashed between them—a vague electric flash.

The girl swung from the window and went out, closing the heavy door behind her. Fearlessly she went straight up to Peraux's leader, bent down, and looked deep in his eyes.

At the closing of the door Peraux sprang and opened it.

He was all laughter, but alert, eager.

"Ma'mselle!" he cried in his big voice. "I advise that you come away—quick. Don't do that," sharply, as the girl made a motion toward the door, "at Angel's Lift he tear off a feenkar for a woman who reach at him!"

Linda straightened up and looked at Peraux.

"Peraux," she said, flatly, "you're the frankest man in the Yukon. These dogs are savage because you are savage."

The man stopped in his tracks, his dark cheeks, flaming.

"So?" he asked. "So?"

Linda did reach the hand, fearlessly, and laid it on Silvershine's broad head. The pale eyes glowed like foxfire for a second, and the master clicked his tongue sharply. But there was something in that firm touch which bore out the message of the eyes through the window, and the great gray husky suffered it in silence. The girl turned and whisked away, and Jacques watched her with a little curl to the lips beneath the small moustache.

"So?" he said, wondering; "she is one beauty, dat of Derwent girl, and she theenk Jacques Peraux ees cruel! Sacrehieu!"

Later, inside the store, the driver watched her with a new and lively interest. She was free of all the little huddle of cabins at Linwell's landing, free of her father's trading store, free of the hearts of most of the men who came and went their long journeys in the snowbound land, for she was very sweet. Her pale-gold hair shone like satin under the coal-oil lamp; her cheeks were roses blooming in her milky skin; her curved red mouth was like a pomegranate. She stood by the roaring stove and listened to the talk of the men, and she knew all the news of the North.

For the first time Peraux really took note of her. There was a girl at Angel's Lift and another at Nugget Flat who rightfully supposed they owned his heart, but that heart was true to nothing.

"By Galt!" he told himself, "she ees one wilcoat! An' those red lips! Peraux, why you nevaire see thees White Rose' beauty before?"

He rose and swung his great body over to where she stood.

When Peraux smiled with those white teeth flashing, women were wont to answer, but Linda Derwent gazed at him with unsmiling eyes.

"Ma'mselle," he said in a low tone, "why you theenk me cruel?"

"Because you are," she said.

Peraux spread expressive hands.

"But not to you."

"No," said the girl, coldly, "you'll never get the chance."

Instantly the smile died on his face, and that cruelty flashed out like a light in the darkness.

"No? Ees that so? Mebbe, Ma'mselle—jus' mebbe, now, some time the chance, she come, an' Peraux prove himself—tender."

He turned and went abruptly away, and with the closing of the door all eyes turned after him.

All eyes save those calm, contemptuous, blue ones under the banded gold hair. Pierre le Blanc looked once at the door and then at Linda, and the black eyes under their jetty lashes, which gave his face such a charm, were warm with adoration.

Before first dawn next day Peraux was gone on this backward trail, with never a customary rest for the weary team—and that was Peraux's way. He was iron—steel—himself, and all that ran with him must be of the same metal. But in the dark and the snow, while he rode on the empty sledge or ran beside the kee-pole, his active mind was filled with the face of the girl at Linwell's landing, and the devil of resentment bit at his vanity. For Peraux was a vandal among women.

At the next trip down he brought her a black-fox skin, worth a little fortune, but she pushed it away.

"Give it to that girl at Angel's Lift, who is dying of a broken heart, they say, Peraux," she told him.

At that Peraux's eyes flamed, and he dashed the fine skin furiously into a corner.

At the door his dogs lay crouched on the snow, waiting, patient, sullenly obedient.

He flung out, and as he passed he struck down savagely with his heel. It landed in the side of Silvershine, and the dog rose ominously on his four feet spread apart. His head dropped low and he regarded the man with such hatred that slavers ran from his lips, shoving back from his fangs. Linda Derwent saw through the door the little play, and she ran swiftly out.

"You—you cowardly whelp!" she cried. "I wish I were a man!"

The trapper turned.

"Yes?" he drawled, "an' what would you do, Ma'mselle?"

"I'd whip you to a standstill or be whipped myself!" she said.

Once more she put a hand on the savage head, heedless of the danger—and so they stood, the woman and the dog, allied against him, pale-yellow eyes and blue ones flashing with hatred for him—and Jacques Peraux went quite mad with rage.

He lifted his lips and swayed on his feet, hands on his belted hips.

"Some day, Ma'mselle," he said, heavily, "I make that whipping myself. A man's dog—an' hees woman—he mus' conquer."

The girl deliberately spat upon the snow, turned and went indoors, haughty with contempt. And that was not a wise action.

The long days drew away, one like the other, there in the lone land on the far fringe of civilization. Trappers came to the log store at the landing, gossiped of a thousand miles of wilderness, and rushed away again into the white dimness.

Linda Derwent quivered royally in her tiny lost world, leaned her elbows on her father's counters and smiled at this one and that one. And so it came as the winter passed that Pierre le Blanc came more and more often to the landing from his cabin in White Stone Gulch, for he fancied that he saw in the blue eyes of the girl a certain softness.

She knew it was there, but she was not minded to betray its presence precipitately. At what he hoped he saw Pierre's dark face would grow pale as ashes and his slim hand trembled on the counter.

"Ma'mselle," he stammered once, and at her cool, "Eh, M'sieu?" how could he tell her he thought—dreamed—fancied he saw love in her face? He, the humble trapper.

But Jacques Peraux, lounging by the warm stove on his nights in—Jacques Peraux, wisest of any there in the ways of women, knew that the big blonde beauty had smiles in her heart for the slim youth.

The knowledge was fire to tow, fuel to the flame of his wounded vanity. The light in his cruel face grew with each trip and his temper became unspeakable.

The dogs, those faithful creatures of hardship, felt the weight of his fury. Old Loopo took it with patient eyes, cowering. Poor Little Feet whimpered under the frequent lash, begging pitiously, while Clinker and Siska Bob fought back to the limit of daring—and paid for their courage with broken flesh and ruined tempers.

But Silvershine, the giant leader, rose on his four feet spread apart, and with head hung low between his shoulders defied him. This defiance maddened Peraux, for it reminded him of that first day at Linwell's landing when the girl and the dog had faced him together with yellow eyes and blue eyes shining with an identical light. That light had been contempt. Now he looked in his pack for the gun he carried there, intending to shoot the husky.

"I can keel heem," he muttered, "but dat's not conquering. No, I wait. A man's dog—an' hees woman."

And he put the gun away.

And one night along about that time Linda Derwent stood in the cold starlight at the store's corner and spoke with Pierre le Blanc.

The youth was trembling again and his golden voice was husked with passion and fear of his temerity.

"Ma'mselle," he said, haltingly, "the starlight—it sets loose the guarded tongue. Oh, Ma'mselle—I—"

"Yes?"

The girl had played long enough. She reached out a soft white hand and laid it on Pierre's shoulder.

"Speak, Pierre," she whispered, lowly. "Speak—I am listening."

With a gasp the youth caught the hand and pressed it to his heart, thundering beneath his plaided coat.

"I cannot," he said, thickly. "Do you—not know—my beloved?"

Linda's eyes were blue as summer seas in the darkness as she smiled at him, and Pierre le Blanc murmured a little prayer of thanksgiving to le bon Dieu.

as he folded her to that heart which was hers unalterably, forever.

So Linda stopped her playing and began to sew wonderful long seams in the privacy of her own room behind her father's store, and Pierre sang all day about the cabin in White Stone Gulch. There must be new chairs fashioned by his own hand, and a low table set beneath a looking glass, where a fair face under banded gold hair might reflect its beauty. The finest of his furs must be made into priceless rugs for the rough floors, looks ordered for the very first dog train in the spring.

Father Ambrose, the good little priest, would come with the early thaw and then—Pierre could scarcely believe his own great fortune and must needs go down again to Linwell's landing to make sure once more from Linda's white-red lips.

All the small world of the landing and its frequenters knew the glorious secret, and on his next trip in it reached the ears of Jacques Peraux. He said nothing when he heard it from Allen Derwent in the lighted store that night, but his black eyes narrowed.

He bowed before Linda, wishing her happiness, in his rich voice, which was not somehow, sincere, and the girl frowned, accepting.

But out in the white wastes next day he scowled at Silvershine and shook a doubtful fist, muttering:

"Name of a name!" he said, "she sees not for dat small Pierre. Only me—Jacques Peraux—beeg an' strong."

So he made his journey, thinking much. And the fruit of this thought became a plan—a devilish plan.

The long seams were near done under Linda's skilled hands, and Father Ambrose would be in before many moons, when Opportunity sidled along and whispered to Peraux.

Out on Honda's Head there was a woman in a trapper's cabin, a quarter-breed, but still a woman, who was ill of a great sickness. The trapper loved her very much, and on a bitter day he intervened Peraux 20 miles from the cabin and sent word to the landing.

"My woman—I think she goin' die!" he cried tragically, "an' she say, so patient. Eef I only had a woman, Josef—a woman to talk to. Another woman—who would understand!" You there, M'sieu, a woman—some woman—from Leenwell landing—she come for comfort my Marie?"

"Write it," said Peraux, quickly.

And so he wrote in cramped French a pitiful message to some woman—any woman—at Linwell's landing, done with a stump of pencil on a sheet of Peraux's notebook.

And what woman at the landing was to see the message?

Linda Derwent, of course, with her tender heart and her capable hands. Peraux was clever, for he gave the sheet to the trader himself and left without suggestion.

Three days later Linda drew up at the mound of frozen snow, with its cut entrance and its wisp of smoke that was the cabin on Honda's Head, driven by Derwent himself. The girl stooped over the thin woman in the bed, looked her over carefully, and told her firmly in French that she was not going to die, and the trader slapped a hearty hand on the trapper's drooping shoulder, while he set out from his pack a change of food and some good liquor.

Then Derwent rushed away, and Linda took hold with a strong hand. She made the man dig more snow away from the small windows, cooked food and fed the sick woman like a martinet. And life followed in her wake, for the woman took new hope. The man had no words for his humble gratitude, but one evening he turned away from his wife's fur-covered chair—for Marie was sitting up then—and looked at Linda with adoring dark eyes in which tears glittered.

"Ma'amsele," he choked, "Ma'amsele—I would say—would tell you—she sees my heart an' my life, an' you have give them both back to me!"

And he dropped clumsily to his knees, and snatching the girl's hand laid it to his lips. Linda smiled and her blue eyes were very soft.

And then came the day when Jacques Peraux drove up to the cabin with a flourish of whip. He brought word from Linwell's landing that, if Josef and Marie could spare her now, the trader would have his daughter home, and that she was to come with Peraux, as two of Derwent's dogs had developed a malady which made them unfit for travel. They would make the trip in two days, and he would turn aside to the cabin of an Indian, who had a wife and five children, for the one night's stop. If Ma'amsele would come—but please make ready quickly, for it was a long trail to the Indian's cabin.

The girl felt the insincerity in Peraux, but her task here was well finished and she was eager for home and Pierre.

She was a brave person, this big, good girl, so she whipped herself in her furs, kissed Marie and took her seat on Peraux's sledges.

She had little to say to Peraux, running at the goose-pole, but watched the dogs. She noted their lean fitness and strength and keenness in every action. They were intelligent machines that worked for the human behind her, because he had them conquered. At this thought she mentally corrected herself one evening.

There was something about Silvershine, running far out in the lead, that was a subtle contradiction.

He was a fighter, that huge dog she felt, even though he was always so contained. Never once had she seen him resent Peraux's brutal treatment, yet always she felt that resentment was there in the heart beneath that shaggy coat.

Once Peraux stopped the team to fix a loosened strap, and Silvershine looked back across his shoulder.

The woman on the sledge smiled and raised a mitted hand, and the husky pointed his sharp ears. That was all, but the same electric flash passed between them that had passed that first day when Linda stood at the window of her father's store.

They made the 20 miles back to Peraux's well-packed trail almost in silence. Once he had leaned down with a hand laid lightly on her shoulder under its heavy furs, and Linda had looked up, frowning.

"The cold—you are of sufficient comfort, Ma'amsele," he asked.

"Very comfortable, thank you," the girl answered, shortly. So they ran on, swiftly, lightly, and she felt to wondering at the speed and endurance of both the man and the dogs.

Their fame was well founded. The snow had begun to fall when they reached the true trail, and as they swung into it, Linda leaned forward with a sharp word.

"Peraux," she said, "stop! You are turning the wrong way! Where are your wits? The landing is south."

"Your pardon, Ma'amsele," said Peraux, respectfully, "but the Indian's cabin lies two miles back an' to the west."

True, in her thoughts of home and Pierre she had forgotten that she had a night to spend before she reached her father's roof.

The team hesitated, all but stopped, for the leader swung away to the south, according to his duty, and with a whispered oath Peraux unfurled that bitter whip and sent it whirling forward. The tiny lash, un-speakably sharp, took the tip of Silvershine's left ear, and at the spurt of blood that followed Linda knew, with deep anger, why those pointed ears were fringed and ragged.

Without a yelp or a cringe the splendid animal whirled in his track, fairly jerking his team with him, and swung directly away from the direction where lay their usual goal.

It was pretty work, she thought—pretty work. Peraux was nothing if not master of his dogs. And she thought of that look she had caught in the leader's eyes twice now—that look of common understanding with herself, a common hatred.

She settled low under her furs and watched the white curtain becoming thicker over the landscape.

It was filling the trail already—how soon and completely it would cover all trace of their journey. At that

And then, when she was cramped and weary from long sitting in the narrow sledges, the dogs stopped so suddenly that she nodded forward with the arrested impetus.

"At last," said Peraux from somewhere in the darkness behind, "we arrive, Ma'amsele."

She looked sharply around, but there was no light anywhere.

The Canuck came and touched her shoulder. "Come," he said, "you first. The dogs can wait."

He loosened the robes about her and deliberately picked her up in his arms.

"I can walk," she said, decisively, "put me down, Peraux."

But he went forward through the snow, and she felt the great strength of his body as he moved. He put out a hand and she heard it touch a surface. He raised a latch, opened a door, and stepped inside. The still numbness of sudden, illuminating fear flooded the girl. She knew instinctively, even before he set her down and lighted a candle on a table, that the cabin was empty.

When the man by the table straightened up and looked at her, smiling beneath his small mustache, he met two blue eyes blazing at him in the flickering candle light with such rage and understanding that any explanation was unnecessary.

"So," he said, "a man's dog—an' bees woman—Ma'amsele—he mus' conquer. But you—to you sees Peraux tender. Jus' so, he pleas' to remove your wraps, while I mak' the fire."

The girl did not speak, and Peraux suited the action to the word, and soon a great blaze was roaring comfortably in the cavernous mouth. When he turned and found that she had not complied he came and took her furs masterfully from her. Linda did not protest. She was her father's daughter, of a keen brain, a quick and calm courage, and she was searching desperately among her own resources for help. She sat down quietly in one of the rude chairs and stared in seeming stupor at Peraux about his tasks. He put snow in a pot upon a crane, set a spider near to heat, and went outside.

She heard him undressing the weary dogs, heard them going into a shed beside the cabin—a lean-to, apparently, for the sounds of their scratching against the logs as they crowded in were distinctly audible. He must have thrown them fish, for she heard them snatch and crunch amid such savage snarls as would have brought the heart in the throat of one unaccustomed to the wild wolf-dogs of the country.

Then Peraux came back, set tea to brew, sliced steaks from a haunch of frozen meat, and put cups and plates upon the bare table.

All the time he was talking lightly, but she did not catch a word he said.

"Eat, little one," he said, presently, "it eef good when the cold bite in the bones."

But Linda looked at him straightly and shook her head. The firelight, glinting on its golden braids, set

He leaned across and caught her left wrist.

SILVERSHINE—A Tale of the Canadian Wilds

Peraux's black eyes ashine with admiration.

"No," she said, "I break no bread with you, Peraux, now or ever. You are a liar and a cheat—that poor thing among men which makes war upon women."

There was sting in the calm words, and Peraux's face flamed. He bowed and sat down at the table.

"As you will," he said, and proceeded to eat heartily.

When he had finished he cleared away the dishes and then faced Linda, hands on hips, black eyes shining.

"Now," he said, with a sudden change of tone, "come here and kiss your master," and held out an imperious hand.

For answer the girl put a hand inside her waist and deliberately drew out a knife. It was no toy, but a real weapon, a fine, slim blade, keen and long used by the trapper Josef.

She held the knife in her right hand and felt its edge with her thumb.

Peraux, a fighter born, saw the play, and his evil face sparkled.

"So?" he laughed. "Peraux sees so unwelcome that you must fight him! Voila! But come."

Again he held out his hand, and the girl saw it was trembling.

"Peraux," she said, "don't you know you'll hang for this? What do you think Allen Derwent and Pierre will do to you when this reaches them?"

"Peraux—an' hees woman—they will be far to the north before word will go down to Linwell's landing. Thees snow, she's come just to cover Peraux's trail. Come."

He flung out the reaching hand and strode toward her, contemptuous of the knife. He was a brave man, for the girl was large and strong, and she was well armed. Also, she was in dead, cold earnest. She meant to kill Peraux if it were at all possible. She leaped behind the table, and he merely leaned across and caught her left wrist. Her right hand was high above her, hovering, waiting for the one chance to strike. Peraux watched that hand, smiling. He flung the table over and they shuffled tensely across the floor. Swiftly as they neared the wall that hovering white hand came down and the knife bit—down across the man's great shoulder. Blood spurted, but Peraux laughed.

"Wildcat!" he cried, "han'some wildcat—sleek an' fine. Oh, thees conquering she's going to be some ex-cite!"

his spread fingers and he drew back.

There was a shuffle of feet on the rough boards, panting of breath—and the girl felt the man's great strength again. In that moment she knew that he but played with her—a little afraid of the knife to be sure—but confident of the outcome. Why, Peraux could snap her around once and break the wrist he held. He was capable of so doing when the fight should become tiresome, she knew also. A sick feeling rose inside her; a swimming took her brain for just a moment—and in that moment Peraux caught her other wrist.

His grinning face was so close now that she could feel his breath on her cheek. Slowly he squeezed down on the wrist muscles with his steel fingers, bending her backward.

Linda Derwent was built of good stuff, and she would not give up until the last. But with that steadily increasing pressure she realized the beginning of the end. One agonizing thought of Pierre and the cabin in White Stone Gulch which would never hold his bride came to her, and for the first time she opened her mouth and gave to the anguish in her soul—one long, pitiful wail, deep and quivering.

At that sound Destiny stirred.

Out in the lean-to Silvershine, the giant leader of the team, rose up among his huddled mates. He stood for all the world like a wolf, and he looked it, there in the snowy night. His legs were spread apart, his long tail stood straight out from his body, rigid, his great head hung low between his lifted shoulders, where the huddles were raising in a ruff. His pale-yellow eyes were changing to black as the pupils spread.

In the rushing minute that followed Linda Derwent caught a sound at the closed door—the bold stroke of nailed paws against the wood—heard an answering thunder from a mighty throat.

With all the strength of her big body she lunged forward against Peraux and swept him backward along the wall. As they passed the door she flung her body sidewise and struck upward against the

There was a flood of cold air, and a great gray shape sailed up and forward through the shadows. She saw Peraux's face, caught in its heat of passion, change with the swiftness of lightning.

Fear flashed across it like a curtain. Then the huge gray body swept against her with such impact that she was thrown, tumbling, to roll almost into the fire upon the hearth—for Peraux had loosed her—and he had let go inside the cabin.

For years after Linda could close her eyes and live again that unspeakable scene.

She saw Peraux go down like a straw in the wind—she saw the husky's nose thrust down—and down—as he took fresh, savage holds—the workings of the enormous jaws—

She saw the thrashing of the two bodies on the floor—

And for a merciful time she saw no more.

When she did become aware of things again there was silence in the cabin. Beside the upturned table Peraux lay still, and crouched above him, facing her, was Silvershine. His ruff was up all around his lowered head. His jaws were twitching still—and his eyes! Ah, those mad eyes, black with excitement, full of light.

Silvershine had paid her score—and his own and that of all those 20 dogs which had gone to the sifting for Peraux's perfect team!

And then Linda Derwent covered her face with her hands and fell to weeping, for she was good and tender, and the death of a man was a grievous thing—even a man like Peraux.

The great gray creature rose, and stepping gingerly he came and sat gravely down beside her, in his haunches.

Once more they, two faced Peraux—two allied against him, and though the blue eyes were this time dim with tears, the yellow ones had all their anger and light and it was tempered with compassion.

Two days later, at candle-light, Linda Derwent swept up the little trail at Linwell's landing. It was Silvershine, the mammoth leader, who took and followed the unfamiliar trail, who set the old pace, and who stopped at Peraux's usual spot for night camp. It was Silvershine who dragged his mates to peace after their meal of frozen fish, who slept against the girl's fur bed, who needed neither whip nor word to bring her safe at last to her own place.

And all the judgment of the region gave to Linda Derwent, as earnest for the things she had suffered, Silvershine and his mates, a possession which, in the memory of that night, was above price to her.

Simple Rules of Drawing Easily Learned at Home

Become An Artist

If you have ever wanted to become an artist here is the opportunity that you have been waiting for! We have brought the principles of drawing right down to fundamentals. Through our wonderfully simple home study course in art hundreds of men and women have become high salaried artists. And so can you! A few hours a week of study is all that is required.

Wonderful New Method

This amazingly simple method makes it possible for anyone to learn illustration. Designing or Cartooning. All superfluous technique and dry theory is omitted. You enjoy studying—it's actually fascinating! In a few weeks you should be drawing pictures that you can sell—pictures that you never before thought could come from your pencil. You will be astounded at your own rapid progress! Many of our students have gotten as high as $75 for a single drawing even before they finished the course. Get into this field of big opportunities! No profession is more fascinating or better paying.

Hundreds of Trained Artists Needed

Never before have artists been in such big demand as they are right now—today. Magazines and newspapers cannot get enough of good cartoons. Designers are at a premium. Business concerns are actually bidding against each other for the service of men and women to handle their art work. Everywhere there is a crying scarcity of trained artists. There are hundreds of vacancies in all parts of the country. Follow the footsteps of our successful graduates and students. Many of them are now making from $75 to $250 a week. You can do as well! A little study in your leisure moments each day is all that is necessary.

"How to Become an Artist"—FREE!

Write for this wonderfully interesting book at once! It explains in detail our wonderful new method of teaching, and contains many interesting stories of our students, telling of their remarkable progress. Shows how you can quickly step into one of the big-paying artist's positions now open. Gives you full particulars of our SPECIAL ARTIST'S OUTFIT OFFER to a limited number of new students. Well-groomed nails—a social necessity

How you can have them

ONCE manicuring was so difficult that people either neglected their nails or had to go to a professional manicurist, but now manicuring has become so easy that no man or woman who expects to meet the critical eyes of friends dreams of neglecting the nails.

You no longer have to cut the cuticle. All those hard dry edges of skin you now remove simply and safely without cutting. Just dip the end of an orange stick wrapped in cotton into the bottle of Cutex and work around the nail base. Wash the hands and the surplus cuticle will wipe away, leaving an even nail rim.

And for that last finishing touch to your nails which social necessity now requires, you have only to use one of the marvelous Cutex polishes. These come in paste, liquid, cake, powder and stick forms. The liquid and powder polishes have been recently perfected and are far superior to any polishes of their kind so far appearing on the market.

Cutex Manicure Sets come in four sizes, at 60c, $1.00, $1.50 and $3.00. Or each of the Cutex items comes separately at 35c. At all drug and department stores in the United States and Canada.
